are recorded as having been played between the Pitt passers and the Blue and White enco teams. Ten of these fourteen games resulted in victories for Penn State, the remaining four being victories for Pitt. Pitt has not been able to defeat the Blue and White quintet since the season of 1917 when one victory was registered by a Blue and Gold five.

The close of the 1918 season makes it possible for some figures concerning individual scoring to be available. In the thirteen games in which the Penn State five figured, 529 points were registered as against 290 scored by opponents. The largest scores registered by the Blue and White quintet were eighty-six against Susquehanna, fifty-four against Geneva, fifty-seven against Carnegie Tech, and forty-eight against the Great Lakes Naval team. Penn and Lafayette were the only opponents who were able to gain victories over the Penn State combination and both of these contests were played early in the season on hostile floors. Penn was able to score thirty-three points against the Penn State passers while Lafayette was responsible for the other defeat with thirty-three points.

Wolfe proved to be the most consistent point getter for the Blue and White five for this season, scoring 246 points of the total of 529. He registered seventy-one goals from the field during the season and was able to net 101 points by foul. Mullan secured the next most points for Penn State in the form of fifty field goals and twelve fouls, for a total of 112. The number of points scored by Killinger was unusual, the plus he Penn State guard being able to register thirty-three goals from the field during the thirteen games.

The summary of the season's scoring.

F. G.	F. G.	Pts.
Wolfe 1	71	104
Mullan 1	50	12
Hitta 1	25	14
Killinger G	32	0
Wilson G	2	1

Wolfe to Captain 1920 Five
 At a meeting of "b5b" men held on last Friday evening elections were made for the 1920 season. Wolfe, center and forward on this year's five, was elected to captain the 1920 team. Wolfe is a Junior in college this year and next year will be the last that he will be available for the Blue and White quintet. J. S. Martin '20, was elected to manage next year's five, while M. W. Myers '21, L. S. Detwiler '21, and J. Trester '21, were elected first assistant managers.

reception and dance in the Armory. On Wednesday morning the commencement procession will form at the Carnegie Library at nine forty-five and the graduation exercises will begin in the Auditorium at ten o'clock. In the afternoon there probably will be a reception to the parents of graduates and other commencement visitors in the Open Air Theater.

On Wednesday evening the Junior Prom will be held in the Armory. The Junior Prom which is the farewell reception tendered the Seniors by the members of the Junior Class, will be formal this year as in previous days, according to the decision made at the last meeting of the class of 1920.

MUSICAL CLUBS TO SECURE NEW DIRECTOR

Progress has been made during the past week in regard to the policy of the Glee and Mandolin clubs for the remainder of the year in that several important steps have been taken towards securing a director for the Glee Club to take charge until Dean Robinson returns to Penn State. Mr. C. W. Dorn, who has been in charge of the club for the past few months, has found it impossible for him to continue the work of directing the Glee Club in rehearsals and concerts, and, consequently, the Council of Administration is making an effort to secure a director from outside to take charge of the affairs of the club for the remainder of the college year.

Preparations are being made for the commencement concert which will be given on Saturday night, June 9. An attempt is being made to prepare a strong program for this event and if plans mature, a concert up to the standards set by clubs before the war will be the result. The Glee and Mandolin Club has worked under considerable difficulty during the entire college year, but there is no doubt that the concert during commencement week will be well worth hearing.

BOXING MEET IS WON BY SOPHOMORES

round did Lally obtain the decision. Throughout the bout Lally got in more clean face punches, but he received some of Maynes' left jabs and felt their effect, shuddering under the force of some of them. In the extra round, however, Lally easily won over the Freshman, and he deserved the decision, for he proved himself the better boxer of the two.

The 145-pound bout opened with caution on the part of the participants, "Hick" Friedman '21 and Byron '22, and they merely sparred for about a minute, and then Friedman suddenly let loose his straight jabs and light hooks and had his opponent against the ropes, striking him right and left. Byron displayed a good grade of fighting on his part and showed his ability to take punishment, but he was in no way able to cope with the quick punches of the Sophomore and in the last round was so exhausted that the referee stopped the bout to save the Freshman from a knockout.

The 160-pound bout between Schiffer '21 and S. Friedman '22 was a well fought and aggressive contest. Against an opponent who "blugged" very little, Schiffer would have had better opportunity for placing his short jabs, but against Friedman, he had little chance to break through the Freshman's guard and place his blows. Friedman fought consistently throughout the contest and merited the decision which he obtained.

The 175-pound bout between Alken '21 and Stein '22 began with much aggressiveness on the part of both contestants. These men were fairly evenly matched, of the same height, length of arm, and build, and a close bout was looked for. The first round was practically a draw, each man landing several clean face blows. In the second round, Stein started out like a whirlwind, and rained blows right and left over Alken's head, but none of them was really effective. Alken waited, and when the whirlwind was almost spent, waded into Stein's blows and placed a straight light jab on his jaw which floored him instantly. He got up, and Alken struck him again, in the same place, and Stein fell face downward. It was not a clean knockout, but close to it, and a matter of a few more blows would have settled it, had the referee not stopped the bout, announcing Alken as the victor.

The heavy weight bout between Cooper '21 and Weiss '22 decided the tournament. Up until this bout, the score was tied, each team winning three bouts. Weiss, the Freshman, showed his grit when he started after the Sophomore and rained blows on him from the right and left. In the second round, however, Cooper had little trouble, and early in the round, placed a light hook on the corner of Weiss' jaw and the Freshman fell backward to the floor. He arose and determined to keep on, but another blow sent him reeling, and the referee also stopped this bout, with the result that Cooper was the victor and the Sophomores were the winners of the meet.

PENN STATE WRESTLERS DOWN LEHIGH MATMEN

minutes got a double arm lock hold which resulted in the Lehigh man's being thrown. Score, Penn State 15, Lehigh 9.

In the 175-pound class, Shaulis, of Penn State, was thrown by Manley, of Lehigh, after twelve minutes of hard wrestling. Neither man left his feet in the first nine minutes, although toward the end Shaulis was pushing his opponent for an opening. In the first extra three minute period, Manley was on top and kept his advantage until time was called. In the second extra three minute period, Shaulis was able to hold Manley down for but a few seconds, and then he fell into a bad body hold, from which he could not extricate himself. Score Penn State 15 Lehigh 14.

The result of the meet, therefore, depended upon the outcome of the heavy-weight class. Booth who is the regular Lehigh heavy-weight man, was unable to wrestle in the meet at South Bethlehem, and so little was known of his strength and skill. The men went to the mat in the last few minutes, with Black on top, where he remained long enough to warrant his winning the decision. Booth got to his feet but it was not long before both men again went to the mat.

at times, Black was on top and at other times, Booth held the upper position. Both men came near winning falls at various times, and in several cases it looked as though Black were almost thrown. In each case, however, he successfully bridged out and the first nine minutes resulted in a draw. In the first extra three minute period, Black secured the upper position, which he maintained, almost securing a fall. In the second extra three minute period, Black bridged out from under and although he was nearly thrown once, he secured the top position and kept it, thereby winning the decision by several minutes' margin. Score, Penn State 19, Lehigh 11.

The Summaries

The summaries of the meet were as follows:

Bill Was Right

Bill had a friend. He told that friend about the delicious candy he had purchased at our store, so naturally—the friend came to us, not with all his doubts cleared away as to our high quality candy, for he was just a little bit skeptical. We were willing to risk his opinion because we were taking no chances. The friend afterwards said to us:—"Bill was right. That candy you sell is certainly some candy. It made a hit." 69c a pound is not a high price for such high quality chocolates—Try 'em and see.
