

PLAYERS SUCCESSFULLY REPEAT "SEVEN KEYS"

Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Receive About Eighty Dollars as Result of Production

Before a pleased and mystified audience, the Penn State Players scored another success in their re-presentation of the "Seven Keys to Baldpate" last Friday evening in the Auditorium for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

The entire original cast which presented the mystery farce at State College on the eleventh of February and later at York, Pa., was at its best last Friday evening.

As individual actors every member of the cast deserves much credit for his ability. Every player presented his part with just the right amount of characterization to give naturalness without seeming affected and showed much talent in so doing.

As a young novelist who writes thrillers by the yard and is prepared to expect anything and take it as a matter of course, B. W. Knapp '21 played his part in a commendable manner.

For portrayal of a difficult type, W. C. Shultz '21 as Peter, the Hermit of Baldpate, played his part to perfection and caused a laugh with every speech.

All of the women's parts were presented in a creditable manner. Miss Ruthanna Sharpless '23, as a newspaper reporter, Miss Lucille M. Mather '22, taking the part of the caretaker's wife, Miss Mary E. Mumford, playing the role of a female blackmailer, and Miss K. Josephine Ruth, as a charming widow, all contributed to the success of the play.

J. L. Getz '21, taking the part of the caretaker of Baldpate Inn, played well.

His portrayal of an old country man was realistic. The other male parts were also necessary to the action and every one was commended for his true-to-life acting.

As a climax for this successful run of the "Seven Keys to Baldpate," the Players will present the farce for the fourth time when they appear at Bellefonte this Thursday evening.

AG. HILL NOTES C. L. Rumberger, who has been connected with the Department of Agricultural Extension as a leader of the Boys' and Girls' Club, has been transferred to the work of the County agent Department, as the Agent in Fayette County.

SENIORS MEET TO DISCUSS PROPOSED ENDOWMENT FUND

The Senior class meets this evening at seven-thirty o'clock in the Bull Pen to decide the fate of the endowment fund. The decision to raise funds by the insurance method has not met with much success and all members of the 1921 class are being urged to attend tonight's important gathering so that the true attitude of the students toward the campaign may be expressed.

Should the class decide to get behind the endowment fund campaign and support it, definite action will probably be taken to have the money shall be used.

SURVEYING TAPE MISSING FROM FORESTRY BUILDING

A steel surveying tape of a newly invented design belonging to the Forestry Department and being used by that Department in experimental work was taken early Saturday morning from the grass outside the Forestry Building. The tape is of special design for use only in forestry work and is of no value except to one familiar with its use.

CHAPEL SPEAKER PAYS TRIBUTE TO MOTHERS

Bishop Darlington of Harrisburg Gives Interesting Discourse on Observation of Mother's Day

The Rt. Rev. James Henry Darlington, the Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of Harrisburg, addressed both chapel audiences Sunday morning. Through the congregations were scattered many of the editors who were visiting State College over the week end.

It may be of interest to note that Bishop Darlington is the author of Blue and White, one of our most popular college songs and, therefore, he may claim to be one of State's best friends.

To those attending the first chapel service, an interesting talk on "Mother's Day" was given by the Bishop. He stated that students could not give too much consideration to their mothers and, when thinking of their mothers that they could not fail to give their fathers a thought, for he probably loves them as much as their mothers but hardships of life have tended to decrease his emotionalism.

He stated that when boys left home for their Freshman year at college, they were making their first break from their so-called "Mother's apron strings." He cautioned that they be weak and take that first drink or commit that other sin when tempted by the peers of "sissy" etc., from their comrades, which things their conscience tells them to be wrong.

To his second audience, the Bishop added to the sermon of the first hour, by stating that mothers cared more for a show of attention on the part of their boys than they did for all of the money or similar articles they might send her via recommended that they sit down and write her a good, gospel, loving letter on Sunday afternoon.

A discussion was then taken up for the treatment of the Holy Trinity by PLAYERS ARE PREPARING FOR JUNE PRODUCTION Mr. Arthur Cloetingh, Director of the Penn State Players, is holding rehearsals every day for the spectacular production "A Thousand Years Ago," which the Players will present in the Outdoor Theatre, June tenth. The story is a delightful glimpse of old China, which the author, Percy Mackaye has reproduced so skillfully in this four-act fantasy. The cast has been chosen with much care and each member is playing into his part distinctively.

ALUMNI SECRETARY TALKS TO GRADUATES AT ERIE Mr. E. N. Sullivan, Alumni Secretary, attended the monthly dinner of the Erie Alumni last week at the University Club, in that city. He was met at the train by Mr. E. W. Nick '07, Secretary of the Erie Alumni, who showed him, among other things of interest, Commodore Perry's resurrected flagship. They also walked down the same street which was paraded by the victorious blue-jackets after the famous battle of Lake Erie.

At the dinner Mr. Sullivan gave a very interesting talk, discussing the needs of Penn State, and outlining plans now under contemplation to meet these needs. Mr. W. Mitchell '01, presided at the dinner as toastmaster.

being spared to catch the oriental spirit. It is being worked out with extravagant precision and there is no doubt that the performance will be the most spectacular production yet offered by the Players.
