With a mammoth display of fireworks on New Beaver Field, a day of student parades, inaugural ceremonies and banquets, record breaking mass meetings and celebrations will be completed on Friday, October the fourth when Dr. John Thomas was inaugurated to the presidency of the Pennsylvania State College.

This most eventful day in the history of Penn State will have some part of the program being on the campus and students will take no small part in the many activities commencing with the student parade in the morning, there will not be a dull moment for the next twelve or more hours. When Dr. Thomas officially becomes the president of the college and the inaugural ceremonies have been completed in the afternoon the students will take part in the second activity of the day with a mass meeting in the Auditorium and a real celebration of the inauguration on New Beaver Field.

Mass Meeting Starts Evening
Although the Auditorium has held capacity audiences in the past, when every available bit of standing room has been thought to be completely filled, a room for a few more than the limit will undoubtedly be found when the combined student, faculty and athletic mass meeting takes place in the evening at seven p. m.

Before the mass meeting, the members of the student government organizations of both the men and women students will meet with the college guests at the Auditorium and escort them to the gymnasium where they will meet the students who will greet them and make them know that they are welcome to everything belonging to Penn State.

The first part of the meeting will be given over to a celebration of the inauguration when speeches will be made by various prominent persons of the state and college. The heads of both the women's and men's student governments will first extend the congratulations of the student body to the new "President" of the state.

W. D. Overdorf, president of the Senior class and the Student Council, will present President Thomas for the men of the college.
Governor Sproul, Charles M. Schwab and President John M. Thomas will be the other speakers at this part of the meeting. Undoubtedly many will take this opportunity to hear the governor speak. Mr. Schwab, who gave Penn State the Auditorium because of the overcrowded conditions which made the Old Chapel too small, will undoubtedly be made to feel the great growth in the student body since that time when his building will be completely filled. This Penn State friend will receive a hearty greeting from the student body for whom he has done so much.

Following this will be the athletic part of the mass meeting when any excess enthusiasm will be given to the football team by the game with Lehigh on Saturday. An old alumnus who has been a member of a Penn State varsity football team will speak at this time and tell how the Nittany Lion acted in times past at big games. Captain Snell is then scheduled for a speech and he promises to give a real one on which he has spent hours of preparation.

BOXERS BEGIN TRAINING FOR STRENUOUS SEASON

With several of last year's varsity men back in the pink of condition and ready to start training for a strenuous season, prospects for an successful season as was enjoyed last year begin to cheer the Penn State followers of the many art. The only serious gap made in the line-up was caused by the graduation of Captain Kahley in the 115 pound class. Clough, Griffiths, Bordner, Atarshis, Chapen, and Vailla are all anxious to don the mits Big "Rags" Madera also would probably be anxious to try the ring if he were not occupied to present with thoughts of the gridiron.

Another feature that will have some influence upon the winter pastime will be the large numbers of freshmen and underclassmen who have signed up for the sport to secure gym credit. These men are being coached by members of last year's varsity regiment in the fundamental points of the art which will serve as preliminary training for the new men. An opportunity to win their class numerals both in the Freshman-Sophomore scrap and in the Inter-class tournament is probably one of the chief reasons for the large turnout of would-be boxers and among them are some who are clever in ring-side tactics. The wealth of material that seems to crop out during the training period insures some close competition in the trials and contests that will be held throughout the season this year.

PAKENHAM INSTITUTES ENGLISH STYLE OF PLAY IN SOCCER SCRIMMAGE

Coaching Staff Starts Varsity Squad On Second Step of Practice Schedule

The third week of soccer practice will mark the beginning of real grinding work on the part of the varsity booters as Coaches Denis and Pakenham begin to prepare their proteges for the intermediate step in the working schedule as outlined at the beginning of the season by the two coaches. The first step, that of mastering the fundamentals of the game, has been emphasized as much as is possible in the short time that the coaches had for this work and so they have determined to start the varsity squad on the second step, that of becoming acquainted with the game in the excitement due to scrimmage.

According to the coaches, one of the big assets of an amateur team is the ability to control every action in the excitement of close and fast play and this ability can only be obtained by actual experience. On Friday night, the squad was given its first taste of scrimmage this year when two teams were selected to oppose each other in a very short contest. This contest showed the fallings of the team and each individual to such a degree that the coaching staff was able to work out before the coaches and the squad last Saturday afternoon, a scrimmage was held for fifty minutes with a decided improvement showing, due to the fact that the coaches are thoroughly acquainted with the details of the scrimmage. From now on, the daily workouts will consist mostly of scrimmages until the opening game of the season which will probably take place on the home field during the middle of this month.

