Red Cross Campaign

The American National Red Cross, the creation of the national government, whose president is the President of the United States—con- sists you all know—of more than TEN MILLION new members before Christmas Day, is on! Are you willing to do your bit, by enlisting in the Red Cross army—in standing with- out front behind the men behind the guns?

The date for the Campaign Drive as set by the National Headquarters of the country over, is from December 16 to 25. Because of the adjournment of the College for the holidays recess December 19, it is imperative, if this College meets up to its opportunity and its possi- bilities, that the Campaign here be placed upon the week of December 9 to 15.

Eight months ago, as went the country generally on the outbreak of the War, so went this College—a unit in its expressions of loyalty to the flag and motherland. Today, driven by the necessity of adjustment for the holi- days to anticipate by one week the date of the nation-wide Campaign, the Red Cross confidently counts on each of you to do your share, to do it with such earnestly that the men and women of this state shall be proud of their State College, to do it with such a shout, that that shout shall be heard in France and Flanders, and the men in Khaki shall be glad, to do it as one man, so that we may dare to hope that "A Good Show" in this Campaign for the Red Cross Membership, So Will Go The Nation. Men and Women of Penn State WE MUST NOT—SHALL NOT—FAIL!

Pittsburgh Paragraphs

McLaren's inability to assume a role while "Red" was in shape as evidence that the State back had the goods and was in the fight. His low hitting secondary defense was wonderful to behold.

Graduate Manager Ray Smith was the busiest man on deck. He almost had to have a set speech on college doings ready for every old grad who turned up in the lobby, and there were quite a few of them there.

For the first time since 1904, when he was student manager of the Penn State team, Ray Smith was not to be found on the varsity bench at a Pitt game. He took a bird's eye view of this Turkey Day contest from the press box, and is in favor of the change.

That big service flag presented by "Bill" Heppner '15, made a big hit with everybody between halves.

"And acquaintance" was not forgot in the annual Penn State smoker in the Norse room at the Foot Pitt on Wednesday night. But the crowd was a great deal smaller than in previous years and disbanded early.

Between the halves the Penn State players rested in the dressing room, and all made a change to dry jerseys. The boys insisted that Charlie Way have a full dry uniform before he returned to the field. He was the only man who returned with dry molesters. They seemed to help.

Pitt will lose Quarterback Miller, Captain Carlson, Sutherland, Harrington, McClelland and Seidel this year. Seidel and Carlson will continue their studies there next year, but will not be eligible to play. The other men will graduate in June.

Of the twenty games played between Pitt and State to date, State has won 11 and Pitt 9. Last Thursday's win was the fifth straight for Pitt.

To build a team next year Coach Warner will have Stahl, Sien, Gough, McLaren, Easterday, McClelland, the Althouses and Penland as a nucleus, all of whom were in the game last week. And he has some promising material in this year's Freshman squad, at that.

Russian Orchestra

For an engagement, but efforts are now being made to secure either Hann- lin Garland, the noted novelist and lecturer, Irving Bacheller, the well-known humorous lecturer, who at one time was editor of the New York World, or John Kendrick Bangs, another hu- morous lecturer, who has been manag- ing editor of Life, or the editorial staff of Harper's Magazine, and editor of Harper's Weekly, during his career. More than likely the first named will be the one to appear, although nothing is definitely known. Professor P. L. Patton, of the Rhetoric Department, will see Mr. Garland during the Thank-sgiving recess, and will telegraph the committee the result in order that the tickets may be printed in time.

Last Number Uncertain

As to the last number of the course it is known that it will be some promi- nent man, and efforts are still being made to secure either Compton, Goethals, or Johnson, and in addition a committee has been in communica- tion with Henry Van Dyke, the well- known minister to the Netherlands for a number of years. The latter has had quite a varied experience as a lecturer, having been a Lyman Beecher lecturer at Yale, a lecturer at Harvard, and the American lecturer at the Sorbonne.

The Russian Orchestra, which will appear here next week, had one of the longest and most successful seasons last spring of all the fourteen seasons that it has been in existence. Chelung from New York as far south as the Gulf of Mexico, as far west as points in Kansas and as far north as Canada, and in the city of New York, have been put in some of the most important festivals of the year.

In Macon, Georgia, they were engaged as the main attraction of the first Chautauque of the South. Macon, a city of forty thousand people, which had never had a concert from a symphony orchestra before, turned out thirteen audiences ranging from two to five thousand persons during the eight days of the orchestra's stay. In Birmingham, Alabama, the orchestra was en- gaged as the principal offering of the week of concerts given in connection with the biennial meeting of the Na- tional Federation of Musical Clubs. Recognition in these and many other cities of the city visited by the organiza- tion serve to show the popularity and success of the Russian Symphony Or- chestra wherever it is heard. An ex- ample of this may be found in its re- engagement in Penn State.

