EDDY, THE MAN AND HIS MESSAGE

Sherwood Eddy comes here as the most capable student leader in America at the present. His past experience both in America and other parts of the world fit him admirably to bring Penn State the message of the changing world. He comes here with as little dogma or creed as is consistent with his message. A straight-forward rational faith which is adequate to the needs of the present day is what Eddy hopes to put across to the students.

Eddy comes here at his own expense, asking no return for his time and effort. His desire is to help the men of Penn State to find themselves in their proper relation to their fellowmen, the needs of the world and their God. Sherwood Eddy is giving four days of his time to come to Penn State. Is it asking too much that every student gives at least time to attend all meetings? That time spent in return for four days is not asking too much.

It would be folly to ask that men accept the message of Eddy without serious thought. To force his message on an audience which is not in an open minded attitude is not what Sherwood Eddy wishes. All that he asks is that men come to the meetings without any prejudices, willing to accept the evidences that he presents. The mere acceptance of the evidence without any consideration or serious thought is not wanted. Think seriously and if it will prove adequate to your problems, accept it.

The natural question at this time is, "What is the real object of the Eddy campaign?" The answer has three phases; the first is to make known the dynamic power of Jesus Christ as the moulder of men's lives and as the guiding power in the world. The second objective is to strengthen in our lives the belief in and the practice of prayer. The last aim is that through a knowledge of Christ in our lives, to be able to solve our personal problems and to do our best in Penn State and the world.

Evidence from previous campaigns indicates that there will be a higher plane of moral standards at Penn State. The least that any man can do is to turn out to these meetings and accept them in the spirit of open-mindedness.

THE HONOR SYSTEM AMENDMENTS

The COLLEGIAN wishes to take this opportunity to bring before the students of Penn State the amendments to the Honor System, which were proposed last week. It also wishes to state that it believes implicitly in them, that they will give added strength to the system, and that they are necessary for the successful working of the system at Penn State. Election will be held within the next two weeks.

Article 1, Section 5, which at present reads, "If a student detects any dishonesty in a quiz or examination, he shall at once quietly inform the offending party of the detection. Should the offender persist, the attention of at least one other person shall be called to this matter, and then the case shall be carried to the Honor Committee, which shall conduct an investigation into the same", has been changed to read as follows: "If a student detects any dishonesty in a quiz or examination, the attention of at least one other person shall be called to this matter, and then the case shall be carried to the Honor Committee, which shall conduct an investigation into the same."

Article 3, Section 1, now reading "Composition—The Honor Committee shall consist of the vice president of the Senior class, who shall act as chairman; two other Seniors, two Juniors and one Sophomore. The members shall be elected by the Student Council. There must be at least one member on the committee who has served during the preceding year" will read; "Composition—The Honor Committee shall consist of three Seniors, one of whom shall act as chairman; two Juniors, one Sophomore. The members and the chairman shall be elected by the Student Council. There must be at least one member on the committee who has served during the preceding year."

ERIE HIGH SCHOOL NO MATCH FOR FROSH

With a score of 31 to 14, the yearling engemen easily defeated the Erie High School five last Friday night in the Armory. Some good individual work was done by Stenstrom and Behn, while Hamilton also tallied one basket for the visitors. In the first half, Ray and Koehler caged four baskets for the Froshmen with some very clever shooting. The second period was opened with some return of snap on the part of the visitors, Stenstrom scoring for the visitors in the first few minutes of play, while Ray, Koehler and Marshall rolled up the points for the Penn State men. The line-up: Froshmen: Behn, Ray, Forward—Schonfeld, (Capt) Winner—Forward—Stenstrom, Marshall, (Capt), Center—Behn, Koehler—Guard—Hamilton—Post Carr. Substitutions: Penn State—Haus for Carr, Goals from floor. For State—Ray 4, Marshall, Koehler 4, Carr. For Erie—Stenstrom 2, Behn, Hamilton Goals from floor Marshall, 11 out of 16, Schonfeld, 6 out of 10. Time, 20 minute halves. Referee, Noff, Tyrone.

