

DR. LEINBACH MAKES PLEA FOR LEADERSHIP

In a sermon that was characterized by its force and its excellent rhetorical expression, in fact in one of the most powerful sermons that was ever delivered before a Penn State audience, Dr. Paul S. Leinbach, made an appeal for "leadership" which he addressed to the student body in the regular chapel services last Sunday morning.

death of a martyr as was the case in the early days of Christianity. But even in this day men are dying for their beliefs. The recent war has shown that men would rather die than play the crooked game. Dr. Leinbach is connected with the Near East Relief and has recently been in Europe, Asia, and Africa where he saw men die for their beliefs—where he saw women whose eyes had been put out, boys and girls blinded and hundreds of thousands of Armenians die because they would not say that there is no Christ and pledge allegiance to Mohammed.

Eventful Week In Football History

The middle of November has seen many important games for the Blue and White eleven. Sixteen years ago, November 19, 1904, Penn State defeated Geneva 44 to 0 on New Beaver Field. Although out-generaled, the visitors played a clean-cut, snappy game, which gained the admiration of the spectators.

Fifteen years ago Penn State gained another hard fought 6 to 0 victory over their ancient rivals from Dickinson. The game was played at Williamsport before a crowd of eight thousand. It looked as if the two teams were evenly matched at first. Both eleven displayed wonderful spirit and determination and only a strange, better football on the part of the Blue and White enabled them to win.

carried the ball slowly but steadily down the field to the coveted goal line. Just ten years ago Penn State over-whelmed Dickinson 41 to 7 in one of the hardest and fastest played games ever witnessed at State College. A large Pennsylvania Day crowd attended the spirited contest. The game started in the midst of a driving snowstorm which added "pep" to the game and emboldened the Nittanyites to establish a new record over Bucknell by having a forty point margin.

On the sixteenth of November in 1911 Colgate University was defeated, 19 to 9. In one of the hardest and cleanest games played here in the first half, the Blue and White men were held scoreless while Colgate secured a field goal by a beautiful kick from the forty yard line. In the second half Penn State showed new life and rolled up seventeen points. Captain Verry, the man who did so much to make this a championship game, made two touchdowns himself. The game showed what a powerful eleven he would lead against Pitt the "Thanksgiving" that followed.

Just eight years ago today, the irresistible Nittany scoring machine and invulnerable stone wall defense downed the undefeated Ohio State eleven with a 37 to 0 score. The visitors were completely upset by the fast furious attack and the varying style of play shown by Penn State. A week before the Scarlet and Gray had won the Ohio State Championship and they held the reputation for having invulnerable lines, but today their line crumbled before the powerful Nittany attack.

A fact: All through last season at the Polo Grounds, New York, the Giant's home field, the "fans" in the grandstand as well as the bleachers, bought more Fatimas than any other cigarette.

In one way, at least, smoking is just like eating

THE more rich and delicious a certain food is, the more care people take to avoid eating too much of it—for instance, plum pudding or "sweets."

Similarly, many smokers avoid straight Turkish cigarettes because they are too rich. They contain too much Turkish.

But in turning to part-Turkish or Turkish Blend cigarettes, men often find a disappointing lack of taste, due to too little Turkish.

So naturally, men look for a cigarette containing just enough Turkish. And sooner or later, they "discover" Fatima.

They find that while Fatima contains just Turkish than do straight Turkish cigarettes, it contains more than any other Turkish Blend—in other words "just enough Turkish" to give them that delicious Turkish taste without an over-richness.

Try smoking "just enough Turkish." LIGHTER & MYERS TOBACCO CO.
