SECRETARY OF LABOR SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT

Hon. W. B. Wilson, Pennsylvania Member of President's Cabinet Comes Here Under Auspices of Mining Society

ENTIRE STUDENT BODY INVITED TO LECTURE

Penn State will have been honored with the visit of two members of the Cabinet of President Wilson within the short space of four months, when the Honorable William Bauchop Wilson, United States Secretary of Labor, addresses the student body tonight in the Schuylkill Auditorium at seven-thirty o'clock. He will speak under the auspices of the Mining Society, and has announced as the subject, "Industrial Peace." There will be no admission charge and everybody is invited to hear the distinguished son of Pennsylvania and prominent Democrat and labor leader who has left his arduous duties at Washington for a brief time to visit this institution.

It was largely through the efforts of Doctor E. S. Moore, Dean of the School of Mining, that Mr. Wilson was induced to visit Penn State and address the student body. As the director of the Department of Labor of this country, which is constantly becoming more and more important and increased importance in our national life and progress, Mr. Wilson is a man much in the public eye today. He is closely in touch with the many problems that confront the industries of this country during the present critical period of post war readjustment. Well qualified through experience, both in private and public life, to speak authoritatively on the subject he has chosen for this evening's lecture, he will bring a message that will be of great interest to every Penn State man and woman.

William Bauchop Wilson was born at Blantyre, Scotland, in April, 1862, and came to this country at the age of ten years, his family moving to this state. He received his education in the public schools of the commonwealth and worked as a miner from 1878 to 1888. In 1888, he became President of the District Miners' Union of Pennsylvania, and in 1890 was elected to the position of Secretary of the United Mine Workers of America. Ten years later he became Secretary and Treasurer of the United Union of Miners, a position which he held until 1908. From 1907 to 1913 he represented the fifteenth district of Pennsylvania in the House of Representatives, serving for one term as Chairman of the Committee on Labor in this body. Since March 21, 1913 he has been President of the United States Secretary of Labor in President Wilson's cabinet, and in September, 1917, he acted as Chairman of the President's Commission to investigate industrial conditions in the mountain regions of the Pacific Coast, and later became President of the International Labor Conference, held during October and November, 1919. Mr. Wilson's home is in Blossburg, Pennsylvania.

INDOOR TRACK MEN FACE BUSY SEASON

Romig and Barron To Be Featured in Mid-Winter Track Classics—Five Meets Planned

With only one month remaining until the opening of the winter indoor track season, the members of the Penn State track team who participate in this branch of the sport are now hard at work in preparation for one of the most complete schedules of its kind arranged for Blue and White athletes. The list of meets which has been tentatively compiled by Manager I. W. Soll, in which this institution will be represented, includes five athletic carnivals of national and international interest. In one of these, the Meadowbrook games Penn State will enter a complete team, while in the others, relay teams or individual competitors, or both, will take part. Prospects for the approaching season look very rosy at the present time, with the names of such men as Romig and Barron and other brilliant performers on the entry lists. The absence of "Larry" Shields is very keenly felt in the track team, but there is a very slight possibility that he will return to college for the second semester and rejoin the squad.

The first meet that appears on the 1921 indoor track schedule is the annual one conducted by the Boston Athletic Club on February fifth. For this occasion Romig has been invited to take part in a special three mile race while Barron has received the invitation to enter the seven and a half mile race. An invitation was also extended to Larry Shields to run in the one mile race, should he be in college at that time. This meet is one of the most interesting ones held in the winter months and attracts wide attention in sporting circles.

Three days later in the date set for the annual Atlantic City Carnivals, he will be represented by a team composed of Romig, Demming, Newcomer, Taylor, Carter, Edgerton and Koppinger. In addition, Romig has been invited to compete in a three mile run, and Koppinger, Noble and Hecker are showing up well in trials, and it is from these men that the entrants in the Quaker City meet will most probably be chosen. It is planned to enter William Grubb in the running broad jump, and Beck in the shot put.

The National Indoor Track Championships of America, will be held in New York City, on Saturday, March nineteenth. Nothing has been decided definitely as to whether Penn State will send representatives, but it is possible that Romig will run in this meet. It will be a disappointment to everyone to know that because of being confined to his home in quarantine, Romig will not be able to take part in the meet of the Wilco Athletic Association at Brooklyn which will be held tonight. He was invited to compete in the three hundred meter race, but his confinement will prevent his participation.

EDUCATORS ATTEND HARRISBURG MEETING

Penn State Delegates Take Active Part in Convention of Pennsylvania Teachers

Penn State was well represented at the seventy-first meeting of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association held in Harrisburg from December twenty-seventh to the thirtieth, having delegates in attendance. Three of these delivered talks before the various conferences which were held to discuss the educational problems of the commonwealth in this number were Mr. N. C. Miller, Superintendent of Engineering Extension, Professor A. E. Martin of the Department of History, and Professor H. G. Drommer of the Department of Psychology. The other delegates from this institution were Dr. E. E. Sparks, Dean Stoddard, Dr. David Allen Anderson, Dr. A. E. Martin, Dr. C. C. Knauss, Professor B. W. Daily, Dr. L. I. Foster, Miss E. P. Chaco, Professor R. G. Bressler, and Professor K. C. Parkinon.

