PENN STATE AND HARVARD BATTLE TO TIE, 21-21

PA. DAY PROGRAM MAY BE CHANGED FROM USUAL FORM

New President of Middlebury College Will Be Chapel Speaker Pennsylvania Day Sunday

TWO BIG GRID CONTESTS

Concert by Glee Club and Military Review Are Among Events For Big Week-End

Although no elaborate program will mark the celebration of Pennsylvania Day this year at Penn State on Saturday, November fifth, this does not signify that there will not be a wealth of activities taking place at this time. Two football games, a military review by the student cadet regiment and a concert by the glee club together with other social activities, such as house parties at the various fraternities and other dances, will make the week-end one of no small importance to Penn State.

The fact that there may be no Pennsylvania Day speaker will be the greatest departure from the program of other Pennsylvania Days. Because of the many prominent speakers who were at State College for the inauguration events, it has been thought advisable to dispense with that part of the customary program this year. However, a treat is promised for Penn State students when the new President of Middlebury College, Dr. Paul D. Moody, will speak. Every student will wish to greet and hear the head of the institution from which Penn State's own president comes.

Grid Contests Big Attraction Both the varsity football contest with Carnegie Tech and the Freshman game with the Pitt yearlings will attract many sport followers to State College for Pennsylvania Day. A train load of Carnegie Tech students are planning to come to the game in a special train in which they consider their most important game of the season. Even more Pittsburghers will be attracted to the game because the Pitt first year team also appears in action. The first contest appearance of the Penn State grid club will take place at seven-thirty in the evening when they will appear together with John Barnes Wells as a soloist. Mr. Wells is a noted New York tenor and composer and he will use many of his own compositions during the evening. He will be remembered as soloist at the Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest last year. He is also a member of the University Choir in New York City. The glee club will offer three numbers at the concert and the varsity quartet will also be included on the program to give one selection.

FACTS ON THE GAME

Well, it certainly was some game! Boston correspondents accorded it the best battle fought in the Harvard Stadium for the last five years. And Penn State was given the ball at the close of the game. Hitherto, the privilege of carrying the pigskin away has been granted only to the winner, but Harvard waived her rights after the tie score and Captain Kane, of Harvard presented the ball to Acting Captain Killinger, of Penn State.

Harvard's psychology worked in the first quarter despite preparations made to balk it. Penn State seemed stage struck and made costly fumbles that led directly to touchdowns for the Crimson.

But when that Nittany machine got going there was nothing Harvard could do but let it go. Bezdick's proteges had the best attack ever seen in Cambridge. Their three touchdowns came as the result of three long marches from the Nittany nine, thirty-two, and twenty-three yard lines, respectively.

Over forty thousand football fans saw the fight. A half hour before the first whistle blew, there were more people present than at the Harvard-Georgia game last week.

The Crimson rosters were worried sick after Lightner scored Penn State's third touchdown but their team came thru with a great punch and managed to knot the score.

We believe the tale would have been different though, had there been two more minutes of play. The Nittany Lion was going down the field, at a terrific clip and was twenty yards from the goal line when time was called.

Penn State played havoc with Harvard's resources so far as man power was concerned. The Crimson eleven used up all of its substitutes and almost had to call upon the Freshman team for aid.

DATE SET FOR JUNIOR PROM

Friday evening, February twenty-fourth is the date set for the Junior Prom by the Prom committee. No other definite plans have been made but it is the aim of the committee to make this year's affair better than ever in every possible respect.

FRESHMEN SCORE THREE TOUCHDOWNS IN GAME WITH MERCERSBURG

Cumberland County Team Unable To Check Powerful Rushes of Yearlings—Score 19-0

The Mercersburg Academy football team went down to their first defeat in two years when they bumped into the Penn State Freshman aggregation last Saturday afternoon at the home of the Cumberland Valley team. The 19-0 score indicates that the victory was a decisive one for Penn State. From the very first whistle until the end of the game Coach Herman's men were masters of the situation and completely surprised the Mercersburg squad which had been expecting to make a comparatively easy victory over Penn State. Throughout the entire game the Lion Cubs used a crushing attack and it was this that battered down the preparatory school team champions. Up until the time when the first whistle was blown the academy team had the impression that there was nothing in the way of keeping them from defeating Penn State Fresh by a great margin. Last week they made quite a brilliant showing against the Princeton Freshmen and their success at that time gave them a great deal of confidence. As soon as the first whistle of the game was blown, however, the Nittany rushes started and the Cumberland boys and when the Freshmen were on the offensive he was often responsible for the big holes which were torn in the academy line. Every member of the yearling's backfield played good football. Hartman and Kerstetter played brilliantly, hitting the opponent's line time and time again for large gains. Gregory also stood out prominently in the Penn State victory of football and was always on hand to make the necessary yardage when a first down was needed.

