I used to think, that if one had a pocket full of money-and could go down and afford to make several selections from Sim's stock or buy half of Graham's stock, life was just what it ought to be in the twentieth century. Well, here conditions are a little changed. One walks around with several hundred dollars in his pockets and walks and walks-that's all there is to do. There is not even a Christmas pest caid to buy and at present our exarters are under quarantine and we an't even leave the camp to go to a httle town near here.
