DEVEREUX PLAYERS
SCORE BIG SUCCESS

"Don't Duce" a well known melodramatic sketch by W. E. Gilbert was presented under the auspices of the Penn State Players to a small but appreciative audience in the Auditorium last Tuesday evening. The plot of the play is laid in England about 1650 and has as its theme the story of Don't Duce who, having been disappointed in love, is hidden himself in the little seacoast village of Norfolk. One night two Royalists who are endeavoring to escape from Cromwell's men, enter his house to hide and when they are discovered flee and leave behind a baby which has been intrusted to their care. The baby's presence in the hut completely changes Duce's outlook on life and he resumes his hitherto trade. Sixteen years later the man who left the child in Duce's hut and who in the meantime has come into the possession of a tract of land which includes Duce's forge, comes to the blacksmith's and "accidentally" discovers that Don't Duce is his child. In the end, it is discovered that Don't Duce is really Duce's own child and that the landlady was the man who ruined Duce's life in his youth.

Miss Zinta Graf, as "Doon't Duce" was cast the star of the evening and did a great deal towards making the play the success it was. Her acting was quite above the sort of thing generally seen in such companies and her facial expression was especially worthy of note.

Walter Pilsen who played opposite Miss Graf in the title role is also worthy of note. In the first act as the wretched man who looked upon the world with the dark glasses of his wretched life and later as the village blacksmith whose only desire was to keep Don't Duce near him his interpretation was almost faultless.

The difficult part of the ballad was interpreted by J. B. Southern in a very commendable manner. Mr Southern's part was for the most part comic but when he called for real dramatic action he managed it in a very deserving of note.

Among the other characters of more or less minor parts, Ira Keith, who appeared in the first act as Duce's brother and later as Dorothy's sailor lover, and Edmund Forde, as Sir Jasper Combe of Combe Raven, the villain, received much favorable comment.

The entire cast is given below:

Ripley, a Fisherman J. B. Southern
Marple, Duce's Brother Ira Keith
Reuben Haines, a Sergeant of Horse J. B. Southern Walter Pilsen
Dan'l Duce Edmund Forde
Sir Jasper Combe Edmund Forde
A Sergeant Stanley Traudie
Geoffrey Wins and a Sailor Ira Keith

There is a real need for men in former missionary fields and only a large response of volunteers will be sufficient to carry out the proposed work.

of action from start to finish. No information as to the abilities of King who will fight in the heavy weight class under who will enter the ring when the 145 pound match is announced or the men who will fill the 125 and 150 pound berths could be obtained but it is highly probable that these weights will be taken care of by boys who are of the same calibre as the remainder of the team.

Captain Harlow's Team

The same team which boxed so successfully against Penn last week, with the exception of Cooper, will make the trip to Annapolis, leaving here this morning and returning sometime on Sunday. Vanilla will fill Cooper's place inasmuch as the titanic struggle fought at 155 pounds has dropped below in some of his scholastic studies and will therefore be unable to accompany the team.

Captain Kahlev will fill the 175 pound berth as usual and it is felt here that Harris who defeated him last year will have to extend himself to his fullest ability if he hopes to stop the Blue and White leader. Fisher put up a wonderful fight last Saturday night and should mix things considerably when he meets his opponent of last season.

Vanilla, the Blue and White boxer who appeared in the 125 pound berth in the meet with Springfield and who was reported to have left college for the year, has returned and will be sent in to oppose the middleman in the 175 pound division. Vanilla is a clever boxer but it is calculated that he will have a night opponent when he shakes fists with Captain Jones of the Navy team.

The remainder of the line-up will consist of Atlantic who has appeared this year in two intercollegiate meets. Clark who showed up exceptionally well last week but who lost by a technical knockout over Lucas, the highly touted Penn slugger, and Medlers who scored the sensation of the evening when he took a C. C. C. of Quaker ring fame in less than two rounds.

Recap Will Again Referee

William H. Recap of the Lodge has been practically decided on as the man who will officiate at the match tomorrow. There has been some discussion over the man who will fill this important post but the consensus of opinion seems to indicate that Recap will be the man picked. Two judges will also be present at the inside and will render decisions at the end of the third round. Should the judges disagree, Recap, in case he is selected to officiate, will either order another round or bank the deadlock by awarding the decision. The veteran referee did this last Saturday night and in every case his action was such as indicated that he was entirely unbiased and that he knew the fine points of the game.

DEBATERS OPEN SEASON TONIGHT

Henderson '21, L. B. Stone '21 and J. A. Koenigman '21, K. D. Hart '21 and R. F. Sterner '21 will serve as alternates for Penn State and Dickinson respectively. The Chairman for the meet will be Don Skebket and the judges have not yet been chosen.

The team that will travel to Buckle 10 to defend the negative side of the question will be as follows: W. D. Romig '23, H. C. Kranga '22, G. W. Supplee '22 and R. F. Sterner '22 alternate. The lineup of the opposing team is not known but it will undoubtedly be well balanced and will represent a squad of excellent debaters. Two of the Penn State men, R. S. Adams and W. D. Romig, who speak this evening have never before upheld this institution in intercollegiate debating.

One week from tonight the Blue and White debaters will participate in another three-cornered affair: one team traveling to Pittsburgh to debate with a team from Pitt and the other remaining in State College to meet Colgate. The same question which is to be used this evening will be the subject of debate again next week and will be of lively nature. B. E. Orendorf '22, K. D. Hart '21, G. D. Stoddard '21 and R. S. Adams '23 as alternate will debate at Pittsburgh on the negative side while R. F. Stone '21, L. M. Rankin '22, G. W. Supplee '22 and J. L. Puckett '21, alternate, will uphold the affirmative in the Auditorium against Colgate.

Communications are now going on with other institutions with the idea of scheduling a twenty-four hour tilt between Penn State and some other college of note. There is a strong possibility that George Washington University may be met in such a debate and if so, the Nittany representatives will have a very lively debate on their hands.

The big or little company—which?

WHEN the talk turns to where should a fellow start work, a question arises on which college men naturally take sides. "You'll be buried in the big company," say some. "Everything is red tape and departments working against each other." "Your little company never gets you anywhere," others assert. "The bigger the company the bigger your opportunity." And that seems true—but in a different sense. Not physical size but bigness of purpose should be our standard for judging an industrial organization just as it is for judging a man.

Where will you find this company with a vision?

Whether its plant covers a hundred acres or is only a dingy shop up three flights is on the face of it no indication of what you want to know—is such and such a company more concerned with developing men and ideas than boosting profits at the expense of service?

You must look deeper. What is the organization's standing in the industry? What do its customers say? What do its competitors say? There are industries and there are companies which offer you every opportunity to grow. Spiritually they are as big and broad as the earnest man hopes to build himself. If you are that kind of man you will be satisfied with a company of no lower standards.

Conversely, if you are working for such a big-souled company, the very fact will argue that you yourself are a man worth while. For in business as in social life a man is known by the company he picks.

The electrical industry needs men who can see far and think straight.