WEST VIRGINIA TEAM PAKES GAME SERIOUSLY

"Fat" Spears the former Dartmouth coach and the man that was in charge of the big green team when it played at Penn State last year is, according to all reports, making good at West Virginia. At least he is making the big Mountaineers think and take the game more seriously than they have in the past to such an extent that they weep over a defeat.

The Mountaineers have always been noted for their big heavy teams and this year Coach Spears is combining speed and lightning split in the team. It is certain that he has reached his goal when the team came in after the Pitt game and sat down in the locker room and cried.

YEAST COMPANY PROVIDES BIG RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

The North Western Yeast Co has provided a research Fellowship of $21,000 for the first year for the purpose of conducting an investigation to determine the influence of yeast on growth, development, appetite, and egg production of White Leghorn hens and pullets.

The investigation will be conducted under the supervision of Professor H. C. Knandel of the Poultry Husbandry Department and Professor R. Adam Dutton of the Department of Agricultural Chemistry. The investigations are considered of the greatest importance to the poultry industry in the entire country.

COLLEGE FARM EXPECTS FAVORABLE CORN CROP

Dean Waite of the School of Agriculture reports that the season has been very favorable for the corn crop and that he expects that about 14,000 bushels will be harvested from the college farms.

SYRACUSE DEFENSE CRUMBLES BEFORE NITTANY ATTACK

New York Soccerites Unable to Withstand Vicious Blue and White Onslaught

FINAL SCORE 3-0

Gaul, Miller, Traphoner Succeed In Shooting Goals in Hotly Contested Game

By a superior display of passing and shooting ability, the Penn State soccer aggregation was able to penetrate the Syracuse defense on three different occasions to score before the final whistle blew last Saturday. The contest was close throughout and at no time was either team able to claim marked superiority for a great length of time although spectators at the game agree that the Nittany line forced matters during the major portion of the afternoon.

The New Yorkers arrived on Friday afternoon in the best of shape for the coming struggle after having met the representatives of Lehigh and Haverford during the week. In the first game they were able to tie the strong Lehigh eleven during the closing minutes of the play but in the second game of the trip they were treated to a one-sided score at Haverford.

Syracuse won the toss and selected the eastern goal on the Armory Field. The game started with Traphoner, big Penn State center, sprang a surprise in the New York camp by pulling a long and swift pass to Captain Gregory on the outside left position who immediately deflected it up to the goal only to lose it when the Syracuse defense asserted itself and put the ball out of danger. Traphoner received it and dribbled it to the ten yard line when he sent a powerful boot toward the middle of the field. This first tally of the game came before the contest was five minutes old and served to arouse the fighting spirit of both teams. The rest of the ball was played in the middle of the field with the ball in Penn State territory most of the time because of the strong wind that blew from the west. Only the excellent work of Regner, Hosterman, and Longhurst kept the New Yorkers from scoring during this period.

Penn State Scores Again

With the opening of the second half, the Nittany booters gained the advantage of the wind and also the slope of the field. The period opened with an aggressive attack on the part of the Blue and White team which netted them another tally fifteen minutes later by Miller who shot a pretty goal from the side. This was the beginning of a deadlock that lasted until Traphoner and Gaul again came into prominence with a piece of cooperative play that was responsible for the final point of the contest. Time and again the Penn State line had marched up the field in an effort to get the ball and every time, the Syracuse backs were able to wrestle the ball from them and to return it with a long and low punt, but perseverance wins many a battle and the Nittany line eventually determined no thought of giving up the fight for another score. About ten minutes before the end of the game, the forward line reached the secondary goal line and there a lively scrimmage took place with Gaul seeking to clear a path for one of Traphoner's shots. At last, the ball was driven straight between the posts for the third and last tally of the opening game of the 1921 Penn State soccer season.

The manager was able to secure Dr. Arthur Watson to referee the contest. Mr. Watson is president of the Philadelphia Referees Association which supplies referees for all of the large soccer contests in the east.