At present they are on a tour of the northern and western parts of Penn- sylvania, having given concerts at Erie, Lock Haven, Pittsburgh, and other large cities in that section. An ex- ample of the extremely low figure for which Penn State men are per- mitted to hear this treat, a citation may be made of its appearance in Washing- ton, where it was designated as a "great social event" by the Washington Herald. At this time, the general admission was set at five dollars. Later at Brooklyn, the general admission ranged from four to nine dollars, while the boxes cost from seventy-five to a hundred dollars each.

SOPHS AND FRESHMEN

IN FOOTBALL SCRAP

Freshmen Appear To Be Favorites But Sophs Are Strong—Letter- Men Will Not Play

The annual football scrap game between the two lower classes will take place Saturday afternoon on New Beaver. The interest in this game is exceedingly keen this year and the Sophomores are doubly anxious to win this scrap in order to compensate for the doubling which the Freshmen landed them in the Tie-up Scrap. The Freshmen on the other hand are just as anxious to win that they may add another victory to the one already won and also catch a canny cold!

The Freshmen will in all probability use the same lineup which has been seen in all their games this fall. This in- cludes McCollum and Snell, ends, Baer and Dossert, tackles, Scheidtmantel and Henry, guards, Benz, center, Hines, quarterback, Stoops and French, half backs and Gehling, full back Williams, Guman and Parley are the most likely substitutes for the Freshmen.

In the Sophomore ranks, Baer, Gehling, Waj, Froschke, Hills, and Black have been awarded the varsity "S" and thus are ineligible for the class team. Of the other Sophomores who were on the squad, Spangler, Ullery, McKelvey, Dunbar, Wolfe, G. W. Brown, and J. W. Brown are the most likely to see service in this game. Spangler will probably be seen at cen- ter, G. W. Brown at guard, Jones at tackle, McKelvey and J. W. Brown at the ends, Wolfe at quarter, Dunbar at halfback, and Ullery at full back. This leaves only three positions on the team to be filled by members from the rest of the class and as these men have been working together all season, they should form a team which will give the Freshmen a hard tussle.

settled down to play "Victory." Cheer- leaders Burns and Bailey kept the cheering going fine, and it made a very good impression in spite of the fact that all rooters on the Pitt stands were provided with good sized paper megaphones for the occasion and could make a little more racket.

There were many vacant seats in the stands at the start of the game, and the crowd was not nearly so great as those that have been in attendance in the past few years. This drop in the gate receipts will give the managers of the Pitt and State managements a severe setback.

GLEE CLUB IS TRYING TO ARRANGE TWO TRIPS

The Glee Club is now negotiating for several concerts on trips which will be taken during the second semester. One trip will be taken through the north- western part of the state and will prob- ably include Erie, Pa., Altoona, and Johnstown, New York. Another trip will be taken to Reading and Haverhill where return dates will be given. Dean Robinson is meeting serious dif- ficulties in arranging these concerts on account of the activity of the various war work campaigns. However, these trips are practically certain to take place.

team to score against the Blue and White, when their quarterback drop- kicked a field goal from their 15 yard line.

One of the features of the play of the Freshman team this fall was their skillful handling of the forward pass. In every game but the one with the Pitt Freshmen, the aerial attack of Martin's eleven proved an important factor in winning the game, and even in the Pitt game, the yearlings used the play to advantage. The Kiski game was won on a forward pass to Snell.

Five Pair of Ends

The great success of these passes was due in large measure to the clever work of the ends, Captain McCollum and Snell. Time after time they could leap into the air and pull down Ric- ney's long spirals for large gains. Mc- Collum proved himself to be a fine leader, and while he was new at the end play, having formerly played full- back, he looks like promising material for the varsity.

The regular line of Baer and Dossert, tackles, Henry and Scheidtmantel, guards, and Benz, center, proved to be a stone wall which opposing teams could not break. While these men are not particularly heavy, they are hard, aggressive players who are working all the time that they are in the game.

The Freshman backfield seemed to have mastered the science of inter- fer- ing for the runner, for their end runs were invariably good for gains. Ritner and Williams both showed up very well at quarterback, although the former, because of his punting, seemed to have somewhat of an advantage. Stoops and French at halfbacks and Gehling at fullback completed a fast backfield.
