systems of coaching, with the result that it will take several weeks of constant practice to weld them into a trained machine.

Johnson a Star
Perhaps the foremost player on the army line was Johnson, the all-Southern tackle from Washington and Lee, whom Walter Camp has declared to be the best tackle in the country. Johnson, who weighs over 200 pounds, was a tower of strength in the line, and he seemed to be the only man who was capable of breaking up the Penn State rushes. "Jim" O'Donnell who wore the blue and white 1917 jersey, played in a line game at guard for the ambulance team, while "Ben" Cullage fully acquitted at end.

Beck Is Captain
In the army back-field, "Tuffy" Conn the former Oregon Aggie back, proved to be the surest ground-sacker, but even his famous play was helpless in the final quarter. Beck, another Penn State man who was elected to lead the army team, did the punting for his team, but he was unable to gain much ground against his former team-mates.

State Shows Grit
For Penn State, there were many outstanding features, the chief one being the determined fight and grit displayed by the team as a whole. Outweighed eleven pounds to the man, the blue and white line never-the-less, managed to get the jump on their heavier opponents and during the whole game the army backs did not let little through the line. The Penn State backs were out-weighted by an even higher margin, and looked like mere plummies beside their towering opponents.

Way Is Sensational
The work of Way the 178 pound half-back proved to be the most sensational of the day, and time after time, the slippery back eluded three or four would-be tacklers before he was finally downed. He showed up particularly well at running back kicks, and his dodging was the best seen for some time. At quarter-back, proved himself to be a capable field general and his selection of plays was excellent throughout. Moreover, it was Wolfe who gave Penn State her first score of the day when he booted a beautiful field goal from the 10 yard line shortly after play had begun. The punt was not of the lengthy variety, but he placed them exceedingly well and gave his ends plenty of time to cover them.

In the line, Tavenner proved to be a constant thorn in the side of the army backs. Together with Conn, he broke up play after play before it was even fairly started, and on one occasion he downed Beck before the latter was able to kick. Griffith played his first game at center and he showed up wonderfully well when it is considered that he was playing against a very good man.

Wolfe Kicks Field Goal
The opening of the game looked gloomy for Penn State, for Conn ran the kick-off back to almost mid-field, and on the second line-up, he went around end for a touchdown. He had stepped out of bounds, however, so the ball was brought back. Conn or blocked an attempted kick, recovered the ball and carried it to the army's 35-yard line, and shortly afterward, Wolfe dropped back and booted a drop-kick between the goal posts.

Punt Makes Touchdown
Penn State's other score came in the third quarter, just one minute before the whistle blew. Wolfe punted to Suthoff, who fumbled on his own 35 yard line, and Pond scooped up the ball and went the remaining distance for a touchdown. Conover, who played a fine game at end, added the final point by kicking the goal.

Penn State was represented by President Sparks and a rotating section of alumni and students. The Penn State ambulance units and as their official mascot a bear cub decorated with a blue and white blanket, and during the game they cheered with a vim for their Alma Mater. The score—

The line-up follows:

Freshman Girls

the 1920 class yell, and as a matter of fact, anything that the Sophs could suggest. One of the new features brought forth by this celebration was the rounding of the girls into a circle and then instructing them to sing the "alm mater" as loudly as possible without making any noise. A score of enjoyment was in store for all those girls who could not comply with the command and needless to say, many were reprimanded. Owing to the large number of Helen's in the class, a special feature was carried out by those bearing that name and they performed their part of the program very well. Some, who did not seem well acquainted with the co-ed rules, were forced to learn them by practice as a matter of fact, it is impossible to think of any stunt that the Sophs did not have the "meek Freshies" doing, and they surely did think up some new ones.

After about an hour's entertainment the Sophomore girls thought the Freshies were in need of a little nourishment and fed them with hot-dogs, pretzels, cider and cake. Of course, the 1920 class yell was then in order, and to say the least, the Freshies have that one thing well. But the higher minds of the girls in charge were continually at work and they soon composed an original 1921 class yell which they had rendered with much "pep".