The work of the convention was divided into several groups who held their meetings and came to some conclusion as to the remedy for the existing educational conditions of Pennsylvania. Over two thousand teachers of world wide organizations are scattered in conferences, or about seventy five per cent of the entire number of teachers within the commonwealth. The high lights of the meeting was the outlining of the program that is to be carried out by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, Doctor Thomas E. Finigan, who is well known to Penn State students and who at the present time is the superintendent of the department, discussed this phase and went on to urge several much needed changes in the

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE, 1921

- Sept. 24—Lebanon Valley, at home
- October 1—Gettysburg, at home
- October 8—North Carolina State, at home
- October 15—Lehigh, at home (Alumni Home-coming Day)

- October 29—Georgia Tech, at New York City
- November 5—Carnegie Tech, at home (Pennsylvania Day)
- November 12—Navy, at Philadelphia
- November 24—Pittsburgh, at Pittsburgh (Thanksgiving Day)

Penn State has one of the best 1921 football schedules in the east according to the list of opponents it has arranged today. The grid is somewhat different from the 1920 schedule, covering long standing rivals have been dropped and a number of excellent opponents added, including Georgia Tech, Navy, and Carnegie Tech.

The opening game will be on the season on September 21 with Lebanon Valley and will be played at home. The game with Gettysburg on October 1. These two contests are the only easy games on the entire schedule and the game with the latter will be hotly contested from the showing made this past year. On October 8 the blue and white will be played against the blue and white from North Carolina State who journey to Penn State for the annual gridiron clash and can be expected to offer plenty of opposition. The Alumni Day battle will be played against our time-honored rival from Bethlehem, Lehigh University, who surprised the Blue and White into a 7 to 7 tie in the season just ended. The latter two athletic relations with Brown and White have always been of the best and it is hoped that they will continue.

TENNESSEE CLERGYMAN HAS INTERESTING TOPIC

Dr. John Wesley Hill, Chancellor of Lincoln Memorial University, Is Sunday Chapel Speaker

The Reverend John Wesley Hill, Chancellor of the Lincoln Memorial University of Cumberland Gap, Tennessee, will address both chapel exercises on Sunday morning. He is a clergyman, speaker, and lecturer of world renown, having taken a prominent part in several presidential campaigns of this country and having visited foreign nations at various times in the interests of world wide organizations. He has also played various roles in public affairs as a civic, industrial, and patriotic speaker and as a platform and Chautauques lecturer. Because of the active life which he has led, he is well versed on the serious problems of the day and is fully qualified to speak on them.

NEW POLICIES ADOPTED IN TRAINING WRESTLERS

With the commencement of the new calendar year and the rapid approach of the winter indoor track season, the varsity wrestling squad are now entering the period of intensive training and keen competition in preparation for the hard schedule which faces the Blue and White men. One week from tomorrow the annual intercollegiate wrestling meet will be held in the Armory and this will, in a way, indicate the standard which these men will be required to meet. Trials will commence tomorrow afternoon at one-thirty and extend through the following few days.

In connection with the trials for the interclass meet, Coach Lewis is contemplating a new system for matching the contestants, with a view of getting the best results from the squad as a whole. Instead of employing the usual method of having the entrants draw lots to decide their opponents, the coach will have charge of selecting one of these men to meet the various trial matches. This will prevent the matching of the two most promising candidates in a certain class for the preliminary match, and the consequent elimination of one of these men who will probably go through to the final trials. His idea is to match the weaker and stronger candidates in the preliminary trials, in this way the men will be prevented the early elimination of the strong candidates but also to develop new material in pitting weak men against strong.

Another new policy that will probably be inaugurated in the near future will be that of not conducting the trial bouts for any set length of time. When a trial is made, the men will be expected to wrestle until one shows decided superiority over the other. It is hoped that by taking the stop which element out of the bouts the tendency to stall for time will be partially eliminated. In accordance with the new intercollegiate rules on this sport, two falls will overbalance three decisions in intercollegiate meets, and consequently, it is more essential heretofore that wrestlers work for falls rather than decisions, and it is with this in mind that the new policy outlined above is being planned.

Another reason for adopting such training policies is that during its winter trip the wrestling team will meet the grapplers of Iowa State University and Indiana University under the rules of the western intercollegiate wrestling association. Each contestant will take part in three bouts of six minutes length, and the man having the best two bouts out of the three becomes the winner in his class, which will make it essential to rely as much as possible on his own strength and technique.

Work in all the classes is progressing rapidly at the present time. The squad has reached large proportions in size and Coach Lewis has expressed himself as being more optimistic as to the outcome of the season than he was a few weeks ago. MacMahon, in the heavyweight class is giving evidence of developing into a valuable asset to the squad. The addition of Dotter and Garber to the squad, if they return to college for the second semester as is expected, will bolster the lighter weight considerably, and the prospects for a well balanced team are growing brighter, as also the training period progresses.
