PLAYERS MAKE PLANS FOR NEXT OFFERING

Following close on the heels of the successful production of Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion," by the Penn State Players, comes the announcement that this organization has already made plans for its second effort of the year and that active work will commence next week in preparation for the presentation of the popular "Seven Keys to Laidlaw," which was dramatized by George M. Cohan some years ago from the novel of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers.

The play is so well known that it needs no introduction. It enjoyed phenomenal runs in New York City several years ago and has proved extremely popular on the road and on the screen since then. Only recently has it been released for amateur production and the players are very fortunate in being able to secure this clever comedy. It is called a mystery farce and is everything the name implies, a good, clean, thrilling, American farce, filled with wholesome humor and rapid action from start to finish.

The competition for parts on the cast of "Seven Keys to Laidlaw" is open to the entire student body, and all who believe that they possess any talents along dramatic lines are urged by the players to try for positions. Trials will be held next Monday night at eight o'clock in the Old Chapel. Those who desire to try out will be given parts of the play to read and they will be judged by their ability to interpret the various roles. A copy of the play is on the reserved book shelf in the library. It is urged that all candidates read the play before Monday night.

The date for the performance of the players' next offering has not been definitely set as yet, but will be announced in due time. Judging from the large audience that witnessed the production of "Androcles and the Lion," the Penn State Players have staked out on a very successful year, and their showing last week did a great deal to enhance their popularity.

MORE MATERIAL NEEDED FOR LACROSSE SQUAD

A meeting of all under-class lacrosse players was held last Monday night for the purpose of discussing the prospects for the coming season. Manager Jennings gave a short review of past seasons and outlined his hopes for this season. He stated that he was disappointed in the showing made by the first year men, for the number of freshmen who had signed their intention of taking up this sport has been far below the number anticipated.

It was expected that the unusual boom which has attended the opening of the season's work in a majority of the larger colleges of the East would be felt here and the manager has made extensive arrangements to provide efficient and suitable coaching for the first and second year men. Since last Monday afternoon, the varsity men have been out on the field adjoining the gymnasium for the purpose of instructing the lower classes in the fundamentals of this sport.

Because of the fact that so few under-classesmen have reported for practice it has been necessary to postpone the date of the Freshman-Sophomore scrap for a few weeks in order to give ample time for team spirit to become acquainted with the game. The scrap will take place, however, before the Christmas recess. Numerals will be given in this sport as outlined in the Athletic Association regulations which can be found in the Freshman Handbook.

Virginia Girls Next Musical Number

The Virginia Girls, a singing orchestra of six talented musicians, is the next number in the series of entertainments which are being brought to Penn State during the winter season under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Department of Music. Saturday, December fourth is the date set for the initial appearance here of this Southern organization and according to advance information, persons attending the concert will be well repaid, financially as well as artistically, for the time and money expended. Songs typical of the country below the Mason-Dixon Line will form the major part of the repertoire, but the program also promises to be interspersed with the old, melodies which have played upon the heartstrings of the whole nation for the last fifty years. "Swing Me Back to Old Virginia" is one of these types which the organization sings so admirably and which never fails to bring forth unstinted praise from the audience.

The instrumentation of this popular orchestra is musically correct and is of the standard type. This fact, however, does not mean that the entire program is made up of classical compositions. Readings are introduced and delightfully rendered, readings of discourses and style songs find their way between the various selections and for the most part consist of solos and ensemble numbers. Attractive costume numbers are also given and in this way an effort is made to present to the public the kind of entertainment that lingers in the memory.

JUNIOR PROM CHANGED FROM JUNE TO MARCH

At a short meeting of the Junior Class held last Tuesday evening in the Chemical Amphitheater, it was decided to hold the Annual Junior Prom this year on the evening of March the eighteenth of next year. This decision makes a radical departure from the accepted custom of conducting this important social function as the last of the Commencement Week activities. For the past several years, the Prom has been held too late in the year to enable all the members of the two upper classes to attend. In addition to this, it has been held at a time when so many other social events are occupying the students that some attention is distracted from it. These reasons governed the change of the date from June to March for the next affair. The committee which has had charge of deciding the date set the one chosen by the class last Tuesday night because it comes at a time in the college year when most of the students of the Junior and Senior Classes will be able to attend, and when no athletic events and very few social functions will tend to lessen the success. Active preparations for the Prom will be commenced within the next few weeks and every effort will be expended on the part of those in charge to make the dance a success in every way. They should be able to do as they will not labor under many of the difficulties usually attending this event.

HARRIERS LEAVE FOR YALE MEET

Since the collegiates were first held, twenty-one years ago, Cornell has won the event seven times, while Harvard, Yale, and Princeton have each won twice.

