

INAUGURAL PROGRAM IS PRESENTED TO STUDENTS AT FIRST MASS MEETING

President Thomas, Coach Bezdok, Mr. Hubschman, and E. E. Overdorp Speak of Big Event

Showing the same old Penn State spirit that has made Penn State what it is today, the first football mass meeting of the season was held last Friday night in the Auditorium, packed as usual with standing room was at a premium. The manner and enthusiasm in which the songs and cheers were given indicated that the old spirit of "For Penn State" had not died during the summer vacation and needed but a spark to set it flaming for the rest of the year.

President Mellinger of the Athletic Association acted as Chairman of the mass-meeting and in opening it, stated the purpose for which it had been called. The first reason, as he outlined, was to get the Penn State spirit of the student body back in top-notch form for the rest of the year and show their appreciation by means of the gathering, for the work the football squad has done for the college.

The second purpose of the meeting was to discuss the plans and necessities for the period of inauguration from October, thirteenth to October fifteenth. He then introduced President Thomas as the first speaker of the evening.

In beginning his talk, President Thomas took the opportunity offered by a football mass meeting to state his thoughts on football as a game. He expressed his belief in football and everything connected with Penn State, from stiff graduation requirements. Because of the grasp that the Big League baseball teams have on the baseball game, the American Colleges cannot expect to be first in this sport. President Thomas stated his belief in sports of all kinds, but said that football is the first and biggest of college sports. A good football team can do much for its Alma Mater. The teams that have represented Penn State in the past have put the college on the map and have made it favorably known. Another benefit that a football team offers to the College is aid in the educational program. From the team, the student can absorb the spirit of determination and fight seen at hard, crucial games. The football game gives a lesson that cannot be acquired at any other time or place. Besides affecting each student singly with a new enthusiasm, the football team exerts a great influence on college life as a whole. A miracle is accomplished when the students become welded into one smooth working body with a single aim. The team from the football team that this lesson can be acquired. The team comes from all sections of the country, each man different from his team mate. But after the necessary contact, a unified team is produced with one purpose and one plan. Along the line of football, President Thomas spoke of class clashes and their place. He said that he did not believe in the football field is the place for these class scraps and that they could easily be held at some other place and time.

President Thomas then took up the subject of the inauguration ceremonies and the necessity for making it a great occasion. But he said that it was not necessary nor proper to make it an occasion of inerrant, festivities or congratulations for it is an occasion of a serious nature. It is a time when we begin to view the future and to outline the policies of the college. It will be a time in which to stir up interest in the future needs and works of the college among the distinguished visitors. Many elaborate preparations are being made but for the reasons just stated, the preparations are justified. Penn State has made great progress under the efficient guidance of past leaders but it has gone as far as possible now with out new recognition among educational circles. Pennsylvania supports many free public schools and high schools but Penn State is the only institution of its kind in Pennsylvania. However it is not large enough and does not have all that a college like Penn State should have.

The future work for Penn State is a big job for President Thomas and he said that sometimes he wished that another man had been chosen. He recalled that when he first came here that the buildings and equipment did not impress him at all. When he met the Deans and other prominent men who are doing their best for Penn State, he became more impressed. But the factor which helped him to decide to accept the leadership of the State was his first view of the students one Sunday morning in chapel. From that time on he said that he felt it his duty to fight for the students of Penn State and their needs and asked the students to fight for him and to help him.

Following President Thomas' talk the Glee Club rendered an old Penn State Song entitled "For Old State". Professor Hubschman was then introduced by chairman Mellinger. The main purpose of Professor Hubschman's talk was to outline the program to be held during the inauguration period. He emphasized the fact that big men are taking this opportunity to come to Penn State, who have never been here before and ought to receive a good impression of the students at that time. The program for the three day ceremony starts Thursday morning at eleven o'clock. It is a general conference of the College followed by another conference during the evening. Friday morning the students will parade. The floats, that will occupy places in the procession which starts at 8:30 o'clock in the morning are to be the best possible. Following the parade will be the Inaugural procession, led by President Thomas. At this time the students will have an opportunity to view the visitors to Penn State. The delegates will be arranged in the procession according to the age of their respective institutions. The Inauguration ceremonies will then take place in the Auditorium, but due to the large delegation of visitors, it will be impossible to seat everybody at that time. President Overdorp of the Senior Class was the next speaker on the program. He took the opportunity to express the appreciation of the student body to the football team and said that we would back them and would be the Inauguration program in the honor of the President. He emphasized the duty of every student remaining here during the period of ceremonies, for that was the reason that the three day vacation was granted.