The success of the soccer season this year depends upon the ability of the squad to overcome the handicap of a short training period and this ought to be accomplished since the ability of the two coaches can only be estimated in the highest of terms. Professor Denis, who is connected with the School of Agriculture as a Professor of Rural Zoology, is a former Havertford star and a coach among eastern soccer circles with no mean reputation. For many years he has followed the boogie game with the interest of an enthusiastic fan and is thoroughly acquainted with the details of this rising sport. Mr. Pakenham comes to Penn State with an enviable record as soccer coach and as an officer in the British army. Having studied among the chief booters at Oxford University in England, Mr. Pakenham naturally was chosen to coach the team representing England's first regiment, the Coldstream Guards. As a captain in this regiment, he served three years in France, during which time he was wounded on several occasions and was cited for gallantry in action. He was awarded the Victoria Cross and has been retired, was given the rank of Major while in the service, he gained recognition throughout the army as a soccer coach through the success of the teams which he drilled. The team from the Coldstream Guards carried off second honors among all the teams in the army of Great Britain.

Under the supervision of these two men coaching at Penn State this year this sport has assumed the English (Continued on last page)

POVERTY DAY WILL BE OBSERVED ON SATURDAY

Third Annual Observance of Custom Should Be a Repetition of Former Successes

The third annual observance of Poverty Day at Penn State will be held Saturday when all freshmen will step out into uniform suitable for such an occasion. In other words, rags will be at a premium in Stato College over the week end.

In the fall of 1919, the custom of observing and paying respect to the Gentleman of the Road was inaugurated with such an unexpected success that the student body heartily endorsed the action of its representatives in council assembled when it was decided to make this a regular feature of Penn State custom. Last year, the success of the first Poverty Day was again repeated which strengthened the position of this regulation. All the more firmly as a Penn State celebration. This year, Student Council has declared October eight to be Poverty Day and the atmosphere of the occasion to be preserved from eight o'clock in the morning till five o'clock that evening.

Suitable prizes are to be awarded to those who are adjudged to have the most appropriate attire throughout the day, all freshmen will obey the spirit of the day. Between the half periods of the football contest, the first year men will form a parade and march around the gridiron on the track and so pass the judges' stand. There the prizes will be awarded to those who are attired in the most ingenious and original manner. It is imperative that all freshmen enter into the spirit of the day and any infringement will be dealt with severely.

NOTICE
At a recent meeting the Council of Administration voted to omit all regular college exercises on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 13, 14, and 15, 1921, the days specially set apart for Educational Conferences, the inauguration of President Thomas, and the Alumni Home-Coming.

FRESHMAN TEAM GETTING IN TRIM FOR BELLEFONTE

Yearlings Competing Keenly For Positions On the First Team

INITIAL GAME SATURDAY
Coach Herman's Tentative Line-Up Remains the Same—Changes Expected

After another week of hard work, the line-up of the Freshman football team is still unsettled and the tentative arrangement of the first team is about the same as that which appeared in the COLLEGIAN last week. Many members of the Fresh squad have been working like tigers to obtain one of the much coveted positions and are apt to break into the lime-light at any time. At the present it looks as though the game with Bellefonte will open with McCoy at left end, Parrish at left tackle, Yost at left guard, Shaner at center, Plock at right guard, Alvine at right tackle and Anderson at right end. They will in all probability be the quarterback for the Freshman and Lowry and Hartman take care of the half back positions. Schindlin is at present holding down the position of fullback and will no doubt start the game.

During the week a great amount of development has taken place among the members of the second and third teams. The men who fill these positions have been playing steady and are gradually getting into form so that they are constantly giving the men who hold down positions on the tentative line-up a great deal of worry concerning their ability to hold the positions which they now hold.

CROSS-COUNTRY TRIALS TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Preliminary Run of Season Will Aid Coach Martin in Getting Line on New Material

Varsity and Freshman cross-country trials will be held this coming Saturday afternoon and Coach Martin is expecting every distance runner among the three hundred men who have been reporting for track to be on hand and take part in the initial hill and date meet of the season. This race will be held as a preliminary to the more strenuous trials that will take place later in the season when the coach will be facing the problem of selecting the team to represent Penn State in the contests which are being scheduled. The object of running the preliminary trials so early in the season is to enable the coach to learn more about the men who are doing the best work and also to get his runners organized.

