chances at fouls but only registered one of them, while Oiler missed his three entirely. A field goal by Wolfe put the Blue and White ahead, 7 to 5, but a similar goal by Oiler again gave the visitors the lead. Then Blakeslee got started and the Blue and White captain scored no less than six baskets before the end of the half. The score at half-time was 21-17 in favor of Penn State.

The second half was much closer than the first, and Blakeslee's foul shooting was all that gave the home team an advantage in the closing session. Both teams scored six times from the floor, Blakeslee and Wright each getting three double-doubles. But the early lead rolled up by Penn State proved sufficient, and Juniata was unable to penetrate the defense of the home team for any consistent scores.

The Attendance Poor

The attendance at the game was the smallest seen at a basketball game for some time probably due to the fact that the game was not very well advertised in advance.

campaign during the last two days they also announced that those who have joined at any time since September 1, will be considered as having joined at this time, and their membership extended. For the benefit of those who have not yet registered at one of the stations, the committee desires to announce that cash only will be accepted, as the Red Cross does not conduct any pledge campaigns.

Opportunity is also being given at the tables to subscribe to the Red Cross magazine. As the name implies, this publication deals with the Red Cross work in all its phases, and in addition frequently contains stories pertaining to the present war. This magazine may be secured with a membership for two dollars, one dollar more than the regular membership dues.

A Red Cross service flag will be given to every fraternity and bonding club, which has more than five members of the Red Cross. This service flag consists of a white field, with a blue border and with a red cross in the center of the field. It will probably be about three by four and a half feet. As it would naturally be somewhat of a task to find out which of the bonding clubs have the requisite five members, the committee decided to give the flag only to those clubs that inform the committee that they have the necessary number of members. It is expected that one will be given to the Women's Building and McAllister Hall.

The campaign received what may be termed the best support in the grade and high schools in the borough, where the response was unanimous. The teachers were all enlisted in the cause, and it was seen that if those pupils who did not have the money to join with were supplied with quarters, this amount being the dues for a Juniors membership. By this means, each grade and every class of the high school may now be called a "Red Cross School," since the number of members is equal to the number of pupils.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN TO BE HELD SATURDAY

The Handicap Prize Cross Country Run which was scheduled for last Saturday will probably be held next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 starting from New Beaver field. Definite announcement, however, will be made later in the week. Should the weather be unfavorable the run will be postponed until some time after the Christmas vacation.

The same prizes will be awarded as announced, but on account of the snow drifts, it has been found necessary to change the route. This will now be out to the "red barn," making the loop and returning, instead of out around Andy Lytle's farm, as previously planned.

TO HOLD APPLE JUDGING CONTEST NEXT FRIDAY

The fourth annual intercollegiate apple-judging contest will be held at Penn State next Friday in the Hort. Building. To date seven teams have entered from the state colleges of Iowa, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, New Jersey and Delaware, in addition to Penn State. The judges and other members of the faculty are coaching six men, from whom a team of three will be selected. Two cups will be given, one to the highest team and the other to the highest individual scorer.

ARMY OFFICERS TO BE SENT HERE

mandant has been pushed with the intention of the applicants for admission to the third officers' training camp. Penn State's quota to the camp has been set at 44, and about 85 men have applied.

The conditions could be met in the Health School, which is held in a regular U. S. Army building.

Many of the 85 men have used their regular admission to the third camp, but as the quota allowed is far below the number of applicants, many of them are sure to be all appointed. Major Daylike has been quizzing each applicant personally in order to determine his qualifications as far as possible. It is probable that those who have not had the required amount of experience will be sent to the Health School, which is held in the regular U. S. Army building.

The billeting of last Saturday called a halt to the outdoor drilling of the two lower classes and the R. O. T. C. members of the Agricultural Building whenever it comes in. Soldiers will be posted on the hill and down town where the paper may be obtained, and the deliveries will continue for about three days each month. Anyone who does not secure his copy of "The Farmer" at the time of issue may get it when the next month's issue comes out.

MAXWELL TELLS OF PITT-STATE GAME

A good story of the Pitt-State game on Thanksgiving appeared in the Philadelphia "Evening Ledger" recently, written by R. W. Maxwell, sports editor of that paper who acted as umpire at the game. Part of his account follows—

"But yesterday, although Pitt triumphed by the score of 25 to 6, the champions did not have an easy time of it. Penn State tided out on the field an undrained team and proceeded to prove that the advance hope was entirely wrong. Instead of a light weak, inexperienced eleven it was a well-coached, scrappy crowd, and the game they put up made Pitt look foolish in two or three plays.

"In the second and third quarters State clearly outplayed her heavier rivals and in that time exposed a new attack which carried the ball down the field for a touchdown.