The committee in charge of the affair was Miss Isabel Hanford, chairman, Miss Emma Holman, Miss Eva Toy, and Miss Adeline Burkholder, who had charge of the "meek". The success of the Girls' Poster Night is due entirely to the work of this committee and the excellent aid they received from the other Sophomore girls.

ADDITIONS TO AG. FACULTY ANNOUNCED

The arrival of the following new faculty members has been announced by the Agricultural School: C. A. Hunter, assistant professor of bacteriology, formerly of the University of Florida; Dr. D. S. Fox, assistant professor of agronomy, formerly of the University of Montana, and E. L. Niven, who will become professor of extension plant pathology. The latter was formerly of Columbia University, and will take up his duties here on October 1st.

MILES HORST '14 BACK FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Tells of Great Opportunities for Young Miners and Engineers in That Continent

The great opportunities for young men in Brazil, and in fact all of South America, was one of the observations made by Miles Horst during his recent trip through that continent. He stopped at State College a few days last week. Horst was very well known while at State, and was prominent in Y. M. C. A. work. After graduating here, he went to Columbia University, but at the end of two years he went to Brazil in the employ of the Armour Swift Company to study the cattle industry and its possibilities. He availed himself of this opportunity to study the economic and social conditions of South America. Horst also spent about a year visiting all the other countries except Colombia and Venezuela, and everywhere found that conditions were about the same as in the U. S. during the period 1855-1870. "Railways are very few in number and most of the land is wild, but the spirit of development shown by the U. S. is inspiring the countries of Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, and Chile may be said to be the most progressive countries, in fact, Buenos Aires in Brazil has no marked differences from the average American city of today.

"There are particularly good chances for young miners and engineers. Educated and trained men are few and North American initiative and leadership are in demand," Horst stated, however, that a good speaking knowledge of Spanish is very essential and in Brazil, Portuguese is also necessary, it being the main language used in that section of the South American continent. Another point that he brought out was that although a man starting out for himself would not succeed in most cases he can be very successful if he follows himself with one of the prominent companies of the United States having establishments in that part of the world.

2056 Students In Present Enrollment

A revision of the enrollment figures given in last week's issue, shows very little change. The only change that has to be made is a slight increase in the total number due to some of the students making language used in that section of the South American continent. Another point that he brought out was that although a man starting out for himself would not succeed in most cases he can be very successful if he follows himself with one of the prominent companies of the United States having establishments in that part of the world.

LOST AND FOUND
The Y. M. C. A. has an established "Lost and Found Department" serving as a clearing house for all such articles. For the greatest development of this department, that it may meet existing conditions most satisfactorily, it is necessary that every article lost or found, be reported at the office, 273 Main Building.

Nominate For A. A. President

The first athletic mass meeting of the year was held last Thursday evening in the Auditorium and from the size of the turnout and the spirit displayed it is evident that Penn State is still in the game. The chief object accomplished by the meeting was the nominating of a successor to "Joe" Wilson, former president of the athletic association, who is now a first lieutenant in the infantry. The following men were nominated:

- R. D. Blakeslee,
- R. S. Clarke,
- R. G. Kraft,
- M. M. Long,
- Blair Mingie,
- R. Shultz.

The election will be held tomorrow evening in the Old Chapel, the polls being open from 6:00 to 8:00. It is hoped that a large vote will be cast. Because of a hard scrimmage, the football squad was not present at the meeting, but they were represented by Coach "Xen" Scott. He made an appeal to all members of the three upper classes who have ever played football to come out for the team. President Sparks was present and spoke on the advisability of continuing athletics, pointing out that the prime object in college athletics is not necessarily in having a winning team. Vice-president Wheeling read the proposed amendments pertaining to cheer leaders and also the new constitution of Student Council which was drawn up last spring but never voted upon. Both these matters come up for final vote at the mass meeting this morning.