The varsity cross country squad has now been undergoing intensive training for several weeks. Every day the members of the squad leave the Track building about four-thirty in the afternoon and head for the Barrens. They have daily been covering distances ranging from five to nine miles and due to this hard work, the runners, including Captain Cooper, Romig, Shields, Carter, Snyder and Edgerton has been constantly improving. Wilhelm, Enck, and Wendler, of last year's Freshman team, are also among the runners and will without a doubt make themselves conspicuous this fall.

The managers are arranging to have the Inter-class meet and the Fresh-Sophomore Meet run sometime during the month of October. The managers of the latter meet should turn out to be very interesting this year as the teams representing the two lower classes are about on a par.

CHAPEL SPEAKER CENSURES PESSIMISTS AND QUITTERS

Colonel John Thomas Axton, Chief of Chaplains, United States Army, spoke at both chapel services last Sunday. As was expected, his addresses were both exceedingly interesting and full of good advice and food for thought. Everyone who attended the services felt that he had gained something from what Colonel Axton's sermon. The main topics of the evening's sermon were cheerfulness and freedom from knocking, the text being, "Judge not that you be not judged." The entire address was skillfully and interestingly built upon this passage by means of illustrative anecdotes, short quotations of poetry, and sound advice rendered by the speaker himself.

PROFESSORS OF AG SCHOOL RETURN FROM EXPOSITION

Professors W. H. Tomhave and F. S. Bales have returned from Springfield, Mass., where they have been acting as Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent of Livestock at the recent Eastern States Exposition. Professor Tomhave, head of the department, judged the cattle and swine classes at the Tronton, New Jersey, Fair last week.

SENIORS WISH NOT TO ATTEND CHAPEL AFTER NOVEMBER

Also Request College Authorities For Full Thanksgiving Vacation Period

APPOINT MANY COMMITTEES
First Meeting of Class Draws Large Attendance—Elect Forensic Council Men

That the Seniors do not want to go to chapel services after Thanksgiving and that they want a regular full-sized Thanksgiving vacation was shown at the meeting of the 1922 class on Thursday evening in the Bulfinch Room. After the routine business of admitting new members and the appointing of committees was gotten out of the way, the two subjects were brought up and after extended discussion, the class voted to draw up the resolutions in the form of petitions and send them to Student Council to be forwarded to the college officials.

It was brought out in the meeting that Seniors for the last few years have not been required to attend chapel after the Thanksgiving vacation. The present state of affairs however demands that the Seniors continue to go until graduation. This class does not wish and accordingly voted to request the college authorities to continue the custom followed for the past few years.

The announcement that the Thanksgiving vacation this year would be for only one day drew a storm of protest and in this case also the class unanimously voted to ask the college for the regular vacation period. The suggestion that the recess from classes during the Inaugural exercises would in any way take the place of the Thanksgiving vacation was promptly refuted. It was shown that the three days in the original schedule were given to the student body to take an active part in the Inaugural exercises. No student is expected to go home during this time, and for this reason if for no other, the recess from classes during the exercises could not be construed to take the place of the Thanksgiving vacation.

Many committees appointed.

The first business taken up by the class was the organization of the Senior to the class roll, who have now been standing. The first committee to be appointed was a Census committee, consisting of J. W. Solover, H. C. 22, C. D. DeWitt, J. N. Barnes, W. S. Williams, W. S. Wetzel and R. C. Kramer.

The election of three men to the Forensic Council was the next business taken up. The candidates were J. H. Hughes, J. H. Hughes, J. H. Hughes, H. E. Schlosser, W. L. Lowe, A. K. Wilson.

President Overdorf next took the opportunity to explain to the class the program of the Inauguration Day events, setting forth the full details of the busy program from the all-college parade at eight-thirty Friday morning down to the closing of the Inauguration Saturday evening. He laid especial emphasis on the fact that the recess from classes on the three days is to enable the student body to take an active part in the events and that anyone who uses the time for a vacation is defeating the purpose of the recess and is endangering the success of the occasion.

CO-ED SOCIETY ENJOYS WEEK END RECEPTIONS

Last week was a period of receptions for the freshmen girl students at Penn State since on two different occasions they were the guests of honor at functions held at the Woman's Building and MacAllister Hall. The first of these occurred last Wednesday night when the upper classmen in the co-ed world entertained at a He-Sho dance at the Woman's Building. Half of those present were attired in masculine uniforms or in imitation, and the remainder enacted the part of members of the gentleman society in a natural manner. After all of the she members had been escorted to the dance in the approved fashion of the times, dancing, fun, and a varied program of entertainment occupied part of the reception.

