TIME TO WORK

With the final examinations less than two weeks off, the time for some real intensive study has come for the majority of the student body. The past few months have been wonderfully full ones for Penn State and the numberless activities aside from the regular academic work has served to distract to some extent from our studies with the result that an unusual number of below grades was reported at the end of the below grade period.

The past few months have indeed been full ones. Scarcely a month after the opening of school in the fall the inauguration of our new Prexy was held, an event which will be long remembered and which will be a landmark in the history of Penn State.

Immediately after this event, the football season began in full blast and, as the team won game after game from the mightiest opponents, the sport occupied a major portion of the student attention. As the biggest and most spectacular contests were played away from home many of the students dropped their books on the week-ends and witnessed the downfall of the giants of the gridiron world at the hands of the Nittany eleven.

All these things demand a certain portion of the students' attention and serve to draw their minds from the purely academic work, which is, after all is considered, the reason for their being here.

This matter of below grades deserves the close attention of every student. Indeed if a large amount of intensive study is not done many will have to prepare themselves for an informal exit from the halls of learning.

The time to work and to work hard has come. We have returned from a generous Christmas vacation during which we all have had ample time for rest and recreation and the storing up of physical energy and mental stimulus.

A BIG YEAR AHEAD

The outcome of the year just passed gives us the hope and expectation that the one now opening will bring continued success to Penn State. The past months with their multi-form activities have seen many Nittany triumphs, especially in the realm of sport.

There is a possibility of just as many athletic triumphs in the coming months as in the past four. It is not impossible for a championship basketball team to merge from a green but earnest and able squad. Consider wrestling, boxing and winter track.

In other things besides sports, the year 1922 is destined to be an important one in the annals of Penn State. One important thing which the new year holds for us is the furtherance of the university idea, the conversion of Penn State College into Penn State University.

Another thing demanding our attention is the erection of the Memorial Tablet to the Penn State men who died in the World War. The fund for its construction is now nearly sufficient, and a little extra effort will make this memorial a reality.

Other projects will undoubtedly spring up to claim the attention of the college as the weeks go by. All in all, the year 1922 promises to be an eventful time in the history of the college.

CHAPEL PULPIT TO BE FILLED BY DR. TALBOT

Penn State students will have the opportunity of again hearing an old friend, one of the most noted ministers of the present day, the Right Reverend Ethelbert Talbot, pastor of the Bethlehem Diocese of the Episcopal Church.

Dr. Talbot is a native of Missouri but he does not come here to "be shown," rather he has something to show the students of this institution in the form of a sermon.

studying mankind from all points of view. He is considered an authority on human nature and lived up to his reputation in the sermon "Life" which he delivered here last year.

Bishop Talbot is a graduate of Dartmouth, acquiring his B. A. degree from that institution in 1870. Three years later he was graduated from the General Theological Seminary.

The Reverend Dr. Talbot is not new to Penn State. He has been a regular visitor at this institution for a number of years. Last year he spoke at the chapel services which were held on October twenty-fourth.

A TRIBUTE

During the showing of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" at the Pitt Theatre in Pittsburgh recently, Samuel Hargin Church, President of Carnegie Institute, wrote the management as follows:

"I saw the performance of 'The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse' at the Pitt Theatre last night, and I want to congratulate you for securing this wonderful picture for Pittsburgh. The natural beauty of the scenes of peace, the horror of the scenes of war, the mass movement of thousands of men and women in a single group, the symbolism of warning and prophecy in the figure of the Stranger, the pitiless ride of the Four Horsemen through the lurid clouds and across the scorched face of the earth, and after all that the fascinating story itself in unbroken continuity by some of the best acting that has ever been done on the screen, make this production one of the greatest achievements of the moving picture world.

There will be four presentations of the picture during its showing at the Opera House, Bellefonte, TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10 and 11, with daily matinees.
