STATE COLLEGE SHOULD BECOME STATE UNIVERSITY

President Thomas in Inaugural Address Says State Should Follow Lead of Twenty-Six Others

OVER HUNDRED INSTITUTIONS HAVE REPRESENTATIVES HERE

Dr. John Martin Thomas officially became president of the Pennsylvania State College late this morning when he took the Oath of Office and Governor William C. Sprout introduced him in the Auditorium before a capacity audience of college and university heads and representatives, delegates from learned societies, faculty members and many specially invited guests.

One hundred and nineteen delegates from colleges, universities and normal schools were present at the ceremonies, according to the latest figures obtainable. No less than thirty-nine of these representatives are heads of institutions of learning.

Dignity and solemnity marked the whole occasion from the beginning of the processions until the final note of the organ died away as the ceremonies came to an end.

At ten a. m. the academic procession formed in front of the Woman's Building and proceeded to the strings of a fitting march played by the cadet band, past McAllister Hall to College Avenue, to the College Entrance and then to the Auditorium.

Caps and gowns were worn by the greater majority of those in the line and the black of the flowing robes, somewhat offset by the different colors of the caps, added to the impressiveness of the affair as several hundred marchers passed in single file.

Dr. John M. Thomas headed the line and following him directly were the speakers for the ceremony and the members of the board of trustees of the college.

The procession then filed into the Schwab Auditorium, while the band continued playing outside until all had entered.

Several big changes will take place in the Fresh line-up. Schmidlin who played fullback in the Bellefonte game is no longer available for that job as he left town several days ago.

It is quite likely that Coach Herman's squad has worked better during the past week than at any other time, despite the injuries that were received by many of the men.

A State University as the crown of the educational system of the Commonwealth, is the destiny of the Pennsylvania State College said President John M. Thomas in sounding the key note of his administration in his inaugural address this morning.

President Thomas, addressing an audience of more than a hundred of whom were delegates to his inaugural from colleges and universities in all parts of the country, said that Penn State should be converted into a Pennsylvania State University.

On June 14, 1855, in the City of Harrisburg, at the office of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, the Governor of the State, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and seven other citizens met for the organization of a new type of educational institution in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

At ten a. m. the academic procession formed in front of the Woman's Building and proceeded to the strings of a fitting march played by the cadet band, past McAllister Hall to College Avenue, to the College Entrance and then to the Auditorium.

SHIELDS AND ENCK WIN IN PRELIMINARY RACES

Trials Show That Penn State Will Have Speedy Cross Country Team

Drawing from a wealth of truck material such as has seldom been seen around Penn State, Coach Martin is developing one of the fastest cross country aggregations that has ever represented this institution.

Following the invocation by the Reverend Lewis Mudge of Harrisburg, Dean Ralph L. Watts, head of the School of Agriculture, addressed the gathering in behalf of the faculty and pledged their confidence and support to the new president.

It is quite likely that Coach Herman's squad has worked better during the past week than at any other time, despite the injuries that were received by many of the men.

PLAYERS WILL STAGE SHORT PLAY SATURDAY On Saturday evening The Penn State Players will put on a one act play in the Woman's Building before the Alumni Association of the Pennsylvania State College.

The cast is made up of Mr. Arthur C. Cloetting, Director of The Players, Mr. David D. Manson, and Miss Mary Mumford. It represents a triumph in cast selection, the roles being particularly well adapted to the characters who will portray them.
