CARNEGIE TECH HOPES TO STOP PENN STATE

 against each other, "Boz," and his assistants, Harlow, Martin, and Launch, drove the players on and on, giving the ball to one team and then to the other, jumped back and forth amidst the plays halting the defense and strengthening the attack. Special stress was laid on defensive tactics in order that Tech attacks may be stopped with greater facility than those of Georgia Tech last week. Defense against forward passes was especially pointed out. On the offense, the first Nittany backfield worked with remarkable cohesion and cooperation, a characteristic which has been very prominent in the last two contests. The entire offense is truly a great one, an attack that only an extremely well-balanced and well-informed eleven can halt. In K. Harlow, Wilson, Lightner, and Captain Snell, who has recovered from his recent illness and is fit for duty once more, Penn State has a champion set of backs with the heavy line is almost invulnerable and is a big factor in the last marches of the Blue and White machine. Carnegie Tech will do remarkably well if it stops the Nittany offense Saturday. It has made elaborate preparations toward checking a Penn State advance, especially in the passing department, but it is doubtful if these measures will prove adequate. Coach Bezel's intricate and dazzling system of forward passes has proven a pitfall for every eleven met to date.

McCollum Out of Game
 Penn State will be represented in the backfield tomorrow by Captain Snell at full, Wilson at left half, Lightner at right half, and Killinger at quarter. Snell has fully recovered from his throat trouble and the other men are also in fighting trim. On the line, there will be a change from the usual line-up. McCollum, who played such a wonderful game last Saturday, bruised his right shoulder badly in the last quarter at that time and will not play against Carnegie Tech next week. His place at left end will be taken by Frank '21, who played on the Freshman eleven last year and who has been playing on the second varsity team all this season. The remainder of the line will be composed of the same individuals as started last Saturday, namely, Hufford-right end, McMahon-right tackle, Boden-right guard, Benz, center, Baer-left guard, and Hills, left tackle.

Class Elections Antiquated
 The present method of electing men to Student Council and for the other offices was discussed. It was pointed out that men do not know who they are voting for under the present system of electing to the Student Council. The system has been outgrown by Penn State and some other method must be substituted. It was suggested that each school elect its own repre-

ENGINEERING STUDENTS ATTEND A. S. M. E. MEETING

 the work carried on under the direction of Mr. Wallace and the other seventy engineers of national reputation extending over a period of six months in every section of the country, professor Wood will appoint in the near future a committee to carry on a similar investigation under the jurisdiction of the central section of this society. The purpose of the investigation will be to concentrate the benefits derived from the national drive and to develop and improve local industry.

Mr. Jordan Defends the Laborer
 In one of the principal speeches of the evening, Mr. J. P. Jordan of a consulting engineering firm of New York City presented one of the finest defenses of the laboring class, as the human class, that has been given in this vicinity within a long period of time. The theme of his talk was the advise ability of giving the working man a thorough consideration for the work being done by him. If the manufacturer would become acquainted with his men, their needs and their desires, they in turn would take a more lively interest in the work of the firm. One of the chief ways of bringing about this condition is the installation of a cost accounting system whereby the foreman may become acquainted with the actual cost of production and the foreman in turn will divulge more his plans for activity to his employer.

Students on Inspection Trip Proceeding the meeting at the Park Hotel, students from Bucknell and Penn State inspected factories that are located in Williamsport. Thirty-five mechanical engineers and forty two industrial engineers from the college besides the faculty representation made up the Penn State delegation. The first plant visited was that of the Locomotive Rubber Company in which the process of making rubber goods was explained and the intricate machinery inspected. There are five alumni of the college connected with this firm in the accounting and personnel departments. The Rishell Furniture Company was next visited and the method of routing proved to be of interest to all. This company makes only the highest grade of furniture, applying stain, varnish, and enamel by spraying. The polishing of the product is accomplished with special compressed air machines and electric vibrators. Warehouses and distributing centers are located in Philadelphia and New York City to supply the eastern demand.

After the inspection of the two plants was completed, the students gathered at a banquet held in the Park Hotel of the city after which the formal meeting of the A. S. M. E. took place.

CHESS CLUB MAY JOIN INTERCOLLEGIATE LEAGUE

The Penn State Chess Club has received an invitation recently to become a member of the intercollegiate chess league. This league is an organization established some years ago to promote interest among college students in the intricate game of chess. There is only a certain number of colleges allowed in the league and the local club received its invitation through the vacancy left by the withdrawal of one of the other institutions. There will be a meeting on Monday evening at seven o'clock in room 314 Old Main for all interested in chess at which time plans will be discussed for matches with Pitt, Carnegie Tech, New York University and several other eastern colleges. At this meeting efforts will be made to create more interest in chess among the fellows here at the college than is being shown at the present time. Last year at this time somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty men had signified their intention of trying out in the local matches while this year only about ten have reported. Local matches to select the team will be conducted in the order of a tournament so that each man who cares to try out for the team will have a fair chance.

CO-EDS HAVE CONTESTS SLATED FOR TOMORROW

 bill were staged last Wednesday afternoon, November 2, when the Seniors engaged the Freshmen in a net contest on Stone House field. Each class was successful in winning one of the two games which were played. The Senior team in volleyball has the following members: J. Ragan, A. Williams, C. Pouché, C. Pharo, D. Rodgers, P. Manifold, and F. Gibbons. Those who have made the Freshman team are: Weaver, Herman, Heffner, Reed, Glance, Jense, Cassel, Wilson, and Adams.

STEVENS TECH INSTALS NOVEL ALARM SYSTEM

A novel fire alarm system has been installed in the Physics Department at Stevens Tech which depends upon the principle of the expansion of air when heated. The apparatus consists of a copper capillary tube which suddenly receives heat from an outside source. The tube contains nothing but air and the pressure caused by its expansion is sufficient to close an electric circuit and ring an alarm. If there is no immediate response to this first summons, the apparatus then automatically sends an alarm to the city fire department. The instrument is very sensitive to sudden changes in temperature, the alarm responding in about sixteen seconds at the test.

PITT FRESHMEN DEFEAT STRONG CORNELL ELEVEN
 The Pitt yearling eleven humbled the Cornell Frosh to the tune of 27-7 in a fast game on Forbes Field last Saturday. The Panther cuts secured most of their gains by well executed and accurate forward passes and off-tackle plunges, netting them ten yards or more each time. The Cornell team had two chances to score in the second period but were able to carry the ball over for only one tally.

C. OF P. CO-EDS MISSED UP IN CLASS SCRAP

Polled in their attempt to learn the identity of the Fresh girls, the coeds at the University of Pennsylvania, made a determined effort to kidnap the entire class, but without success. A large group of the Sophomore girls waited at the entrance of College Hall until the Freshman classes were dismissed and then made an attempt to carry off any girl whom they thought might be a possible candidate for the office.

The fight was a spectacular one while it lasted with feminine attire flying in all directions, girls rolling down steps, pulling and tearing. The scrap was of short duration, even the fierce, when the appearance to the Dean of Education put an end to the attempted crime. The scene of green ribbons, hats, and torn clothing left behind, gave all the indications of a royal fight.

The Sophomores, however, forced the name of the elected president from one of the girls by threats of torture and claim that they will have their plan in execution before the end of the week.
