HOW ABOUT THAT SUBSCRIPTION

Penn State students evidently do not appreciate the work being done by the COLLEGIAN board in publishing the paper twice a week this year. This fact is forcibly brought out by the meager subscription list that we have this year. But a little over 1100 students have taken subscriptions and some of these are yet unpaid. This has been one of the many difficulties which have been confronted by those publishing the paper this year and should be the least. However, the stand taken has shown that it is one of the largest and that some remedy should be had. Previous COLLEGIAN boards have published the paper but once each week and then the ratio of subscriptions to the number of students in college has been greater than it is this year.

Other colleges are more fortunate. Their student publications receive better support. In most cases over half of the students subscribe and a goodly portion of the alumni. In some instances, the subscription percent is almost perfect. There is no reason why this should not be the case at Penn State. The COLLEGIAN board is doing all in its power to produce a paper twice a week and to make it a part of each student's life. The Bulletin was taken up this year by the COLLEGIAN and additional features are being contemplated. Printing expenses are far above what they were last year. The cost of publishing the paper is much more. Paper has risen in price and with all the accessories which naturally fall in this line of work, it has been hard sledding to make ends meet. Yet, in spite of all these price increases, the COLLEGIAN is producing the paper at a price which is really less than it was last year. Last year the paper was issued but once a week and the price was one dollar and a half for the year. This year the COLLEGIAN started a new thing, issued the paper twice a week, and the price is two dollars seventy five cents, in short twenty-five cents cheaper. This deficit, it was thought would be made up by a much larger student subscription. Last spring, when the project was put before the student body for its support, the idea was greeted with pleasure and when asked for an indication of support, nearly every person in the Auditorium at the time raised his hand in assent. However, they have failed to "come through" this year.

The students do not realize the problems that arise in the publication of a paper, especially when so radically a change has been made, as has been the case this year. For a semi-weekly publication many changes must be made in advertising rates and in printing and these changes come slowly. Therefore, in order to make up for the loss of advertising, which must pay a major portion of the cost of publishing, the subscription list is used. And this year it also has fallen down. The COLLEGIAN made the change this year entirely because it would some day bring to Penn State a daily newspaper and because it was felt that Penn State had grown sufficiently to support a semi-weekly publication as it should be supported. If the students still feel that they desire a paper of the size of the COLLEGIAN, and twice a week, then it is most urgent that those who have not subscribed do so at once. One thing is certain. If more subscriptions are not forthcoming, the COLLEGIAN will be decreased in column width, although it will still be published twice a week. SO, DO YOUR PART!

THE MUSICAL

The COLLEGIAN desires to call attention to the second number of the Y. M. C. A. and Department of Music entertainment course. This number is a very commendable one and while not of the same calibre as the New York Players, is the very best in its type. Students who were present for the last concert received an expression of music that was wonderful. They heard music that was meant for persons who understood and who can live the message of the notes in their soul. Many college students are not educated sufficiently in the art to be able to appreciate such work intelligently. They do understand the particular beauty of the music and the remarkable harmony of the players, along with their splendid technique, but the vital, inner meaning is lost. We are none of masters at the art and consequently much of it is far beyond our reach. The Leiter Light Opera Company, however, presents light operatic music that is more readily understood. This is true because the majority of students have seen and heard most of the famous operas and portions are familiar to them. It will be a very good number and should be attended to by as many as can possibly do so.

When Poverty Day is held next fall, the COLLEGIAN hopes that the present Freshman class will not be discourteous enough to do some of the things which were done this year. The matter referred to is the seizing of women and forcing Freshmen to perform in ludicrous fashion before them. In several instances they were women of mature years and elderly women and it was far from pleasant for them to be thus rudely seized and forced to hear the prattings of some half-nude Freshman on his knees. These cases were rare, but nevertheless they existed and it is hoped that they will never occur again. Other cases occurred which were of similar type but not so extreme. Most of the girls were prone to look upon these mild instances as pleasantries, but in the few instances mentioned, they were anything but jokes. If the person who is being entertained is willing to take part in it, then all is well, but when they do not desire to be a party to it then it were far wiser they were let alone.

THE WOOLWORTH TOWER—the tallest office building in the Equator—the largest, the Singer Building—in fact most of the buildings that make up the best known sky line in the world, are equipped with Otis Elevators.
Few people realize the amount of wealth of Manhattan Island that is due to the creation and development of modern vertical transportation by the Otis Elevator Company. New York City could not grow wider hemmed in as it was by the two rivers and the bay. It had to grow skyward.
And now, the Otis Elevators in New York City carry daily more than twice the number of passengers carried by all the traction lines of New York—subway, surface, elevated and railroads.
Nothing short of a book would adequately tell the story of Otis in New York alone.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY TEAM WINS JUDGING HONORS

At the New York State Fair which was recently held at Syracuse, New York, the live stock entries from the Pennsylvania State College carried off distinctive honors. Of the twelve head of cattle entered by the college, four won first honors, one took second place, four, third place; and three, fourth. This was a remarkable showing considering the small number of steers entered and plainly shows that the animals were of a high breed. Penn State's share of the prize money at this exhibition was three hundred and twelve dollars.

At the Eastern States Exhibition which was held at Springfield, Massachusetts on September twentieth, Penn State again won first place securing sixteen first places and twelve second honors besides having three champions and three grand champions. Prize money to the extent of six hundred and forty dollars was also won. This is a great honor and promises to place Penn State as the foremost agricultural college in the East. The stock judging team of the college composed of D. S. Bell '21, W. E. Schouff '21, D. H. Fulton '21, W. H. McNeess '21 and A. L. Tomhave '21 succeeded in carrying off first honors in the stock judging contest. D. S. Bell was second in individual scoring being secured out by F. S. Fletcher of Massachusetts Agricultural College by five points.

The most important stock judging contest of the year will be the Inter-collegiate Stock Judging Contest which will be held at Chicago from November twenty-seventh to December fourth. A class of twenty-eight men are competing for places on a team of five men which will represent Penn State at this exhibition.

FRESHMAN CLASS HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

The first meeting of the class of 1924 was held last Wednesday evening in the Stock Pavilion. "Dick" Rauch, President of the Junior Class was in charge of the meeting and made preparations for organizing the class. The class was present in very near its full force and the meeting was full of life and enthusiasm. C. A. Brumbaugh '21, Chairman of the Student Tribunal addressed the class and explained the meanings of the various questions, making clear to the new men what was being required of each of them. Following a number of announcements the yearlings selected their class yell and the meeting adjourned with the first open exhibition of their new yell.

ARCHITECTS HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

The Architectural Engineering Society met last Tuesday evening in Engineering F, at which time plans were discussed relative to the framing of a constitution. Professor L. Koehler addressed the members on "The Prospects of the Society" while Professor Harris gave an interesting talk on

"The Worth of the Society." After the business session the evening was turned over to the entertainment committee and an amusing program was carried out.

CIVIL ENGINEERS MEET

The Civil Engineering Society held a meeting last Tuesday evening in Engineering F. The regular routine of business was carried out after which a "cider feed" was held.