FIVE FRESHMEN FAIL TO PASS ENGLISH EXAM

That the record-breaking enrollment of Freshmen this fall has not been made at the expense of scholastic standing is readily attested by the fact that out of 737 Freshmen only five have been asked to return to preparatory schools for further training. This means that even under the present unsettled conditions, the scholastic bars have not been let down in the slightest at Penn State.

Every Freshman is forced to pass an examination in English composition shortly after the opening of college. This year there were about twenty-five who failed to pass this exam and they were given further examinations on other subjects. The five mentioned above were unable to successfully pass these examinations also, and as a result they were requested to return to their preparatory school.

WAR WORK INTERFERES WITH SUNDAY SPEAKER

Arrangements had been closed with Dr. F. N. Seerley, to visit Penn State as the college speaker for next Sunday, but it was recently learned that he could not come. Dr. Seerley up to this time has been professor of psychology, physiology and anatomy in the International Y. M. C. A. College, Springfield, Mass. Some years ago he visited Penn State, addressing the student body in what proved to be probably the best personal hygiene talk that has ever been given in the institution. Since the mobilization of the drafted men has taken place, Dr. Seerley has been called to the various cantonments all over the country, addressing the soldiers along this special line. Word has been received that he has been called to the Pacific coast during the month of October and so will be unable to visit Penn State.

Winfield Scott Hall, Ph. D. M. D., has been secured in place of Dr. Seerley, and will be the speaker next Sunday after a lapse of three years since his last visit. Those who remember his addresses at that time have rated Dr. Hall as one of the best qualified men to talk on the subject in which he is most vitally interested.

His degree of medicine came from Northwestern University, following which he took up advanced studies at the University of Leipzig. Following his return to this country he taught at Harvard College, and later at Northwestern University. Later he became Junior Deans of the Medical Faculty and Lecturer on Dietetics in the Mercy Hospital School for Nurses in Chicago. He took up lecture work following this in the Institute and Training School of the Y. M. C. A. in that city. Since the outbreak of the war in this country, Dr. Hall has been giving his time to lecturing in the concentration camps.

Dr. Hall will speak at both Sunday Chapeis and at the Y. M. C. A. meeting at 6:30 in the Old Chapel. The evening meeting will be open to men only.

OPENINGS FOR TECHNICAL STUDENTS IN U. S. SERVICE

According to notices received by the Post Office from Washington there are many vacancies existing at the various Navy Yards of the U. S. The work is mainly along a mechanical and technical nature and the pay ranges from $2.48 to $5.20 a day. This affords an excellent opportunity for students who wish to enlist in the U. S. service and yet follow their chosen line of work.

Poster Night

After gathering around the fire to be entertained by some of the returning Fresh, most of the crowd went home, leaving a few faithfuls to guard undisturbed posters.

About eight o'clock yesterday morning the Juniors supervised the obliteration of the posters stuck up in town. Larger Freshmen smeared their class numerals on some, and completely covered others with black paint. It developed yesterday that an automobile filled with Juniors followed the retreating invaders to the places visited in the nearby country and tore down all posters shortly after they had been put up.

Gridiron Gossip

Who said the "big Blue team" wouldn't come across and bring home the bacon? ...

The Blue and White backfield was outweighed 19 pounds per man at the start. After Way and Pond went in, the figures were even higher. ...

Never-the-less, speed counted over weight and that is why the score favored Penn State. ...

The game went to prove that a supposed "All American" team, without several weeks of practice is not equal to a combination that has been playing together—although the Penn State 'varsity has played very little together. ...

If Wolfe can continue his drop-kick, he looks like a valuable man to the back-field. He also punts very well. ...

Sounded funny to hear about Beck punting to Robb and Way. It was quite confusing at first. ...

Conover played a great game at end, both defensively and in carrying the ball. ...

Conn, of Oregon Aggies, proved to be the mainstay of the army backfield. Even he failed to gain in the final quarter, however. ...

Now for Gettysburg, St. Bonaventure and then W. & J. The latter game will be the test. ...