25,000 PAMPHLETS SENT TO AG. CO. RESPONDENTS

The Correspondence Course in Agriculture and Home Economics is at present getting ready to mail 25,000 pamphlets to those in the state who have enrolled as students.

Professor Maier of the Correspondence Course in Poultry Husbandry reports that the course has been revised and that it is now composed of fifteen lessons where formerly it had but nine.

STUDENT FIREMEN MEET TONIGHT

The full quota of the Penn State Student Volunteer Fire Department, fifty men, has not yet been reached. The chief, C. J. Campbell, 22, announced that all students who desire to serve on the department should report to the hose room in the basement of the Library building, room 645, and the workings of the company will be explained at that time.

CARNEGIE TECH CROSS COUNTRY TEAM WILL BE HERE PENNA. DAY

Plaid Hatters Have Best Team in Years—Overwhelmed, Lehigh Saturday

Definite arrangements for a cross country meet with Carnegie Tech, to take place here on Pennsylvania Day, have at last been concluded and at that time the Plaid runners will bring one of the strongest hill and dale teams that has ever represented them to the Nittany hills. The strength of the Carnegie aggregation is seen by the fact that they ran away with the meet which was held at Lehigh at Bethlehem last Saturday afternoon. In this race six Tech runners finished before the first Brown and White racer was able to cross the line. Miller, Dykeman, Kelly, Gerson, Tubbs and Mendelhall are probably the best runners on the Carnegie Tech team and all of these men finished before the Lehigh Captains. They were able to score.

Shields, Snyder, Cook, Cooper, Hamilton, Edgerton, Wilhelm and a number of other Penn State hatters should certainly give the Carnegie Tech runners a lively race. Coach Martin will probably hold trials for the Penn State team this week during the latter part of this week.

Intercollegiate Trials Held Saturday at State College. The trials for the Intercollegiate meet which will take place in New York City on November twenty-first. A team of seven runners will represent Penn State in this meet. "L. J. Shields" will of course head the list and the other six men will be selected from the following who finished in the Intercollegiate meet at the same time: Regner, Hosterman, Longhurst, Snyder, Cook, Cooper, Hamilton, Edgerton, Wilhelm, Sigworth, Sterrett, Perry and Plesner. Snyder and Enck again ran a close race. Both men have been going along about the same pace this year and are leading the other men in cross country, with the exception of Shields.

The Freshmen trials for the Intercollegiate, which will be held at the same time and place as the varsity races, were also held Saturday afternoon. Horton, McCuro and Fitzpatrick again ran good races, finishing in the order named. The other men, including the yearling squad who finished were: Kerstetter, Longhurst, L. J. Shields, Pollock, Wiscand, Hanna, Price, Kerstetter, Russell, Kieseloff, Snyder, Montague, Hamilton and Slebert. From this list seven men will be selected to represent Penn State Freshmen in the big New York City meet on the twenty-first of next month.

CADETS PREPARING FOR BIG REVIEW ON PA. DAY

Lieutenant Colonel Conly, in charge of the Department of Military Science and Tactics, states that the student regiment should be in condition to present a creditable showing in the Pennsylvania Day Review. The Freshmen are progressing very well in the fundamental instruction, and by the time Penn State's big fall holiday arrives, they will no doubt be able to form a good parade. The fact that the Third Corps Area Headquarters, West Point, the Regiment and Military Department makes it doubly desirable that the R. O. T. C. unit here stage a review that will be worthy of Penn State.

DEAN SACKETT ATTENDS SWARTHMORE INAUGURATION

Dean Sackett of the Engineering School left on Friday for Swarthmore where he represented the Pennsylvania State College at the Inauguration of Swarthmore's new president, Dr. Frank Ascholtz, M. A. LL.D. In attendance with Dean Sackett were Dr. John B. Hill, professor of Botany at this institution. Dr. Hill is a graduate of the University of Missouri and he represented that institution at the Inauguration of Swarthmore's new "Prexy". Both he and Dean Sackett attended the Inauguration dinner on Friday night and also took part in the Inauguration on Saturday. The latter affair was held under the Swarthmore outdoor theatre. One of the Swarthmore delegates was in attendance, one of which was Governor Spruiell. President Ascholtz recently represented Swarthmore at the Inauguration of President Thomas.

BRADFORD COUNTY CLUB

An important meeting of the Bradford County Club will be held this morning in room 315 Old Main at seven o'clock.

