BWARE OF ANTI-MILITARISM!

For some time past, the COLLEGIAN has been receiving literature from a certain organization in the National Capitol which styles itself the "American Union Against Militarism." That this matter has not been printed in the columns of this paper is due mainly to the fact that we believe it to be little short of treasonable. The aim of the Union now is to enroll as many college men and women as possible, but the COLLEGIAN believes that such a move as this on the part of students would be very unwise.

The Union bases its claims for collegiate membership on the failure of the S. A. T. C. And yet, did the S. A. T. C. really fail? While it had many bad points, apparently many more than its good ones, it must nevertheless be remembered that the Student's Army Training Corps saved the American colleges. With the passage of the draft law lowering the age limit to eighteen, virtually every young man was looking forward to an early call to camp. Under such conditions, it was safe to assume that a large number of colleges and universities would have had to close down for lack of students. Thus the S. A. T. C. undoubtedly prevented.

Then, again, this movement was inaugurated to provide a reservoir, from which material for officers' training camps could be drawn. Let us remember that twice a call was made upon Penn State and twice Penn State responded. And when the war was brought to a close by the signing of the armistice, a much larger contingent of Blue and White students were preparing to leave for officers' camps. In view of the foregoing statements, we cannot say that the S. A. T. C. really failed at Penn State.

The college membership card sent out by this anti-militaristic organization has on its reverse side a cartoon of a father, mother and son. The reading matter explaining it says:

"Why! What has made our hero a Bolshevik?" "Oh, chiefly the Student's Army Training Corps." We wonder if this means that every one who was in the S. A. T. C. is now a Bolshevik. If it does, the Union certainly need not expect many members among the students of American colleges.

Penn State has been a military institution since about the time of the Civil war. Every male student enrolled in a four or two-year course is compelled to take four semesters of military work. And it is undoubtedly due to this preliminary military training that such a large number of Penn State students were enabled to qualify as officers during the recent world struggle. Which is another point against the "American Union Against Militarism."

Finally, no student will join any organization whose chief official is a radical, a pacifist, and a defender of Bolshevism. These are the characteristics, however, which apply to Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the New York Nation, and chairman of the Union. It was only last Saturday that Villard, before six hundred members of the American Academy of Political and Social Science in session at Philadelphia, declared that in his opinion and that of other men in Europe, Lenin was the ablest statesmen in Europe today; that the "reds" are being treated too rudely and should not be so repressed by mobs of uniformed men nor should they be deported; and that the soviet government would be a good thing for America.

So, beware of the "American Union Against Militarism."

LET'S BE THERE!

During the unsettled days of the S. A. T. C. last fall, when the students were sadly in need of some kind of entertainment, the Senior girls decided to put on a play in "doing their bit" for the boys. It will be remembered that on the night set for the performance, the Engineering Building burned to the ground, leaving the college without light or heat and causing great unrest among the students.

A vacation was necessary and the women students were to leave by noon of the next day. Yet under those trying conditions, the Senior girls decided to give their play on the morning before they left, and it is the belief of the COLLEGIAN that they helped more than anything else in restoring the morale of the student body.

Saturday night, these Senior girls are giving another play in order to raise some money for their class fund. The play itself will be well worth seeing, and the COLLEGIAN believes that the students should not miss this opportunity of showing their appreciation for what was done last fall. Let's be there!

WHY NOT REORGANIZE THE FIRE DEPARTMENT?

The following communication regarding the student fire department at Penn State has been received, and the COLLEGIAN believes that the matter therein discussed is worthy of attention. The article in its entirety follows:

"Several years ago the students at Penn State organized a fire department as there was but one company in the village, which was not considered adequate for both the college and the town. Therefore, those interested secured a chemical apparatus which was housed in the basement of the library.

"Up to the beginning of the last college year, the department was well organized but it was not until the middle of that year that it was again organized and then only a few members could be recruited. Fortunately for the college there were no fires during that year or perhaps they would have been extremely disastrous.

"During the beginning of the present college year, the college was under the control of the S. A. T. C. and we did have a fire which due to the inefficient organization of the fire-fighting department proved to be very costly to Penn State.

"Now as good loyal students of Penn State, we should again organize our fire department, and have it fully trained and ready to meet any emergency. Let us get busy and boost this matter and have results."

The two amendments to the Honor System, proposed recently, were submitted to the Freshmen this morning and they will come before the upperclassmen tomorrow morning in chapel for approval or rejection. Each man's duty is clear. For the strengthening of the Honor System and for the good name of old Penn State, let us all vote "YES!"

The COLLEGIAN believes that the Student Council acted wisely in deciding not to have a "Moving-up Day" this year. As has been said, it seems that the one week's taste of the next class higher up seems to take away all the joy and anticipation which a student has in looking forward to returning the next fall as a member of that class.

On the Corner

WE WONDER WHY WE FEEL SO LAZY

This week we felt sort of lazy and without ideas, so we just shut our eyes and let the keys of the typewriter run on their own account. When we opened them, (our eyes, not the keys), this is what we read:

WE ONCE knew a Freshman Who had Never been to MacFall Or up to the Woman's Building or to Any Other Female Inn on the College Campus. Who Vowed when he got to be a Sophomore he was Going to See the Ladies every Blessed Night in the Week.