"This was surprising and worried Pitt considerably and it was not until the last eight minutes of the game that they recovered.

"When called, field coach, was responsible for the new staff. They would spread out, with one yard between the guards and the backfield men lined up outside of the end. The center stood sideways and passed the ball to one of the ends. This deceptive play was aided by the high-necked tackle perpetuated by the Pitt men, State was able to cut off some good gains.

"This attack is similar to that used by Tates and quite resembles the formation used by C. Harlow Raymond at Lawrenceville School. It seems to be a simple thing to stop, but when it gets going, good gains usually result. The only mistake to my mind, was that the open formation was used in the first half. Had it been saved until the second session something might have happened to make Pitt feel sad today.

"During the intermission, Warner was able to give a definite time and again he was able to say that Harlow's men would have a used more trouble.

"The outstanding feature of the afternoon was the work of Way, the little center, who carried the ball with ease and with a fearless abandon and never slows up when about to be tackled. It is his possession of the ball and it is strange that he has not broken into print before this. He will be one of the stars next year.

"Last year he was unable to make the freshman team, and was a substitute half-back."

GLEE CLUB WILL TAKE TRIP AFTER HOLIDAYS

The Glee Club trip is gradually assuming shape although nothing definite regarding the actual engagements is available at the present time. A trip will be taken through the lower section of the state after the holidays, probably touching Harrisburg, Reading and Allentown, finishing up in the northern part, with probable engagements at Dubois and Erie.

a fine brand of ball, and as they had but little preparation for the game, they play merits much commendation. The line of the Sophs was invincible to the Freshies, and the punting of Hibish continually kept the first-year men on edge. Dunbar and Ullery played good games for the Sophs, and merit special mention for their efforts. However, the entire team fought gamely to the end, and with excellent results. The Freshies also played good ball, but fumbling seemed to become a habit with them and they lost many opportunities in this manner. The punting of Ritze was the outstanding feature of their play, and he continually drove the ball back to safe quarters. Snell should also be mentioned for the manner in which he guided the right wing of the eleven, and his success in breaking up many plays of the Sophs was an outstanding feature. It was thought that the Sophomores would fail to defeat before the study Freshies, as they, Rauch, Callahan, Pisching and Hills were lost because of their winning the "varsity 25."

to turn "Charlie" Way into a quarter-back. The move turned out to be the wisest one of the year, for the little 125 pounder proved himself to be the sensation of the season. In every game for the balance of the year, the little Penn State general was the leading performer and his work both at home and away attracted the notice of critics all through the East. Had he played on a stronger team, there is no doubt but that he would have been mentioned for All-Eastern teams, and even as it is, he has been given honorable mention in nearly all of the selections.

With the shifting of Way to quarter-back, Pond was placed in the halfback position and his punting during the fall end of the season was one of the features of the White and Blue. It was this final line-up that tackled Pitt on Thanksgiving Day and furnished a surprise by the plucky light they put up against Warner's champion eleven. Although defeated 23 to 6, Captain Conover's team had the satisfaction of outplaying Pitt for almost half of the game, and of securing a touchdown against them for the first time in four years.

USAACA Defeated

The season was scheduled to begin with Muhlenburg, but the latter called as a result, the management was enabled to schedule a game with the U. S. Army Ambulance Corps team at Allentown on that date. Contrary to expectations, the light Penn State eleven out-played the USAACS and carried a 10-0 victory. This was followed by overwhelming defeats administered to Gettysburg and St. Bonaventure on New Beaver Field. The former score was 30 to 0, and the latter was 99 to 0.

The next game was with W & I, and the Washingtonians came out on top with a 7-0 score. They scored a touchdown in the first three minutes.

of play and after that, neither team was ever in a position to score. The West Virginia Wesleyan game was the most sensational of the year on New Beaver, for the Mountaineers, after holding the lead up to the last minute of play, were nosed out 8 to 7 when "Gang" Way caught a punt and ran for a touchdown just before the whistle blew.

The Datmouth game was lost 10 to 7, a substitute back kicking a field goal just before the close of the game. Therefore the Pennsylvania Day crowd, the White and Blue gave its worst performance of the season and was beaten 9 to 0. The team redeemed itself somewhat against Maryland State on the following Saturday, winning 67-0, and then came the final game with Pitt on Thanksgiving.

Next Year's Prospects

Prospects for next year are very uncertain. Captain Robb, Way, Hills, Pisching, Wolfe and Ullery appear to be the only men who have any expectation of being here, all the other members of the team being liable to draft. Some of the men being liable to enlist and others expect to follow their example. Resident-Coach Harlow has also applied for a commission in a Forestry Regiment and he is awaiting his call at any time. However, against them for this year's Freshman eleven to fill in the ranks, it is probable that Penn State will have another fighting eleven next fall.
