

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE TO BE GIVEN TOMORROW

"Hiking" will be the subject of the lecture tomorrow evening in Old Chapel where Professor L. C. Overholt will address the members of the Outing Club at seven o'clock. Much importance is attached to this meeting because of the particularly interesting subject which Mr. Overholt has chosen. The subject of the lecture is general but will be applied to hiking in the environs of State College. The speaker is an authority on the most advantageous routes to points of interest and he will give a detailed description of the country and its natural beauties. A large number of lantern slides and maps have been provided which will lighten the interest of the lecture.

The Outing Club has increased its membership to the one hundred mark and efforts will be made to increase the number to two hundred in the near future. A nominal fee of fifty cents is charged which is but a trifle compared with the benefits which are derived. All members and prospective members are urged to attend the lecture by Professor Overholt and the committee hopes to attach some new names to the roll at that time.

The hiking contest is now well under way, judging by the number of cards already handed to the committee. The route traveled must be specified while the number of miles traveled will be determined by the committee, which excludes any distance less than ten miles. Chairman "Dick" Rauch has announced that the competition will end on Saturday, May twenty-eighth, when the total number of miles traveled by the contestants will be announced and the prizes will be awarded. The cards must be handed to either P. J. Haler, '21, president of the club or R. H. Rauch, head of the committee on hiking, in order to receive credit. Within a short time a box will be provided which will be placed in Old Main to receive the cards also.

Theologian Speaks at Sunday Chapel

"A man goes either to wine or to religion when he feels the need of some special power," said Reverend George W. Richards, President of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa., in the sermon which he delivered at the upper-class chapel service last Sunday morning. By this statement Rev. Richards implied that when a person needs strength to do some difficult task he will either resort to some form of stimulation or to God. His text from Paul's letter to the Ephesians in the fifth chapter and the eighteenth verse lacked up these assertions. This says, "And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the spirit." Rev. Richards said in part:

"There are times when a soldier is getting ready for battle, when a lawyer is preparing the speech which will mean his success or failure, or when a doctor is using all his energy to combat an epidemic that he feels the need of special power to accomplish his task. For this purpose, he will go either to wine or to religion. He will seek intoxication or inspiration. Wine, in this case, is a symbol for all the stimulants, anything by which one tries to forget life instead of making the best of it.

For this reason, Paul's words to the Ephesians are still full of meaning, even though there is a law in this country against intoxicating drinks.

"We should be filled with the same spirit that Jesus had. This is the secret for solving life's problems. By this spirit, we can receive comfort for our sorrows, inspiration for life's goal and gain the feeling of faith and trust. Our world is the same as that in which Jesus lived. It was a world of changing ideas. The civilization of the old world was coming to a climax and was dying and a new culture and form of living was about to enter, just as green sprouts are underneath the snow ready to start growing. The same conditions exist now in the world and in looking for these we see them as we look at them. If our viewpoint takes in only the bad side, we see nothing good in the world. This is also a heaven of a world if we wish to make it so.

"To maintain this optimism in looking at the world, we must have the spirit of Jesus and be able to look beyond this earth to the Heavenly Father. We want to renew our energies, stimulate by faith in God. Just as Jesus prayed all night on the mountain top and replenished himself in body and soul, in the same way we can go apart from men and open our hearts to Him. There is no one who has not a spark of Christ in him to which he can resort when his own strength fails. No man has ever wrought a great work for humanity except by prayer. Lincoln said that some times in the White House he could do nothing else except to get down on his knees to renew his strength by prayer. This spirit which urged Jesus on and which we should have may be able to do, the world will be little happier and better than it was before. Whether we live in a village, in a city, or in a foreign land, and no matter what our life work may be, the spirit of God and not some narcotic or stimulant will maintain us. We must look to Him who said 'I am the resurrection and the life.' "We cannot get this spirit in the same way that a person would pour water in a vessel to fill it. If a painter wants to become great, he goes and views the old masterpieces and studies their peculiar qualities, hoping that some day he may be able to imitate or surpass them. In the same way, if we wish the spirit of Jesus, we must go to Him or go into the presence of men and women who have Him in their lives. The Christian church is the place to find them. The purpose of religion is to have people lead a Christ-like life. We should study the Bible to find how to live such a life and to see how others lived under all circumstances."

DORWAT BIBLE CLASS HOLDS FROSH RECEPTION

In an effort to stimulate the attendance of the Freshmen Bible Class, familiarly known about the campus as "The Dorwat Bible Class," held Sunday mornings, immediately following Freshman Sunday Chapel, a reception was tendered the Freshmen last Friday night at 8:45 in Old Chapel, and an impromptu program was rendered. A seven-piece orchestra opened the program with a selection, which was followed by a short talk by H. W. Johnson '24. After making it plain to his audience that he was, in no sense related to Pitt Parka, he skillfully demonstrated how one line could be used by a family of four, by simply adding to a straight line, four separate pieces of apparel which might suggest four members of a family. With equal ability, he made a pair from a pear, forced a pig to look (a) round; and drew a picture of a sunken ship, by simply displaying the water surface line—of course the ship, being sunken, was not visible.

A violin solo was rendered by F. M. Wilkinson '24. Following this number, D. H. Murray '24, and W. C. Hesser '24 entertained as four-town minstrels. Murray sang a solo "Sweet Mamma," which was featured by his lack of memory of both words and music. Hesser sang "Rock-a-Bye, Mammie" in good style. This pair, also engaged in entertaining dialogue, and received much applause. They completed their program by singing, "My Home is in Bevo, Near Beer."

F. J. Heckman '24 gave a clever reading entitled "The Deacon's Choice" which embodies the characteristics that the Deacon desired to be prominent in his wife. After singing "The Mighty Lion," and several popular songs, the singing being led by C. E. Finley '21, an invitation was extended to return to the "Y" Hut, where refreshments were served. The affair was very capably handled by H. C. Hoehler, the newly-elected President of the Freshman Class.