NAVY BOXING MEET (Continued from first page)

On the heavyweight bout as the last of the tourney, Aiken entered the ring to face Missou. Of Naval football fame Aiken, like Woles, was under a handicap in that he had been forced to for up in his training through illness and was in a weak condition for a contest at the ring game. The Blue and White defender showed resolute effort in the first round but in the second his knees began to sag, and he would have been little more than a punching bag for his sturdy opponent. The referee intervened and declared Missou the winner after one minute of the round had elapsed.

Captain Mabbitt, U. S. A. and Harry Orholm, of the Arundel Boat Club, Baltimore, were the judges, while William H. Roop, sporting editor of the Public Ledger, who refereed the bout with Penn here, acted in the same capacity at Annapolis.

THE LETTER BOX

Dear Sir:—The fellows have got to admit that our co-eds, by the long list of numeral winners in hiking and by the interest shown in winter sports have gotten a little ahead of them when it comes to outdoor sports. Too many fellows go through college and never visit Bear Meadows, Penn's Cave, or explore the Bald Eagles except from a distance. It isn't because they wouldn't like to, so much as the absence of incentive to do so, and lack of proper facilities for camping out.

At Dartmouth, their Outing Club never waits till spring to hike, but takes winter week-end skiing trips to their cabins which the Club has built through the country. Not only has the club improved the physical well-being of Dartmouth's student body, but faculty statistics show that scholarship has profited by these week-end excursions. Beck has spoken of this sort of thing for State and everyone is behind him in it; but, like the weather everyone talks about it, but nobody does anything about it. Why couldn't a Penn State Outing Club be possible here with our unlimited natural points of interest and unsurpassed hiking country? G. E. THOMPSON '21 who played from 1915 to 1917 inclusive, was recognized in his time as one of the most formidable guards in the game. Previous to Blakeslee's time as center for the Blue and White, "Dutch" Adams was center for two years. The other member of the team is "Al" Wilson, who played forward at Penn State during the 1914-1915 season. That each of these men is a star is putting it lightly, Penn State's evident high standing in the Intercollegiate basketball circles being due to the type of work which they have displayed.

The lineup of the teams will undoubtedly be as follows: Alumni, Forwards, Blakeslee and "Al" Wilson; Center, Adams; Guards, Lloyd Wilson and "Ike" Walton. The Blue and White lineup will remain the same as has been seen in action all season.

As a sure winner and for this reason is called "One Minute Swigert". He won his bout against the Penn State representative last year. Pixon in the 145-pound class is one of the fastest men on the team having won all his matches this year. Lewis, who has been out all year, will be back to wrestle in the 155-pound class. He was a substitute last year and a runnerup for the team. Gates in the light heavy-weight class has secured several falls this year and the fact is expressed that he will make his presence known. Wilkie, a football man, is improving rapidly in the heavy-weight division.

and will put up a strong battle against the Blue and White man. The Penn State team, urged by the victory of two years ago and the fact that the team is one of the strongest the institution has put out, will be a good match for the seamen and all the bouts promise to be fast and full of over-confident but merely determined. The team will probably be the same as in the Penn meet with a possible exception of the 115-pound class, 125-pound class and the unlimited class.

The Service of an Electrical Research Laboratory The research facilities of the General Electric Company are an asset of world-wide importance, as recent war work has so clearly demonstrated. Their advantages in pursuits of peace made them of inestimable value in time of war. A most interesting story tells of the devices evolved which substantially aided in solving one of the most pressing problems of the war—the submarine menace. Fanciful, but no less real, were the results attained in radio communication which enabled an aviator to control a fleet of flying battleships, and made possible the sending, without a wire, history-making messages and orders to ships at sea. Scarcely less important was the X-ray tube, specially designed for field hospital use and a notable contribution to the military surgical service. And many other products, for both combatant and industrial use, did their full share in securing the victory. In the laboratories are employed highly trained physicists, chemists, metallurgists and engineers, some of whom are experts of international reputation. These men are working not only to convert the resources of Nature to be of service to man, but to increase the usefulness of electricity in every line of endeavor. Their achievements benefit every individual wherever electricity is used. Scientific research works hand in hand with the development of new devices, more efficient apparatus and processes of manufacture. It results in the discovery of better and more useful materials and ultimately in making happier and more livable the life of all mankind. Booklet, Y-863, describing the company's plants, will be mailed upon request. Address Desk 37
