PANTHER TIES LION IN MUDDY CONTEST

(Continued from first page) Year was particularly good. But on the other hand, so was Tiny McMahon and Stan McCollum.

It was only to be expected that the same offensive tactics which had caused Harvard, Georgia Tech, Lehigh, Carnegie Tech and the Navy so much trouble, would be used in this game. During the first few plays it also added to this list Pop Warner's proteges, but as soon as this tricky attack was solved, the Lion's troubles began. As a result, Killinger was forced to kick eleven times when further gains were impossible.

A notable feature of the game was the fact that there was no long drives down the field by either team. The biggest drive of the contest came in the third period when Pitt unleashed an offensive which netted three first downs. Penn State rosters drew a sigh of relief, however, when Harry Wilson intercepted Davies' forward pass or the Blue and White's 15-yard line and when Killinger punted the oval into neutral territory.

State's Chance to Score Penn State's best chance to score came during the second period when Kelly punted to Davies on the latter's five yard line. Davies carried the oval to the 15-yard line but fumbled when he was tackled. Ray Baer recovered the ball on the next play. Wilson repeated Davies' performance and Pitt recovered on her 22-yard line. Then Colonna also failed to hold on to the ball and McCollum fell on it. This triple exchange of fumbles gave the Nittany Lion the ball in the shadow of Pitt's goal posts but Killinger, Lightner and Wilson could not seem to make the necessary yards and when on the fourth down a forward pass, Killinger to Wilson was grounded, the ball went to Pitt on the 15-yard line. The game in detail.