On the following night, the older inhabitants of MacAllister Hall entertained in honor of their fresh companions with a county fair in the recreation hall of the building. A public auction of ornamental and useful articles was the main attraction which was responsible for large gate receipts in the course of the evening and sales of pictures. Slide shows of many descriptions and fortune telling booths lined the midway. Punch and sandwich booths occupied a prominent place in the program. The entertainment program of stunts and music brought the perfect entertainment to a close.

WELL KNOWN PAINTINGS WILL BE ON EXHIBITION DURING INAUGURAL WEEK

Works of Popular American Artists Presented By Curtis Publishing Company

To the many prominent and interesting features to take place on Inauguration and Alumni Days, there has recently been added an exhibit by the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia to be held in the Fine Arts Museum in Old Main from October tenth to twentieth. The exhibit will be composed of the originals of some of the best of cover designs and illustrations that have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal during the past two or three years.

The pictures chosen for the exhibition include a wide variety of oil, charcoal, ink and pencil drawings by some of America's foremost artists and illustrators. Probably the outstanding figure of the collection is that of the well known character painter, Norman Rockwell.

There are many other equally famous contributors including childhood sketches by H. C. Williams, also illustrations by H. J. Soulen, Dean Cornwall, Clark Fay, Arthur Fuller, W. D. White and Orr.

The originals of the girls heads by Noyes McNeil which appear on nearly every room wall in Stato College will be listed among the exhibits. The reason for this is that which go to make up these pictures are clearly visible and the attractiveness is that much greater.

ALUMNI GOLFERS ISSUE CHALLENGE FOR CONTEST

Pittsburgh and Centre County Alumni Association Stir Up Competition

To further stimulate interest in the Alumni Home-Coming, the Pittsburgh Alumni Association has issued a challenge to all other Branch Alumni Associations for a golf match, to be played on this campus. Present indications are that the challenge will be taken up by several of the Associations and, from all appearances, there promises to be a lively battle on the golf course when the opposing squads meet.

Mr. Fred P. Weaver, Secretary of the Centre County Alumni Association is making the necessary arrangements to have this County represented. He and the other officers have asked Dr. Grover C. Glenn '06 to be team captain for the Centre County Alumni and to organize the golf tournament at this end.

Dr. Glenn has issued the following letter to the Alumni of Centre County:

Dear Sir:
The Centre County Alumni Association has accepted the challenge of the Allegheny County Association for a golf match on the college course. Alumni Day, October fifteenth, 1921.

I have been appointed acting captain of our team, and have decided that all who wish to try for the team should play a round of 18 holes over the college course any time between the present date and October fourteenth. Those having the lowest score will qualify. Please send or hand your card to me as soon as possible.

Philadelphia County has also accepted the challenge of the Centre County Alumni Association. The challengers are rather cocky so it is up to us to put a little pep into this contest, and make them show some class to win.

We do not know how many men there will be to each team, but want to be prepared with plenty.
If you know any alumnus or former student in the County who has not gotten this notice tell him about it, and urge him to enter.
Yours Most Truly,
(Signed) Grover C. Glenn

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE DISCUSSES SOCIAL LIFE

The Round Table Conference of the Superintendents and Principals of all schools of Central Pennsylvania adjourned last Saturday at noon after transacting business highly important to the betterment of the educational methods throughout the state. About fifty outside guests in addition to the many local people helped to make the conference an interesting and beneficial one. The next meeting of the Round Table Conference will be held this coming spring at the State Normal School in Lock Haven.

Arrangements were also made to hold a dance at Reading during the Christmas vacation. Further plans concerning the club, which will be held on December 27, will be announced later.

NITTANY ELEVEN WADES THRU GETTYSBURG FOR SECOND WIN OF SEASON

24 to 0 Victory Secured After Stiff Fight With Visitors. Cornwall Boots Thirty Yard Field Goal

PLAYERS CHOOSE CAST FOR FIRST PRODUCTION
Characters for "Nothin' But the Truth" Selected From Over One Hundred Aspirants