SUMMER RESEARCH WORK CONDUCTED BY ENGINEERS

Heat Transmission and New Thermal Resistance Plates Studied in College Laboratories

A staff of six engineers, connected with the Engineering Experiment Station, was actively engaged during the summer in its work on heat transmission under the direction of Professor A. J. Wood. Mr. P. Nichols, a specialist in high temperature insulation, spent the summer at the college consulting in this work. The Research Bureau of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineering also co-operated. The main project was in connection with the calibration of the new Infrared Thermal Testing Plate and for accurately determining the quantity of heat flowing through insulating and building materials. Some of the special work included a new method for making thermocouples, more accurate determination of surface transmission, temperature at different points on test specimens, and in general the elimination of estimation of common errors. Work has begun this summer on the new Thermal Resistance Plates which is offered as the most practical solution of the problem of determining the amount of heat passing through the wall of a building. The development of the new project is being watched with interest by engineers in various lines of heating and refrigeration.

An investigation on Oxy-acetylene welding undertaken by Professor M. Babcock of the Industrial Engineering Department was partly completed during the summer. The object is to determine the strength of welds made under different conditions with high and low carbon steel.

THIRTY-TWO ADDED TO ROLL OF REHAB CLUB

Mr. C. E. Cronmeyer, coordinator of the Rehabilitation Club, compiled the enrollment statistics for this fall and announces that there are one hundred and eighty-six rehabilitation students in Penn State this fall. This is an increase of thirty-two over the number who were enrolled here last term, and forty-five of these are new students. Of the new men the School of Agriculture claims the most, having a total enrollment of one hundred and thirty-one. The School of Engineering has thirty-one. Liberal Arts, ten; School of Mines, eight; and School of Natural Science, six. Nor are the rehabs lacking in scholastic standings. Those who take this opportunity to go home are sticklers and are not loyal to the cause of Penn State.

The nominations for the officers for the coming year, to be elected at the regular monthly meeting of the Rehabilitation Club, held last night, were as follows: For president, Joe Miller '23; Secretary, C. E. Cronmeyer '24; For Sergeant-at-Arms, L. G. Clemson, W. Hopkins, and C. E. Hoff, all second year two-year olds. Five directors were also nominated and elected last night, and the results of the elections will be published in an early issue.

Another play will probably be put on during the coming year by the Rehabs. Their success in the staging of the "Jollies of 1921" and of several other shows last year assures the production of an excellent entertainment this winter, an entertainment which will be enacted with all the pep and vim which the rehabilitation men have displayed in all their productions thus far.

The Club has been asked to take part in the Inaugural parade, and it is very likely that it will do so, although the fact that a number of the new men lack uniforms will be a drawback.

WESTERN COLLEGE SELECTS DELEGATE TO INAUGURATION
Gordon Goebel, a graduate of the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, with the class of 1910, has been chosen to represent the college at the inauguration of Dr. John Magin Thomas as president of the Pennsylvania State College, October 15. Mr. Goebel has held an important position in the service department of the Westinghouse Electric company at East Pittsburgh, Pa., for several years, and has traveled extensively in Europe and South America in connection with his work.

FORESTERS WILL HAVE GET-TOGETHER TONIGHT

This evening at 6:30 o'clock the Foresters will hold their annual Feed and Get-together in the wadlode back of the Forestry building. All Freshman Foresters are especially urged to be present at this first meeting of the Forestry Society.

The Foresters' Feed is an annual event and is always well worth attending. There will, of course, be a campfire and cider, if it is obtainable, and picnics. Professor J. A. Ferguson, head of the department, will speak, and every effort is being made to have Prossy and Dean Watts on the list of speakers also. It is to the advantage of every freshman forester to attend the feed, not only for the enjoyment he will derive, but also in order that he may become acquainted with the society. Its purposes and benefits. Thirty-one of the Class of 1924 are in the Department of Forestry. This is the largest enrollment of first-year men that department has had in many years. Altogether there are over one hundred students taking the course in Forestry.

A new thing for the Foresters is their club at 117 McAllister street, for non-first foresters. The Club, which is in its first year, is a decided success, providing a meeting place for the non-freshman foresters, where they can live together and also get together in a social way. The club-room is nicely furnished and comfortable. A set of logging pictures was recently donated to the Club by the Drexler Saw Company of Philadelphia. The pictures show various stages in logging operations, such as rafting, breaking of jams, snow scenes, etc.

Several Seniors in Forestry have recently returned from work in the National Forests of New Mexico and Montana, where they have been since the middle of last May. Another student is back from the Pennsylvania State Forest where he was surveying for a road through from Hunt Meadows across the mountains to Stone Valley.

The Foresters of the college have also developed an excellent and efficient system for getting the men out to fight fires. The list of all available men is kept hanging by the telephone so that there will be as little delay as possible in the obtaining of help in case of a forest fire.
