DARTMOUTH TEAM WILL BE STRONG

Big Green Team Has Fast Backfield and Heavy Line—Winger Positions Cause Concern.

With what is believed to be the biggest and hardest game of the year, for both participants, scheduled to take place on New Beaver Field this coming Saturday, Penn State and Dartmouth are making great preparations for the event. It is felt that the kind of team which will come from New Hampshire to compete with the Blue and White eleven, and all indications point to it being the strongest which has represented the Amherstites for some years.

Dartmouth inaugurated its 1920 football season last Saturday with a victory over Norwich. The big green team was held to a 13 to 0 score last year by the Norwich eleven, and the team lost but a few men by graduation, their team this year being practically as strong as before. The fact that the Hanover team defeated them by a 31 to 9 score this year shows that the Green and White have an even stronger team than the one which faced the Penn State varsity last year. Added to this is the fact that their star performer, Captain Robertson, was out of the game and many substitutes were used.

The Big Green team is really a great team this year. The backfield and line is unusually heavy, several men tipping the scales at more than a hundred pounds. Coach Spear's is giving the team a strenuous period of practice, having them out in all kinds of weather. A recent practice gave them opportunity for a ball when the wet and for carrying it on a muddy field, so that they will be prepared for any sort of field and day. Outside of a slight injury to Robertson, which will be healed in time for him to get into the game with Penn State, and Schickel, who will be out for some time, the team is in good condition. Coach Spear is being assisted in coaching by Assistant Coach Harry Hillman and P. W. Lowden, All-American end of several years ago. The wing positions are living the most concern and the coach is working with the nine men out for the remainder of the term. These men will do much to make the cross country, season attractive and interesting and it is hoped that a large number of them will be in the regular varsity team which will accompany the team to Philadelphia where it will attempt to repay the Quakers for their victory last year. The sixth of November is still an open date for the team, and it is expected that the team will take its second trip with the football squad and will meet the Lehigh hurlers. Last year the Bethlehem distance men appeared on the Penn State course on Pennsylvania Day and were defeated by a substantial score, and the Blue and White will attempt to repeat the victory. The last meet of the season will be on Thanksgiving Day, when Carnegie Tech will be met at Pittsburgh. This meet will be a fitting complement to the 1920 season as the field runners bid fair to offer stiff opposition to the Nittany men.

COMPETITION TIGHTENS ON FRESHMAN SQUAD

Strong Rivalry Shown Among Backfield Candidates — Team Scores on Varsity.

The Freshman football squad went into action with the varsity last Wednesday afternoon in practice. The yearlings compared with the Varsity eleven but they were quite inexperienced and were not up to the standard of the Freshman halfbacks who were largely instrumental in this, getting away from the varsity for several long runs; one of forty-five yards resulting in a touchdown.

The two yearling teams are largely the same as announced last week. Between the two backfields there is little to choose. They are made up as follows—Patton, quarterback, Wilson and Carson, halves, and Cornwall full; the other is Rathgeber, quarterback, Palm and Singer, halves, and Tittel, fullback. These two quartets are running neck and neck and it will be a lively race that decides who shall make up the regular Freshman eleven. The quarterbacks are about on a par, both Patton and Rathgeber doing equally good work, and there is not much to choose between the halfbacks. Cornwall and Tittel are not quite so evenly matched. The latter is a splendid and speedy player but he does not have quite the aggressiveness of Cornwall.

Coach Herman has been giving the Freshman some strenuous practice the past week. The first two days were devoted to scrimmage practice between the two yearling elevens and on Wednesday they furnished opposition for the varsity. This day's work was highly satisfactory to the Freshman coach and to Beadke, who intimated that the Freshman were coming along very well. The following day weather conditions prevented outdoor work so the men were given a blackboard talk instead. The biggest thing that the first year men have to learn is to become familiar with the plays and the signals. Saturday was devoted entirely to this. Individually the Freshman have a lot of players but they have yet to learn to work as one unit. The signals and the plays are the main things that they have to master.

FEATURE EVENTS FOR CROSS COUNTRY SEASON

Plans Made to Revive Old Custom of Handicap Races Open to all Students.

