REGISTRATION OF FRESHMEN REACHES 417 MARK

The advance registration of students for next term's freshman class has reached 417, which is about the same number registered at this time last year. Of these, 84 have signified their intention of entering the school of agriculture. This year, for the first time in the history of the college, girls have registered for practically every course in college. This is undoubtedly because of the war, since women are being required to take the place of men in virtually every phase of community life.

There are five students who have registered during the summer session for graduate work. They are: W. O. Heckman, State College; Miss Anna C. Campbell, Pennsylvania Furnace; S. F. Wilson, State College; Jerome J. Wheeler, Wellboro; and Frank W. Kiewel, Philadelphia.

SUMMER SESSION BRIEFS

Miss Pearl MacDonald, of the home economics extension department, gave a talk at assembly Monday morning on the "Parent-Teachers' Association." She urged every teacher to work up such an association in her own community.

The members of the Demonstration School, under the leadership of Prof. Steltz, took a trip to Williamsport last week, and inspected a number of the buildings there.

M — (name censored) reports having seen several summer session students (and they were not young either) spooning on the campus last Sunday evening about 7:30. What IS the world comin' to anyway?

Dean G. Walter Fiske, of the Oberlin Graduate School of Theology, gave an excellent address Sunday evening at the union religious service, pointing out some of the underlying spiritual meanings of the Great War.

About seventy-five couples attended the summer session dance held in the Armory last Saturday evening. The next dance will be held this coming Saturday evening.

It is reported that there are about 700 school teachers attending the summer session at the University of Illinois. An entertaining lecture was delivered a week ago last evening in the Open Air Theater, by Bishop Thomas I. Garland, of Philadelphia. The subject was "Putting in the Sickle." Bishop Garland was also in attendance at the church conference.
