

PENN STATE GRADUATES OPEN HOSPITAL HERE

Doctors Grover C. Glenn '06, and William S. Glenn, Jr., '11, in Charge of Building

For a long time the need of an adequate hospital in this vicinity has been felt by both students and townspeople. Foremost among the advocates of this idea were Doctors Grover C. and William S. Glenn, Jr. At last, the plans have materialized and at present the town of State College boasts of a hospital which is thoroughly equipped for all purposes of surgery and is the neatest and most efficient small-sized institution of its kind in the state.

The hospital is located on West College avenue, the site being the former Kapp mansion. The building is large and commodious throughout and is constructed of the very finest material outside and within. It contains many large windows, and is almost totally surrounded by large airy porches. The building is set up on a terrace and presents a very pleasing aspect. It has been very thoroughly equipped with modern apparatus and includes a complete X-Ray outfit for both fluoroscopic and radiographic work.

The plans for this hospital have been taking shape for the past six years. However, it was not possible to promote the enterprise any sooner than it has come about. The war caused the matter to be dropped, since Dr. William S. Glenn, Jr., enlisted in the army and after a brief period spent in the camps in this country was sent to France where he spent two years in hospital work. Later Dr. Grover C. Glenn also responded to the call, gave up his large practice here and performed his duty in this country. However, both took up the matter of the hospital again, and it was pushed until the matter was successfully launched.

The Doctors Glenn are both graduates of Penn State, Dr. G. C. Glenn completing his course in 1906, and Dr. W. S. Glenn, Jr., graduating in 1911. Both attended medical college after finishing at this institution. They have both had a sufficient number of years of training in the various types of surgical work to merit their operating this hospital successfully. Their sister, Miss Anna Glenn, also a Penn State graduate, class of 1913, is associated with them as dietitian. She has had considerable hospital experience at the Metropolitan Hospital, New York, and at the Blair Memorial Hospital at Huntington. There are also at present two graduate nurses connected with the hospital, namely Miss Bess Hoy, who beside other hospital experience was in the service at Camp Lee during the war; and Miss Helen Luse, a graduate of the New Kensington Hospital.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Doctor Isao Tamamura, a prominent Japanese gentleman and investigator, who will visit the United States during the month of December, will include Penn State among the list of colleges which he will visit. Doctor Tamamura is a member of three different Japanese commissions representing the departments of agriculture and war. He conducts a private agricultural experiment station of eight hundred acres in Japan and is most closely identified with the official life of his country. He was a guest of the college several years ago. While here, he will deliver a lecture on Japanese agriculture, illustrated with numerous colored slides.

Doctor T. E. Finegan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has called an Educational Congress to meet in Harrisburg during the week of November sixteenth. Dean Watts will speak on "How to Make Better Farmers of Pennsylvania Farm Boys".

Penn State will be well represented at the International Stock Show, which will be held in Chicago from November twenty-ninth to December sixth. The exhibits from the college will include fifteen head of cattle, forty head of hogs, and fifty sheep, which will be shipped about November twenty-first. Guy C. Smith, Director of Markets of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will lecture at Penn State on December fifth, under the auspices of the Agricultural Society. Mr. Smith is one of the most prominent and best informed market experts in the country.

The Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations held its convention in Chicago, from November eleven to fourteen. Representatives from Penn State included Dean Watts, of the School of Agriculture and Director M. S. McDevell, of the Experiment Station. Dean Watts was scheduled to speak on "The Necessity of Additional Federal Aid for Agricultural Experiment Work."

Professor Tomhave, Head of the Department of Animal Husbandry, has recently been appointed the Eastern Representative of the National Federation of Cooperative Livestock Shippers. He will represent all the territory east of Ohio.

Professor H. H. Hayner has been appointed as a member of a committee of three which will act as proxy committee for the entire membership of the Percheron Breeders' Association in the United States. This organization will meet in Chicago during the International Livestock Show.

A series of ten conferences throughout the state has just closed, held by the officers of the various farm bureaus under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension Department. The object of these meetings was to discuss the basis for the work to be carried on by the counties next year.

Home Economics Extension workers throughout this state held a meeting here Monday and Tuesday of this week to adopt a program for future activities.

The college dairy herd has recently been tested for tuberculosis. Indications show that the herd is free from this disease. In this connection, the patrons of the college creamery are assured of a pure and sanitary supply of dairy products, since the college herd is not only free from disease but additional measures for the safety of the products are taken in the thorough pasteurization of all milk and cream both for direct consumption and for the manufacture of ice cream and butter.

PENN STATE SOCCER TEAM DOWNS LEHIGH

Blue and White Eleven Has Little Difficulty in Making Six Goals—Visitors Shut Out

The Blue and White's trio of Pennsylvania Day athletic victories over Lehigh was started in the morning by a six to nothing victory for the soccer team. The game was played on the soccer grounds on the south end of New Beaver Field before a crowd of a few hundred visitors and students.

Penn State won the toss and took as their choice the upper goal. The sphere was started in motion by the Brown and White representatives, and the team work on both sides was a feature of the game. At first Penn State's goal would be in danger and then the ball would go down the field to threaten Lehigh's goal, but neither side had the punch to score. On one of these occasions Meerkle, the center forward for the big blue team collided with R. Claxton and the visitor was out for the count. The game was soon resumed with the original twenty-two men.

The scoring was opened up when Traphoner, in the middle of the first half dexterously drove the ball past the goal keeper and tallied the first point for Penn State. This put more pep into the Blue and White team and directly from the next kick-off Grupp added another point to the score.

The visitors then stiffened their defense and the playing continued for ten minutes with neither side obtaining the advantage. Then Traphoner suddenly seemed to appear on the scene and at the same time delivered the kick that made the score three.

The second half started with more dash than ever, but each time the Lehigh toe artists carried the leather toward their goal one of the opposing team would intercept it and consequently the visitors were unable to score.

Meerkle led off on the scoring for the second half followed by Grupp and Traphoner. In the last minutes of play, Meerkle after an exciting struggle for the possession of the leather rolled it across the goal, but it brought only a free kick for one of the Brown and White men had committed a foul before it had crossed the line. The kick failed and the game ended with a score of six to nothing.

FRESH-SOPH WRESTLING SCRAP IN DECEMBER

Under the direction of Coach "Doc" Lewis, the Freshman and Sophomore candidates are rapidly rounding into shape. Every evening the first and second year men meet at the armory and try their skill on the mats. The coach is very well satisfied with the progress so far and expects the approaching Interclass scrap to be one of the most hotly contested in recent years.

Beginning this week all the candidates are expected to show an increased amount of ability and those who display the most progress will take part in the trials to be held in about two weeks. The annual Freshman-Sophomore scrap will be held some time in December, probably on the thirteenth. The present Sophomore class is the only class that in their Freshman year ever defeated the second year men. Indications it looks as if they will gain a victory over the class of '14. The meet between these two classes will be followed by the Interclass which will take place some time in January.