Superior weight and better training told last Saturday afternoon on New Beaver Field when the Gettysburg Eleven, after holding Penn State on practically even terms during the first half of the game, crumpled before the Nittany attack and allowed Bezek's men to score a 24 to 0 victory. A touchdown by the Blue and White warriors shortly after the contest opened made the game appear rather easy for them but a baffling strength displayed by Gettysburg, both offensively and defensively, following the score, caused no little worry on the part of Penn State and it was not until the second half that the Nittany machine operated effectively. Twice Penn State was held for downs in the first period and managed to make only five first downs while the battlefield team was registering an equal number. A beautiful field goal by Cornwall from the thirty yard line in the first quarter, in addition to the touchdown and a goal from the touchdown, constituted the total scoring of Penn State in the first half, all of the points being made by Cornwall. With the opening of the third quarter, the Nittany aggression showed considerable improvement and smashing again and again through the visitor's line, pushed over a touchdown in the middle of the period. Captain Snell, carrying the ball over the line. This seemed to give additional strength to the Blue and White players with the result that Gettysburg failed to make much headway and after an exchange of punts, Penn State secured the pick on the forty yard line. A steady drive, in which Killinger got away for a twenty yard run, finally took the Nittany to the thirty yard line and from there "Killy" plunged into the third touchdown, just after the beginning of the final quarter. Shortly afterward, Coach Bezek sent a new man into the fray and another hard drive was begun. On this occasion the Gettysburg five yard line by the final whistle.

The fact that Gettysburg was quite familiar with the Nittany style of play and even used Bezek's own tactics, undoubtedly a serious handicap to the Penn State eleven. This was especially true in the first half when three holes were opened for the Blue and White runners and four yards were gained on almost every play. On the offense, in the same period, the Nittany line seemed unable to take its opponents off their feet and the Blue running backs and backs were consequently tackled before they could penetrate very far into the Gettysburg territory. Inexperience probably was responsible for the ragged play inasmuch as Coach Bezek, in the second half was of a higher order. In this period, the visitors did not make a single first down and in the entire fourth quarter only gained eight yards in scrimmage. On the other hand, Bezek's eleven annexed ten downs during the final half and made almost one hundred and eighty yards in scrimmage.

McMahon Shows Up Well

The work of "Tiny" McMahon at right tackle was one of the most encouraging features of the contest and indicated that "Tiny" is rapidly developing into a very strong lineman. In the first two minutes of play, he broke through the opposition and blocked a punt, then netted a thirty yard run. First Nittany touchdown inasmuch as Hufford fell on the ball and Cornwall then carried it over the line by a twenty yard run. On many occasions "Tiny" threw the ball for yard losses and was largely responsible for big gains made through the left side of the visitor's line. Madera, another inexperienced tackle, showed up well at times too, while Bezek, playing at right guard by the side of McMahon, played havoc with the lighter Gettysburg defense and prevented many plays from going through for any gains from the backfield of the visitors. Bezek attempted to buck his side of the line, Bentz, playing true to form, did not cause any sensation by his work but he was always on the job and very much ground was made by Gettysburg through center Cornwall and Bedinger ran well and usually went through for a few yards when called upon. Killinger's punting was a bright light, one of his kicks traveling about fifty-five yards in the air.

For the visitors, the playing of Emmanuel, Kiser, Gilliland, Slaughter, Nordon and Smith sent Emmanuel and Kiser at the wing positions during their fine defensive work, caused the Nittany backs to hit the tackles rather than attempt to skirt the ends and (Continued on last page)

DUNBAR BELL RINGERS GIVE VARIED PROGRAM

New Form of Musical Entertainment Introduced to Penn State Audience

Presenting a performance with humor or prevalent throughout, coupled with an excellent variety of numbers both instrumental and vocal, the Dunbar Quartet and Bell Ringers appeared last Saturday night in the auditorium as the first group of entertainers of the season. Their course that evening was well received and enjoyed by the audience as evidenced by the unusual handclapping and call for encores.

In the first number of the evening's program, the quartet gave an exhibition of their bell ringing which has awarded them so much fame. At that time they played three selections, "Bells of Evening," "The Rose," and "While Shepherds Watched." As this method of creating music was new to the greater part of the audience, they were held spellbound by the unbelievable results produced and agility of the members of the quartet in ringing the bells. At the conclusion of this number, the quartet rendered a medley of old college songs, a number of old pieces which were blended into a pleasing unification of some rather quiet pieces and also some quick, spritely time, which served to keep the spirit of the audience high.

In other that the audience should not tire of too much song and music, a member of the quartet next gave a reading, imitating a Negro minister. This was characterized by the queer twists of words which created many funny meanings. A strenuous and heart rending prayer by the Negro minister was the climax of the reading. When called back for an encore, the reader recited a poem entitled, "It Takes a Heap of Lovin' in a House to Make It Home," by Edgar A. Guest. This, the reader stated, was the favorite poem back in the old homes of Michigan. At the times of the recitation, it was accompanied by strains of "Home Sweet Home" from a hidden "cello."