Nittany Runners in Good Shape

The varsity harriers who are making the trip include Captain Romig, Studenroth, Snyder, Cooper, Orr, Taylor, Dugan, Edgerton, and Everett. Trials for the intercollegiate were held on the tenth of this month and since then practice has been held steadily. Coach Martin's aggregation is looking up as one of the likely for the championship, regardless of the fact that its intercollegiate activities so far this year have been limited to one meet, with Penn on October thirteenth. In this race, held at Philadelphia, the Blue and White runners decisively beat the Quakers by the score of 19 to 36. The work of Romig, Studenroth, and Orr, the first three to finish, was especially brilliant in the race and attracted the experts to the fine running qualities of Penn State's stars. A second meet was scheduled with Lehigh, which was to have been held at South Bethlehem last Saturday, but this was cancelled.

Freshmen Accompany Varsity.

The yearling harriers have been showing up so well this season that it was decided to enter them in the Freshman event at the intercollegiate. They will be opposed at Yale by the teams of many other institutions, including Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, Lafayette, Massachusetts Tech, Penn, Princeton, Syracuse and Yale. The course will be four miles long, instead of six, which is the length of the varsity course. This will be the second year that a Freshman cross country race has been held at the intercollegiate. Last year, in the first event of the kind, Campbell, of Yale, and Wardwell, of Cornell, were the winning runners.

The trials for the Freshmen who will take part in the race tomorrow were held last Saturday afternoon. It is notable that the first seven men to finish crossed the tape within a little over half a minute. This well demonstrates the fact that the yearling squad is unusually well balanced, and argues well for the first year men in tomorrow's meet. Those who are on the trip are Enck, Wilhelm, Hamilton, Fritz, Warder, Elson, Kepling, Simmons, and Amann.

War Veteran To Address Chapel

J. Davidson Ketchum, a former prisoner of war who is now taking a course at Trinity College, Toronto, Canada, will address both chapel services next Sunday morning. Mr. Ketchum has become widely known since the war through his Bible teachings.

An officer in the Canadian army, Mr. Ketchum was captured in the early part of the war and assigned to a German prison camp. Previous to his being made prisoner, the Bible had never been especially interesting to Mr. Ketchum, but while in prison he borrowed a copy of the New Testament from a fellow prisoner and found it to be "one of the most revolutionary books he had ever read."

He fathered a small group of prisoners together and a study group was formed to see what would happen if a man today carried out the principles and implications of Christ's teachings. Before peace had been declared, the influence of this group of men had spread through the whole camp.

Mr. Ketchum's talk on Sunday will not be about his experiences as a prisoner of war, but of the influence of the Bible on his life and of the influence it should have on everybody's life. At supper time, Mr. Ketchum will meet all Bible discussion group leaders and will relate to them his experiences in coming into contact with, and studying the Bible.

GOOD SUPPORT GIVEN RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Three hundred dollar mark. However, this figure is expected to be raised greatly when all of the captains have been heard from. The work among the school students is resulting in great success and it is hoped that a hundred percent enrollment will be secured in the Junior Red Cross, which embraces public school students. As yet, none of the auxiliary branches of the local chapter, located in the nearby villages and country districts have turned in reports, but the campaign is being carried on vigorously and these chapters are expected to do their share in swelling the total.

A percentage of the funds raised in this fourth Roll Call will stay in the local chapter for the support of such work as the maintenance of the public health nurse and other worthy projects, while a large part of the money will be turned into the coffers of the national organization for use in alleviating the sufferings of humanity in every quarter of the globe.

"My first job was to build a shanty"

"WHEN I got out of school," said the old grad. "I went around all primed to discuss equilibrium of moments or to lay out a high tension system between New York and Chicago."

"But the first thing the boss set me at was to build a shanty. That had me stumped. It didn't seem fair. I'd never had a shanty course at college."

"Still I rolled my sleeves up and started in. At first the thing wouldn't 'jell' at all. The joints didn't stay put. The roof sagged in the middle."

"But I went over my plans and reasoned out the why and wherefore of the trouble on a common-sense basis. I stayed with that job till I had it licked."

"Then I suddenly realized that the biggest thing I had learned at college was not the bits of specific information, but something of much more importance which these had taught me—the ability to think."

No curriculum can include everything you ought to know. Its business is to show you the principles which underlie all knowledge.

So if your ambition is to become a man's size engineer or manufacturer, you must start now to get at the heart of your problems. Visualize how these basic laws can apply to other and vaster work.

Then you'll be ready for whatever new demand comes along, and when your big opportunity comes to carry out some of your visions of great achievement—you'll find the going easier.

HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT TO RESUME TUESDAY DINNERS

The Institutional Class of the Department of Home Economics expects to resume the serving of Tuesday evening dinners beginning November twenty-third at five-thirty o'clock. The hour has been chosen from that used last year in order to permit those attending the dinners to hear Dr. Sparks' lectures. These dinners were very popular last year and no doubt will be well patronized this term. Reservations must be made by noon of the preceding day at the office of the Department of Home Economics. The place of the dinners will be announced in next Tuesday's COLLEGIAN.