FORWARD PASS SAVES CRIMSON FROM DEFEAT

Salvi To Play Here Saturday in Third Number of "Y" Course

Noted Harpist Will Show Qualities Of Famous Thirty Thousand Dollar Harp

Alberto Salvi, a son of Italy and the world's acknowledged greatest harpist will appear with his $30,000 gold harp before the Penn State students on October twenty-ninth in the Auditorium. He comes to State College under the management of the Metropolitan Musical Bureau as the third number of the "Y" entertainment course. It is not often that the students of Penn State have the opportunity of having such a renowned artist presented to them, and it is certain that the Auditorium will be crowded by those who wish to hear Salvi.

Alberto Salvi, the phenomenal harp virtuoso, was born in Venice, Italy in 1838—the son of an Italian harp maker of that city. He took his first lessons on a miniature harp which his father made when he was a child, even before he began his school days. This boy wonder won the Royal Scholarship Prize—and thus received all his training at the expense of the Italian Government. He graduated with the highest honors three years ahead of his class. He became a composer and director and is hailed today as the greatest concert harpist that the world has ever produced. Probably never has any concert artist been a greater revelation to his audience than Salvi. He has revolutionized harp playing and has accomplished brilliant results which were, up until his time, considered impossible for the instrument.

Mr. Salvi, a harpist, is in a class all by himself. No other can be compared to him for he has such qualifications as has no other musician on the earth. He is a thinking man, he thought that the harp is a thinking instrument. It usually is in the hands of musicians, but Salvi has created in it an instrument of power and of a new character. He has lifted the harp from the category of a mere accompaniment to a real masculine instrument.

DR. BARBOUR SPEAKS ON "THE UNATTAINED"

Rochester Theologian Applies Sermon Directly to the Life of the College Man

One of the most powerful sermons ever heard in the Schwab Auditorium was delivered last Sunday when Reverend Clarence A. Barbour, a noted theologian and President of the Rochester Theological Seminary spoke at both chapel services. The subject of his message was "The Unattained" and the day in which he put this message across has not been equalled in any chapel service this year. In speaking of the unattained he applied his message to Penn State, the advantages of a college education and to life in general.

To open his address the Reverend Doctor Barbour used an illustration which was brought to his mind by the recent Centenary Celebration of the landing of the Pilgrims. He recalled the early life of the Puritan forefathers, telling how a small band of these men landed from the Mayflower upon their first winter in America under conditions of misery, cold and poverty. The winter proved to be a very disastrous one to the early American settlers. Surrounded by ice, it was impossible for the Mayflower to make the trip back to England and by the time that the severe winter was over forty-one of the Pilgrims had died. In the spring when the ice broke up and the Mayflower was ready to make her return journey the celebration of the landing of the pilgrims how many would be ready to start back. In reply the fifty-five survivors decided to remain in the new world to "stick it out" and seek the unattained. It was the American people received one of their greatest characteristics, to seek after the unattained and to "stick it out."

In continuing his address the Reverend Dr. Barbour spoke of the long time that it takes to draw lines on maps and he immediately applied his message of seeking after the unattained to Penn State. In speaking of the college man the doctor stated that the more that the average student learns the more he realizes how little he really knows.

Nittany Gridders Stage Uphill Fight And March Length Of Field For Three Touchdowns

Table with columns: Team, Touchdowns, Goals from Touchdowns, First Downs, Punts, Forward Passes, Yards Gained in Scrimmage, Yards Lost in Scrimmage. Rows include Harvard and Penn State with various statistics.

In the face of a fourteen point lead, Penn State's football combination led a cyclonic drive against the redoubtable Harvard eleven and established a 21 to 14 point advantage, only to have the Crimson warriors, refusing to admit defeat, stubbornly push over a tying touchdown in the closing minutes of the last period, the game ending in a 21-21 tie. The contest played in the Harvard Stadium at Cambridge before a crowd of 35,000 spectators was replete with thrills. In the first quarter, it appeared as if Penn State did not have a chance and was in for a lacing at the broad Harvard hand. The Crimson boys received the kick-off and steadily and restlessly marched down the field, making first down after first down and finally crossed the Blue and White goal line. On the next kick-off, Harvard started to repeat the performance aided by two Nittany fumbles and a fifteen yard penalty, but was stopped on Penn State's five yard line by the whistle.