The Cross Country season at Penn State for which many candidates are now practicing regularly, will include several intercollegiate meets, a class scrap, and very probably the revival of an old feature in connection with this sport, a series of handicap cross country races which will be open to all students. Three meets with other institutions have been arranged by Manager Church, and others are under consideration. Pennsylvania Lehigh and Carnegie Tech are now on the leaders' schedule and these alone make up a difficult program for the distance team. Manager Church will also be in on activities in this sport within the college itself.

The first cross country event of the fall will be the annual class scrap between the Freshmen and the Sophomores. The contest this year promises to be unusually keen as both classes contain a wealth of material. It will be remembered that last year the class scrap was won by the 1923 runners, who led their 1922 opponents by a comfortable margin at the close of the race. Handicap Meet.

One of the most interesting features of the season will be contained in a series of two handicap cross country races. If the plans now being made are realized, the custom grew up some years ago but has died recently, and a strong effort will be made to re-establish it this year. On the twenty-third and thirtieth of October, there will be handicap cross country races open to all students, whether members of the squad or not. Every entrant will run the whole course of something over four miles, but those men who are on the squad or who are known to have special ability will leave the course minutes after the start. It is expected that it is very probable that attractive prizes will be donated to the winners of these races by the merchants and business men of the town who have been doing the best in former years some of the prizes competed for were of novel character, such as clothes pressing for the entire year or free entrance to a theatre for the remainder of the term. These races will do much to make the cross country, season attractive and interesting and it is hoped that a large number of them will be in the regular varsity team which will accompany the team to Philadelphia where it will attempt to repay the Quakers for their victory last year. The sixth of November is still an open date for the team, and it is expected that the team will take its second trip with the football squad and will meet the Lehigh hurlers. Last year the Bethlehem distance men appeared on the Penn State course on Pennsylvania Day and were defeated by a substantial score, and the Blue and White will attempt to repeat the victory. The last meet of the season will be on Thanksgiving Day, when Carnegie Tech will be met at Pittsburgh. This meet will be a fitting complement to the 1920 season as the field runners bid fair to offer stiff opposition to the Nittany men.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY GIRL STUDENTS

Y. W. C. A. Class and Athletic Association Officers Chosen for the Year.

In order to acquaint Penn State students of the various activities with which the women of the college are connected, the COLLEGIAN is publishing the list of girl student class and association officers, for this college year.

Through the blanket tax system introduced this year, every girl at Penn State contributes one penny toward the support of her own class and the following organizations: The Women's Student Government Association, Women's Athletic Association, Orpheus Club and Girls' Golf Club.

Funds allotted to the Student Government Association pay for Penn State's membership in the Intercollegiate Vocational Guidance Association, for delegates expenses at conventions, and for celebrations such as the annual Old English Christmas party and the May Day Fete. The Athletic Association provides trophies and equipment for the various sports. The Girls' Golf Club plans to furnish books of college songs for the use in the dormitory parlors, and the Orpheus Club spends its appropriation both for music and musical instruments.

CAST FOR "ANDROcles" SELECTED BY PLAYERS

New Names Appear on List of Characters for Pennsylvania Day Play.

With the choosing of Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" and the commencement of rehearsals for this play, which will be presented during the Pennsylvania Day week end, the Penn State Players have started their active work for the year. From a great number of candidates who tried out for parts in this well known satire, a cast has been selected that will no doubt do credit to the play, to the Players' organization and to the college. Since the cast, which was held last Tuesday night, great interest has been manifested in the rehearsals by those who made the cast, and this interest is reflected in the rapid progress that has resulted. While most of those who will take part in the presentation of "Androcles and the Lion" are former members of the year, they are showing up well so far.

The cast of principle characters follows: Androcles—H. A. Mollinger '22. The Lion—R. H. Hoffman '23. Megara—C. B. Hamilton '22. The Centaur—Raymond G. Adams '21. The Centurian—W. M. Hinnerman '21. Lavinius—Miss Sara Keeper '22. Terroilus—Alfred Pond '21. Terroilus—W. C. Schultz '22. The Call Boy—C. McCulloch '23. The Menagerie Keeper—L. F. Rothrock '21. Cressar—H. E. Taylor '21. Spintho—R. H. Hoffman '23. Scaevola—Raymond G. Adams '21. The Editor—D. R. Crato '23. A special attraction is being planned in connection with the performance of a "rehearsal play." This will be a short Irish play called "The Land of Heret's Desire." The cast of this play which will be given under the direction of Mr. Arthur P. Deering, of the Department of Public Speaking, has not been announced as yet.

