AN HONORED GUEST

Penn State was honored during the past week-end by the presence at the Inauguration ceremonies of many noted men, but perhaps the most welcome was Governor Sprout...

A WONDERFUL CELEBRATION

The past week-end has shown what Penn State is capable of if she sets her mind on it. The Inauguration ceremonies were wonderfully impressive, and we wish to congratulate the student body for the part it played...

THE PURPOSE OF A "GET-WISE" DAY

As held in other colleges and universities, the "Get-Wise" Day plays a major part in acquainting the freshmen with the customs and traditions of their Alma Mater.

After the new men have had explained to them the customs and, we might say, the atmosphere of the college, other men set forth the advantages to be gained by entering into the various student activities.

In a like manner, the leaders among the student body in the other activities, such as the publications, debating and music, tell of their activities, explaining the manner of picking the successful candidates, the positions which are open, and the advantages to be gained by arriving at these positions.

In the institutions which now hold an annual "Get-Wise" Day, a great deal of enthusiasm is generated at the meeting. The new men are made to feel at home. They feel that they know their Alma Mater a little better and are tempted to broaden out and participate in the interesting activities which have been explained.

This idea is not altogether new at Penn State, although it has not been carried out here as in many other colleges. During the past year, at the freshmen class meetings, prominent men about the college appeared before the class of 1924, and endeavored to point out the Penn State traditions, and her multi-form activities.

The matter was taken up at a recent meeting of Student Council, and although no definite decision was arrived at, the consensus of opinion was that the custom should be investigated and if feasible instituted in the near future.

MINERS ASK FOR STATE AID TO ENLARGE WORK

Resolution Passed at Recent Conference to Eliminate Deplorable Condition in State

The Mining Conference of Mining and Geological Experts held during the Inauguration Ceremonies was largely attended and many important facts relating to the Mining School were discussed.

The first speaker of the conference was A. H. Holbrook, Acting Director of the Bureau of Mines at Washington. He spoke on the Functions of the Technical College in Industries.

Ruse N. Honler, Superintendent of Compensation and Rates of Harrisburg next spoke on Safety First from a financial standpoint, pointing out that machinery could be bought but that men could not and their life and limbs must be conserved.

Professor Colegrove has just returned from a tour in England and Wales where he has visited many of the important mines. His talk consisted in describing the workings of the best of the mines which he saw.

Concerning the problems of the Extension service, Professor Warner pointed out that the one most difficult to solve was that of providing a suitable school for the training of men in Mining, Metallurgy and Ceramics.

Other prominent men, experts on the subject of Mining and Geology, who spoke were Dr. D. P. McFarland, Professor H. J. Lohman, Edward V. Dinwiddie, a mining engineer, and Dr. G. A. Ashley, State Geologist, Harrisburg.

A very important resolution was passed at this conference. An drawn up by George H. Dike, reading as follows: Safety Appliance Co., president of the State.

Resolved That it is the recommendation of this conference that sufficient funds should be provided by the State Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania for greatly enlarging the scope of this work directly in the interests of the industries involved and indirectly to the benefit of the entire state.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION STAFF HOLDS CONFERENCE

The entire Agricultural Extension force of The Pennsylvania State College, including County Agents, Specialists, and Home Economics representatives—over one hundred people—gathered in room 100 Horticultural last Saturday morning for their second conference.

The remainder of the conference was given over to attending to miscellaneous matters of direct interest to the department.

HONORARY SCIENTISTS TO FORM COLLEGE UNIT

Dr. Burton E. Livingston, the permanent secretary of The American Association for the Advancement of Science, who was delegate to the Inauguration, remained over last Saturday to meet with the members of the Association at Penn State.

The Love Letters of A. Shorthorn

In My Room At Midnight

Dear Pansy, I'm simply overwhelmed with conspicuous things to talk about—only in a little time from the recent football game constrains me to remark to you on paper.

I couldn't tell you when the fun began, for I have bin hurrajin and hurrajin ever since we had unexpectinly cream at the berlin house on Wednesday evening.

Parades seem to be the habit of all small towns but our parade was different cause we didn't have the hole town in the parade—only half of us was aloud to participate.

I'll send you a pitcher of me in mine soon as the tudio fellow gets it ordered enuff. I don't be alarmed, Pansy, at my hair, my teeth, my clothes, my lunders round by love lins is not to top the bid from bleedin' Bein tekikely known as spril legins, they to us fellows was thumps is to a warden-legged man—they uphold the hedry.

No, I ain't an officer yet, but I'm heeded that way. Assistant korperel is my title from now on. Officers look best bout as big as his fellows only they ain't aloud to carry a big gun or wear such long whiskers as us. I wooden want to be an affiser tho' there only aloud to chew gum. Bout the only presure they got out of life is to wear differnt hats, my lunders, and desert to guess wether its goin to be pie or apple pie.

An after, the last prune had bin swallered—can't it wensent pie after all, we all makes a b-line for the muss meeting. A mass meetin' isent a mass, Pansy, it is simply pandymoneum broke lose in bout fourteen different derectations. Wat with lissenin to the brass band and singin an tryin to follow the breath between meals of a bunch of lambsure cheer leaders.

It's a wonder tale of the East—her rise from ragged waf of the desert sands to the silken darling of the Mighty One Pastime Theatre.

STATE AG. SECRETARY PLEADS FOR EXPANSION

Forceful Talk by Secretary Rasmussen Results in Passage of Two Resolutions

The conference of the School of Agriculture was the largest of any of the conferences of the various schools of the college, being attended by approximately two hundred and twenty people.

Penn State's Agricultural Experiment Station has done worst of agricultural research, the small amount of research that has been done along this line having been accomplished with funds intended for other purposes, and from annual Federal appropriations.

Secretary Rasmussen pointed out that Pennsylvania has never appropriated a cent for agricultural research, the small amount of research that has been done along this line having been accomplished with funds intended for other purposes, and from annual Federal appropriations.

Be it resolved therefore, that we go on record as heartily favoring this plan and as pledging to President Thomas our wholehearted support in carrying it out.

Dean E. S. Moore was requested to see that a copy of this resolution was forwarded to President Thomas and otherwise used in any way which is thought best to further the interest of the plan.

"Resolved" That this Conference recognizes the need, so ably presented by Secretary Rasmussen, for a greater, immediate development of agricultural research as an essential to the continuance of agricultural progress, and

"Resolved" that the chairman of the conference is hereby authorized in its behalf to appoint a suitable committee to consider the desirability of organizing a special, broadly representative body for the purpose of studying the present condition of The Pennsylvania State College and Agricultural Experiment Station in relation to the present demands upon them and, particularly, in detail, the present principal research needs of Pennsylvania Agriculture and the means for development of such research, with authorization to arrange for such organization.