BUT NEXT year When he was a Hard Soph One who surpasses hardboiled Eggs He said he was too Busy with the Freshmen Keeping them in the Straight and Narrow Path And he'd wait until he was a very dignified Junior Before he would Follow in the Footsteps of young Lochinvar

HIS JUNIOR Year came And he tried to Set up his courage But it Seems he couldn't Sew it high Enough And he Thought his Studies Kept him pretty Busy So he Planned to just go through his Senior Year On his reputation and incidently Follow out the Plans Which he made when he was only a Member of the Green Dink Clan

HE RETURNED a Senior And Full of Ambition to visit All the well-known Haunts of the Campus And how he Dreamed and Dreamed and Planned And just the Night before Commencement he called Up a Dame on the Phone for a Date but Unfortunately She had a Date that Night and said she was very Sorry

So he didn't get that Date, and so from all the foregoing Facts About all the Trips to these Gentler Habitations we are Led to believe that he did not go

MORAL: Start early young man, even if you do get a hair-cut May Sixteenth!

SOPHOMORE'S WIN FIRST INTERCLASS LACROSSE GAME The Sophomore lacrosse team won its first game in the interclass lacrosse league when it defeated the Freshman team Saturday afternoon on New Beaver field. Neither team scored until the second half, when the 1921 men scored two goals while the Freshmen gained but one. Campbell, Miller and Jennings played best for the Sophomores, and Breiner did well for the 1922 men.

FOUNDATION COMPLETED FOR ENGINEERING "C"

The foundation for the new Forge and Machine Shop Unit has been completed and the masons are now ready to begin work. This new unit will have a small basement for the storage of raw stock. The Forge Shop will be located on the ground floor, towards College Avenue, and will have no overhead piping as the distributing lines to the forge and the smoke flues will be laid below the concrete floor. The other half of the first floor will be devoted to the Machine Shop. It will contain the new equipment consisting of motor driven lathes, planers, shapers, milling machines and other apparatus, practically all of which will be of the latest type. Some of the older machines which went through the fire have been found in condition warranting repair. These are being rebuilt at the present time and will be ready for service next fall.

On the second floor there will be located two offices, a chipping and filing room and recreation rooms. On the third floor there will be a large drafting room and offices for the Department of Engineering Drawing which will be transferred from Engineering D. This will provide space on the third floor of Unit D for the new electrical laboratory for Sophomores in electrical assembly and installation—a combination of the Freshman course inaugurated this year.

GLEE CLUB TO RENDER CONCERT AT ALTOONA

In order to fill its engagements with credit, the glee club, under the direction of Professor Huff, has been practicing hard and feels able to make a creditable showing when it appears. The entire organization of about thirty members and a leader will make the trip to Altoona on May sixteenth and it is quite probable that another concert will be rendered on the next night, Saturday, May seventeenth, at Birmingham. The only other appearance of the club scheduled at present is the one here on the Saturday night of commencement week when it will give a concert in connection with the mandolin club.

The work of the mandolin club has gradually been assuming greater proportions and R. B. Hecht '20, who has been the leader in trying to arrange a trip to be held in the near future. The only engagement at present is the one at commencement with the glee club.

Y. M. C. A. WILL ATTEND DICKINSON CONFERENCE

The Y. M. C. A. Officers Training Conference will be held at Dickinson College, Carlisle, May ninth, tenth, and eleventh, at which Penn State will be represented by a committee of about twelve men, including Secretary Doner. This conference is of special importance to men who expect to engage in Y. M. C. A. activities and will be of great benefit to next year's cabinet.

Another intercollegiate conference of great importance will be held at Northfield, Massachusetts, from the twentieth of June to the thirtieth, which all eastern colleges are invited to attend. Most of the large institutions are sending delegations and the indications are that Penn State will not fall behind in the size of her representation. Many of the greatest men of public affairs will deliver addresses and the conference will be of great benefit to every man who can possibly attend it. Any student who is desirous of going with the Penn State delegation should speak to W. L. Eisler '19 or Secretary Doner and receive more explicit information regarding the arrangements.

STUDENTS APPROVE A. A. AMENDMENTS

The amendments to the constitution of the athletic association, which were suggested several weeks ago, were voted upon by the students in the mass meeting last week and were passed without revision. These new rulings are as follows:

"The minor sports shall be wrestling, basket-ball, lacrosse, soccer-football, tennis and boxing." "The major sport 'S' shall be awarded to any member of the varsity boxing squad who shall win his bout in an intercollegiate boxing tournament." "The minor sport 'B' shall be awarded to any member of the varsity wrestling squad who has participated in at least one half of the regularly scheduled meets, and "The minor sport 'W' shall be awarded to any member of the varsity wrestling squad who has participated in at least one half of the regularly scheduled inter-collegiate wrestling tournament."