BISHOP W. F. McDOWELL TALKS ON REPENTANCE

Temptation and Repentance are Themes of Noted Ecclesiastic in Sunday Addresses.

Reverend William F. McDowell, Bishop of the Washington area of the Methodist church, delivered two of the best sermons at the chapel service last Sunday that the students of this college have ever heard. The subject of his lecture was "The Law of Repentance." He chose the subject of repentance at the first service while his second sermon was on temptation.

"If you lay your emphasis upon selfishness and upon obedience and upon trust, and upon loyalty, the devil will love and the angels of manhood and womanhood and of the power to uplift will come and minister to you." Bishop McDowell said in his text, the fourth chapter of Luke, the first to the fourteenth verses, where Christ had been in the wilderness for forty days and was tempted by the devil. He said that a piece of literature must be interpreted for what it contains and not for what it is supposed to contain. The text is a principle of human life and not a story of vulgar temptations. The story of the temptations came to Jesus at a high level and they are bound to come to others in this way. He then outlined the temptations and the dangers that Christ faced as he refused to commit himself to the devil. He had the power to bring those things to pass which the devil had requested but it was a question of how he was to do it. This was answered in three other verses which were asked, "How will you use your power?" "How will you use God's promises?" "How will you win your world, perform your mission?" The first of these three questions was addressed to service. "If you determine that you will use your power to your own advantage, and not to that of the world, you are increasing selfishness, which was what Christ and your spirit will shrivel up. Doubtful is the man that must try fundamental."

FORMER STUDENT VISITS PENN STATE

"Sam" Dean '12 Making Investigation of Modern Machinery Installed at College.

The Chinese want American manufactures. This was the main theme of the interview that Samuel Dean, Penn State '12, now Supervisor of Industrial Education at the Chinese National Teachers College, Peking, China, granted to a COLLEGIAN representative. Mr. Dean is here at the college to inspect the modern equipment that the Department of Engineering has installed in the new engineering units particularly the machine shops, the woodworking shops, and the engineering experiment station. He had several conferences with the heads of departments in the engineering schools and obtained much valuable information about the latest methods and engineering processes from Professor Knutze of the Department of Industrial Engineering, Professor Wood of the Engineering Experiment Station and Professor Davis, Director of the Extension Courses. These men have taken quite an interest in the Chinese work and have agreed to furnish the foreign colleges represented by Mr. Dean with all the latest information and development along engineering and teaching lines as they come up from time to time.

Mr. Dean said that the recent boycott of all things Japanese by the Chinese swept that country bare of all Japanese goods and that now the United States and Great Britain are the only nations with which the Chinese will trade to any extent. These two countries cannot supply the needs of the huge Chinese population, however, and the Chinese are now turning to the manufacture of their own goods. The six colleges which Mr. Dean represents in this country have united their various technical schools under one head and are organizing a factory in which the students can get practical shop experience and at the same time can turn out manufactured goods most needed by the Orientals. This factory is well under way at the present time and is now producing woolen cloth in one branch and in another is turning out pressed metal and machine shop products.

SOCCER MEN TO MEET STRONG EASTERN TEAM

Crack Haverford Team Expected to Offer Stiff Opposition—More Games Being Arranged.

With one of its most important games as a head attraction, the Penn State soccer team will open its season here on Saturday morning, the Haverford College team having been scheduled to furnish the opposition. The prospects for a successful team are very bright as the material on hand is as good as can be desired and the coming game, which will be played at ten-thirty o'clock, should furnish some revelations for those who attend.

BRADFORD COUNTY CLUB HELD FOR WOMEN

In order to promote better acquaintance among women of the faculty and women members of faculty families, the wives of the deans of the college, cooperating with Dean Knutze are planning four informal afternoon parties in the parlors of the Women's Building. The meetings will be held in October, November, January and February, the first one taking place on Thursday afternoon, October seventh. Some of the personal invitations may have been overlooked, but the hostesses desire through the columns of the COLLEGIAN to welcome every faculty member's wife, mother, sister.

MACHINE BREAKDOWN

Due to a breakdown on the Linotype machine at the plant of the local printing concern, the Tuesday issue of the COLLEGIAN is forced to come from the press late for the first time this year. The new Linotype machine which is fitted a few days ago has not yet been installed and so all work is being done on the old machine.