When the second period opened, Harvard promptly pushed over the second touchdown, making her total of fourteen points. At that moment, the Blue and White prospects looked as black as night. With Captain Snell, Madera, and Hives out of the game, it appeared as if Penn State did not have a chance to overtake the Boston advantage. But here the Penn State split came to the front. A grim determination seized the Nittany warriors and from that moment they were out to win. On the kick-off State got possession of the ball, and with Wilson now in the lineup, they swept down the field, tearing through the Harvard line as if it were so much paper, until Lightner plunged over for Penn State's first score.

Wilson Makes Sixty Yard Run

In the third period, the ball swayed back and forth into State territory until Wilson put off the most spectacular play of the game, running that Harvard defense to sixty yards and being stopped only four yards from the Crimson goal posts. On the fourth down, Lightner completing Wilson's run, crossed the Harvard line and tied the score.

Harvard Desperately Flees Score

The sting of impending defeat goaded the Crimson team to frantic efforts and following the kick-off, they slowly but steadily pushed back the Nittany defense. The heavy backs repeatedly smashed into the Blue and White and the Harvard eleven fought its way to State's 15 yard line. Here a well executed forward pass, eluding the Nittany team, was hurled to a waiting Harvard player who dashed over to Nittany goal, once more tying the score 21 to 21. The game was now nearly over, but Penn State immediately started to break the deadlock. Killinger received the kick-off on his own 10-yard line and immediately the Blue and White team started down the field in an effort to reach the Crimson goal before the final whistle should put an end to the heroic contest. Successive forward passes and line plunges netted 12 yards. Gratiwolk put the ball only fifteen yards from the goal when the whistle put an end to play. The final score stood Penn State 21, Harvard 21.

Wilson, Lightner, and Killinger Star In Backfield The line plunging of Wilson was one of the bright lights of the game. He could be counted on every time for several yards and his spectacular sixty yard run was largely responsible for Penn State's second touchdown. Lightner's speciality of line smashing was also apparent as he took possession of the ball. Killinger ran the team to perfection and he was also one of the chief ground gainers. Captain Snell was missed at fullback, his place being taken by Knabb, Hives being injured near the beginning of the game. Madera sustained a serious injury on the opening play of the game and was taken from the contest somewhat dampening the spirits of the Blue and White team. He will probably be out the whole season. Hives who substituted for Madera played a splendid game. The five ends, McCollum and Stafford played the entire game, running down punts, and frustrating end runs, and scooping up forward passes. The rest of the line bore the brunt of the Harvard assault and played a fine game.

First Period Penn State kicked off to Owen who, by a splendid interference on the ball, back to Penn State's 15-yard line where he was downed by Reddison. On this play Madera was injured and Hives substituted. Chapin hit right tackle for five and Buell went around left end for five more. Chapin made 3 at left tackle. A forward pass over the left side of Penn State's line, Buell to Chapin, put the ball on the Blue and White 25-yard line for first down. Owen made a scant 3 yard at left tackle. From fake kick formation, Owen made 5 yards. Owen then hit the line for 4 yards, lacking a foot less than Knabb replaced Hives. Owen made it a first down on the Nittany line. Two cross bars at left for 4 yards. Two more line plunges made it a first down on the three yard line. Chapin made half the distance on a smash at left guard. A fumble by Chapin lost 4 yards at this point. Chapin made five yards and Owen plowed through center for the first score. Harvard kicked the goal. Score—Harvard 7, Penn State 0. Chapin took Penn State's kickoff on the 3-5 yard line and by a pretty piece of off-line running ran the ball back to the 33-yard line. Gratiwolk replaced Owen. Harvard was penalized five yards for off-side. Fitzhugh punted to Penn State's 32-yard line. Penn State fumbled on the first rush and Ladd recovered on Penn State's 25 yard line. Gratiwolk made a yard. Buell made five at right end. Gratiwolk made another yard at left tackle. Buell attempted a kick from the field which did not leave the ground. Penn State recovering on her own 21-yard line. Two cross bars at left. punt formation netted eight yards, but Penn State was caught holding on one of these and penalized fifteen yards for holding. Penn State punted to Buell on Penn State's 15-yard line. Buell fumbled and Hufford, who came down the field fast, recovered. Penn State again used the back shift play and two of these attempts made it a first down. Another such play netted 5 yards but Penn State fumbled and Harvard recovered the ball on her own 37-yard line. Standing on his own 30 yard line Fitzhugh punted outside on the Penn State 3-yard line. Buell returning it to the 25-yard line, Buell returning it 12 yards. Three off tackle smashes made 3 yards. Gratiwolk put the ball a yard away from the goal. (Continued on last page)
