World War Heroes Honored at Armistice Day Ceremony--Deeds are Praised

The great sacrifice of human life in the World War should not be in vain, was the one great thought which was expressed in the Armistice Day meeting in the Auditorium last Friday morning.

Address by Professor Arthur Deering, Dr. W. S. Dye and T. C. Pakenham marked the State College services. Members of the Nittany Post 245, of the American Legion, in uniform and scattered in all parts of the audience added a fitting touch of color to the affair.

Dr. Dye Speaks "Two years ago, we celebrated the signing of the armistice and today we honor the unknown American soldier," said Dr. Dye in opening his speech.

Cold and Snow Keep Opponents from Exhibiting Any Real Football Ability

Struggling desperately in a field of mud and slush under a steady fall of snow, the Penn State Freshmen closed their gridiron season with outside teams last Saturday afternoon on Old Beaver Field by succumbing to the Dartmouth Yearlings, 7 to 0.

Both elevens showed flashes of form during the first half but with the exception of the first quarter lacked the necessary punch to score when within striking distance of the goal line.

Visitors Score Three Forward Passes The Dartmouth Yearlings won the game in the first quarter by executing the pass to Stevens after they had worked the ball down the field through exchange of kicks and a fifteen yard penalty for Heiman's team.

The second half found the Nittany Frosh in better condition and they kept the ball in enemy territory almost the entire time. Their attack was more concentrated and their defense was stronger.

The playing of Lowry and Yost for the Blue and White Yearlings stood out throughout the game. Lowry played as fullback on the defense and was a tower of strength stopping the Green backs time after time.

WORLD CONCLAVE ON LIMITATION OF ARMAMENT OPENS

Secretary of State Hughes Outlines American Plan for Naval Disarmament

LARGE REDUCTION SOUGHT

Detailed Proposals Cause Surprise--Drastic and Sweeping Measures Advocated

With the opening of the world convence on the limitation of armaments at Washington last Saturday morning, began the history of one of the greatest convences ever held. The greatness of this convence is measured in the influence which it controls over the future welfare and prosperity of the entire world.

At the call of President Harding, assembled for the purpose of considering ways and means of ridding the world of one of the most potent influences that cause wars.

Open Diplomacy Employed Consternation, surprise, and astonishment can be seen in the faces of the many delegates when Secretary Hughes submitted America's detailed scheme of immediate limitation of armament only one half hour after the Conference had opened.

In the plainest of language, the Secretary of State told the assemblage what the United States was ready to do and what would be expected of the other powers.

Some of the principal features of the Secretary's address contain impressive statistics involving proposed tonnage to be destroyed, the number of the different fighting vessels to be demolished, and the sections of policies to be abandoned immediately.

PLAYERS OFFER LATEST PRODUCTION, "NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH" FRIDAY

Work On Popular Comedy Nearing Completion--Excellent Cast Insures Success

After two months of intensive training, the Penn State Players will present their first super-production of the year this Friday evening in the Auditorium at eight-fifteen o'clock.

The play in question made its professional run with William Collier and it has been the good fortune of very few plays to enjoy the mammoth success that it received in city after city.

It is a rollicking comedy, with here and there touches of human nature that seem to go deeper than the light or vein of the street and stage of the vaudeville.

MISS MORGAN PLEASES IN SECOND APPEARANCE Miss Mona Morgan made her second appearance before a Penn State audience last Thursday evening when she presented an interpretative reading of Shakespeare's delightful comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew."

On account of the shortness of "The Taming of the Shrew," Miss Morgan filled out her evening's program with two other sketches from Shakespearean drama.

PENN STATE TEAM PICKED

Freshman Hill and Dale Men Will Compete Also--Class Scrap Tomorrow

Eighteen of the leading American collegiate cross country teams will strive for the title of national champions when the Intercollegiate meet is held in Van Courtland park next Monday afternoon.

In the early part of the season it was expected that the Blue and White would have one of the most formidable cross country teams in the east, but its defeat at the hands of Carnegie Tech in the first and only game so far this season, evidently put Coach Martin's squad in anything but the first class of American Collegiate cross country teams.

As a result of the trials which were held last Saturday afternoon the following men will represent Penn State in the Intercollegiate: Enok, Snyder, Cooper, Shultz, Stults, and Wendt.

On the same day on which the varsity runners strive for the national championship, the yearling cross country team will endeavor to capture the championship in the Second Annual Freshman Run, held by the Intercollegiate Association of the Amateur Athletes of America.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 the annual underclass scrap between the Freshman and Sophomore will be run over a three mile course. The race will start on the road between the Armory and the Library and will finish on the track at New Beaver Field.
