OUR FAREWELL

With this issue, another year has come to the close for the COLLEGIAN and the old staff steps down in favor of a new one. It has been a year that has been very eventful, both for the members of the old staff and the college in general.

To our subscribers and readers, and to those who have aided in the publication of the paper in any way, we take this opportunity to extend our thanks, for without their support and encouragement it would have been much more difficult to continue publication.

The retiring staff feels that, with the facilities offered by the student body, that it has done the very best it possibly could for and with the publication. This is the first time that the COLLEGIAN has ever been published as a semi-weekly and we feel that in the future, the growth of Penn State will find a corresponding growth in the student newspaper.

We have made many mistakes this year, all of which we are duly sorry for, because none were made intentionally. For our editorial policy we have no excuses to make, believing that none are necessary.

REMEMBER DAD'S DAY

The COLLEGIAN wishes to impress upon the students the necessity of widespread cooperation for Father's Day, set for April thirtieth if it is to be a success. The benefit that may result for the college cannot be underestimated, nor can the ties which will undoubtedly be strengthened when father and son "pal" about the campus.

It is also pleasing to note that the girls have been asked to enter the plan and also have their fathers present. There will be enough additional entertainment about college for them to make their stay a very pleasant one, aside from the time that will be required in showing them about the campus.

MEMORIES

When a man completes his course in college and enters upon his work in the world, he often has very little time to think of the college he left behind him and the days he spent there, but there does come to him at some time later in life, a time when he can take his leisure as is his wont, and then his memories begin to ease the hardships with which his life to that date has been fraught.

The time to begin making memories is when a man is in college, if he be fortunate enough to enter. Every minute of his time should be spent in doing worth while things. This does not in any way necessitate that man being a grind or an undesirable chap.

FROSH END SEASON WITH WIN-OVER NORMAL FIVE

The Freshmen tossers had little trouble in eliminating the Indiana Normal School's team last Tuesday evening in the Army by a 13 to 19 score. The Normals were held scoreless in the first half, except for three-four goals shot by Llewellyn, the flashy Indiana forward, but in the second period, the visiting five, led by the doughty Llewellyn, slipped through the Nitany guard for seven field shots, Llewellyn making five of this number.

The line-up was as follows: State Frosh Indiana Normal. Forward, Llewellyn. Center, DeVaughn. Guard, DeVaughn. Fullback, Turner. Three-pointers, Turner, Warner, B. H. Turner, Warner, B. H. Turner, Warner, B. H. Turner.

HARLOW TALKS ON BIRDS OF NORTHERN CANADA

Last Tuesday in Old Chapel, "Dick" Harlow gave an interesting as well as instructive talk on his trip to Northern Canada. Mr. Harlow said that the trip was made for the primary purpose of studying the Arctic three-toed woodpecker and the Cape May warbler, in order to study these two birds to the best advantage, the party was compelled to live in the woods for three weeks.

Since graduation, it has been discovered that in the minds of many strangers, the Penn State Honor System means a complete college course. You may say that it is not true—but the fact remains that it is true.

ALUMNUS URGES HONOR SYSTEM BE ABOLISHED

Lebanon, Pa., March 5, 1921. Editor Penn State Collegian.

The writer entered Penn State as a Freshman before the Honor System was inaugurated and during his first year, this new idea was discussed with a unanimous vote.

We must keep in mind that we dare not become so very much another sentiment. There is no doubt about it, that in every Penn State's heart there is a desire for a real honor system.

The system falls down completely in one respect; namely, in punishing the offenders. It is almost a superhuman task for one student to cause another fellow student some form of punishment, although the latter is guilty.

Furthermore, if we allow a number of students to gain diplomas without being worthy of them, we are then lowering the scholastic standards of Penn State.

To the honest student the presence of a proctor means nothing; but to the other fellow it may mean something. Naturally there is a tendency to desire an honor system. During these seven years there has been no practical change to the method of reporting violations for such experimenting.

Published in the interest of Electrical Development by an Institution that will ever help the Industry. -but the wire has no hole for electricity to flow through- It was a lawyer talking, and when he made this brilliant observation an engineer present couldn't help chuckling. How absurd, he thought, that anybody could be so ignorant of the properties of current electricity. But by the way, oh stern critic, what are mechanics' liens and what are the mutual obligations of partners? When the talk turns to law or business or the seven arts, have your opinions to express and can you express them without the fear of making a "break"? Looked at in this light there seems to be some sense to the argument for a broad curriculum for engineers. Though your object should be first and foremost to find out more than anybody else knows about some specialized phase of engineering, don't miss any chance to get acquainted with every common interest which may influence the social and industrial life of the day. This is nothing but a matter of good business; it will enable you to meet men on their own ground. And because life is too full to learn everything about everything, this habit teaches the greatest lesson of all—the necessity of getting at fundamentals and applying basic principles already learned to each new problem. It is this attitude of mind which will earn you a place in the inner office where they discuss, not details, you may be sure, but policies. The electrical industry needs men who can see far and think straight.
