WELCOME TO OUR PRESIDENT

The COLLEGIAN, in behalf of the student body of Penn State, wishes to take this opportunity of welcoming President Thomas to his new charge. The arrival of our new President has been awaited with eager anticipation by the entire college...

The College seems bound upon a course of expansion and the future holds possibilities little dreamed of years ago. The past ten years has seen an enormous increase in the reputation and standing of this institution and a corresponding increase in its usefulness to the Commonwealth.

The present time is indeed a momentous one in the history of the college. Penn State has passed through a period of remarkable growth, and is now at the parting of the ways, waiting to decide whether to progress still further until it is the leading university in Pennsylvania...

THE TUG-OF-WAR

The tug-of-war which will be held tomorrow afternoon on Old Beaver field promises to be one of the most hotly contested pugilistic staged since the institution of this class scrap. The rivalry between the two lower classes is at top pitch and the winner of this contest will surely earn the victory...

NEW WOMEN'S EDITOR

As a result of the annual election held at this time by the women students of the college, the COLLEGIAN wishes to announce a change in the position of Women's Editor, Miss Doris Browning '23 being the person selected by the girls to represent them on the staff of this publication for the next year.

APPOINTMENT OF CARTOONIST

It is with great pleasure that we announce at this time the appointment of Donald E. Magill '22 to the position of cartoonist. This issue marks the appearance of the first drawing for the COLLEGIAN of this talented young man whose works are by no means unfamiliar to Penn State students through the columns of the college comic.

On the Corner

Uh-huh! It's come at last! What? Why, haven't you heard? Didn't you read this noble sheet a week ago? Wise up!

No, we don't mean spring. It never will come. We had to get our overcoat back out of hook last week and we'll never be fooled again!

Well, to get down to brass tacks and did the suspense, the fair sex at this remarkable institution of learning are going to break out in a new sport. Ah-huh! Light, breaks!

Track? Check! You hit the nail right on the head. We co-eds crave excitement and are going to take it in leaps and bounds.

Wonder how many miles they'll have to run to procure the coveted "S"! A hundred mile hike wins numerical no.

Wait till the Amazons begin to gambol on the green and burn up the clinders! They'll make "Bill" Martin's boys look sick.

And maybe they won't whirl around the dance floors!

And... no, no, heaven's sakes, don't mention football.

The fair ones might take you seriously and install it next year. (You may not be here then but we will!)

Good bye!

Y. W. C. A. PLANNING TO BUILD HOME FOR GIRLS

A very interesting meeting of the State College Branch of the Y. W. C. A. was held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Foster on Monday evening. Further plans for taking a house was discussed but owing to unsettled conditions, no decision was made. Any of the girls who are boarding and rooming in town and would like to live at a Y. W. C. A. which would be a home, not merely a house, might find it to their advantage to learn more of this.

DEAN WATTS ATTENDS ALUMNI BANQUET

Dean Watts and Mr. E. N. Sullivan returned Tuesday night from a banquet held by the Boston branch of the Alumni Association. At that city Mr. Watts states that five spirits was shown and that the banquet was a great success in spite of the fact that that branch has a small membership.

DR. SPARKS TELLS WHY ANYBODY SHOULD WORK

Second of Series of Economic Topics Well Received by Interested Gathering

Dr. Sparks delivered the second of his series of lectures on labor problems, given under the auspices of the Liberal Arts lectures course, to a large audience of faculty and students in the Old Chapel last Tuesday evening.

The lecturer looked at his subject from the viewpoint of labor as the source of world and personal wealth versus the combination and legislative methods of labor, he said.

In the first place there are four reasons why a man should work. First, for his own comfort; second, for self-preservation, third, because it is a public duty, and lastly for the love of it.

Until quite recently, all the labor problems have been in the hands of the legislatures and consequently formulated the laws for its own benefit.

Until quite recently, all the labor problems have been in the hands of the legislatures and consequently formulated the laws for its own benefit.

After the very pleasant program delicious eats were served and the meeting adjourned.

After the war there was a radical change to an industrial nation and the cry for cheap labor was raised. At first the cry was answered by the women and children, but later the greater part of our cheap labor came from Europe.

Our laws by which an immigrant is compelled to learn a sentence or two of the Constitution and which we call our literacy laws. These are for the purpose of reducing the illiteracy in the laboring class to a minimum.

the strange part about it all is that the more illiterate the man is the better laborer he will make and the longer he will remain in the laboring class.

But it is by combination that man succeeds best. On the part of capital it is called "trusts," and on the labor side "unions."

Unfortunately we do not seem to get beyond combination for force and legislation. One writer has said that America will never be a land of the leisure class, but he saw the leisure class as one made up of landed aristocracy rather than an industrial aristocracy.

There is an old story of whatever goes up must come down, even if other words, he, who dances must pay the piper. From 1860 to 1910, the purchasing power of the dollar increased forty per cent. From 1910 to 1920 it decreased fifty per cent.

And the first thing that is necessary is a willingness to toil, and this includes even we of the leisure class. How often is my demand for public services that should be performed as our duty.

Next we have to have a willingness to give, a willingness to do without. And finally, to bring conditions back to the level where they belong, we must have a little more consideration for others and we must submit to the principal of physics, which is equally true of economics.

And the first thing that is necessary is a willingness to toil, and this includes even we of the leisure class. How often is my demand for public services that should be performed as our duty.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Prof. M. F. Grimes of the Animal Husbandry department lectured in Sunbury Thursday of last week, on "Community Swine Production."

The Botany department is perfecting plans for a new building and additional greenhouses to be erected when the building appropriation is secured. The new building will contain mainly class rooms and laboratories, both of which are very much needed at present.

The Botany Extension department expects to be very busy during the coming season. Potato and orchard spraying demonstrations will be a part of the work to be carried on through every organized county farm-bureau of the state.

The faculty and students of the Horticultural department will have what they call an "apple blossom" picnic some day next week, when the orchard will be in full bloom. They intend to have supper in the orchard and to have entertainments and stunts of various kinds afterwards.

Consumers of milk and cream as well as dairy farmers who sell dairy products of the butterfat basis, are becoming more and more interested in the fat content of the products bought or sold. A law is now in effect requiring those who test milk and cream at dairy plants to hold a license for the operation of the Babcock test, for the determination of butterfat in milk and cream. Examinations for the purpose are held by the Dairy Husbandry Department on the first Thursday of each month. Thirty-one applicants for Certificate of Proficiency were presented last week. The examination was under the immediate supervision of Mr. J. W. Mitten of the Dairy Department.
