MATMEN STRIVING FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

legiate Wrestling Association will be the Penn State mat athletes who are in the best of condition, in fact in better condition than they have been before during this season. After a week of unusually hard workouts hikes and short trips they are ready to enter the lists against the best that the east can produce.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Coach Deitz placed each man on the mat under a continuous fire of twenty-five seconds of wrestling, only interrupting each contest to send in some new opponent to test the endurance of the varsity men. In many of the classes three and four men were used by the coach in succession to give the varsity candidate a full period of intensive grappling. And each man gave a good account of himself.

Captain Watson who will appear at Lehigh for the last time in the varsity of a varsity wrestler can be expected to exert himself to the utmost in an effort to uphold the championship title that he now holds. Wetnschenk is feeling in excellent condition except for a minor injury that is in the form of a bruise on Evans in the 135 pound class is afflicted with a burn on his hip which has given him trouble throughout the last three weeks of the season. This injury however has improved considerably during the last few days and he may spring a surprise on his grappling opponents. Paules has never been in better condition and he also may be looked upon as a contender to be considered for high rating. The work of the 145 pounder during the last week has shown the wisdom of the choice of the coach on this division.

Wilson will follow in the 175 pound class and he will no doubt atone for the unfortunate reverses he suffered earlier in the season. A change has been made in the heavy weight division Burdon was selected to substitute for Runnel in this class and any prediction as to his performance would be unsound. On the practice mats Burdon has shown no little ability in the struggling and it is thought that the new heavy weight will duplicate the work of his teammates, even though he has not yet appeared in a varsity meet.

The matches are being held today and tomorrow forenoon. In these contests, teams from Columbia, Yale, Cornell, Lehigh, Penn, Princeton and Penn State will contend for the eastern intercollegiate championship, which Penn State has held for the last four years. It may be expected that the Blue and White matmen will bring into play all the team qualities—strength, skill and endurance—and, acquired, or possessed in retaining this championship for one more year.

for the Victor Talking Machine Company. Each year they come to America after spending six months touring together in Switzerland, and in this way bring with them a new and unique program with each class.

Charles Cadman occupies a distinctive place in the American music world. He is the composer of "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water" and "At Dawning." He has created a great amount of propaganda for American Indian folk song, and as a co-star in his performance, he has the beautiful Princess Tsianina (translated "Wild Flower"), a Cherokee-Creek Indian maiden who is a charming mezzo-soprano. Tsianina has appeared as soloist for most of the large musical festivals including symphony orchestras and clubs.

Among the lighter numbers which are to complete the program are Strickland Gillilan, Francis Joyner, Alton Packard, and Laurant, the great magician Gillilan is a supreme humorist, a graduate of Ohio University, and he is reported to keep his audience in a continual uproar of laughter.

Francis Joyner is a noted characterist. His long training on the American stage has eminently fitted him for the work which he is pursuing. For twenty years he has been a player of note on the dramatic stage and the motion picture screen, playing with Mary Pickford, Ethel Clayton, William Farnum and many others. "Moments with Great Actors" is a feature of Mr. Joyner's program, showing impersonations of many of the greatest actors in some of their leading roles. Among these might be mentioned impersonations of Sh. Henry Irving, Leo Dietrichstein, Richard Mansfield and Lionel Barrymore.

Alan Packard is an entertaining, funny and instructive cartoonist. He has a unique way of bringing out the characteristics of the human race. Philadelphia papers have recently declared him to be one of the most versatile and entertaining humorists on the stage.

The final number on the program will be an entertainment by the Great Laurant, "the man of many mysteries." He is held in high esteem by the American Society of Magicians and was recently given a gold medal by that organization. He does not depend upon his magic entirely to please his audience. He improves his entertainment with proper musical settings, due to Miss Gretta Baynes, who adds grace and charm to the magic performance, by her accomplishments at the piano.

be granted according to ability. Among the varsity men appearing in tomorrow's races are Captain Barron Hill and Kauffman in the 50 yard low and high hurdles; Grubb, Taylor, Moore and Edgerston in the 50 and 220 yard dashes; Enek, Noble, Snyder and Cooper in the distance events; and there is a possibility that Shields and Heitrich, who have been nursing injuries, may take part in the mile and half mile races respectively. Coach Martin is on the lookout for good material in all of the field events. He needs good men for the weights, broad and high jumps, and the pole vault, and is hoping that some of the Freshmen and Sophomores reporting for these events may show possibilities of development.

As has been the case at the former handicap meets held so far this season, all the regular intercollegiate track and field events will be scheduled in tomorrow's games. The great number of participants will in all probability necessitate the holding of preliminaries and semi-finals in all of the events.

Strenuous training for members of the varsity team, in preparation for the outdoor season which will open with a southern trip at Easter time, will begin next week. Coach Martin is facing two of the strongest track teams of the East on his trip and will lose no time in getting his men in the best of condition for the Georgetown and V. P. I. meets.

SCHOOL FIVES FIGHTING FOR SECTIONAL HONORS

Bradcock High was a runner-up for the division championship but lost to McKeesport Tuesday by the score of 25 to 27. Waynesburg High is coached by Frank Wolfe, '21, who captained Penn State's floor team two seasons ago, and is favored to win out in the western division.

Six teams are in the running for the crown in the southeastern section. Harliburg Tech, winner of the first tournament ever held here, must encounter Reading High to determine which aggregation will play Little High and Waynesboro High in preliminary rounds before facing the victor of a meeting between Allentown High and Catawauqua High. The winner of the final game will represent the southeastern division at Penn State next week.

The leadership of the northeastern division lies between Nanticoke High, Mahanoy City High, Jenkins Township High, and Newport Township High. Nanticoke and Mahanoy City will probably mix it up in the first round, the winner of this contest to meet the victor of a match between Jenkins Township and Newport Township. From the third battle will be picked the team to enter the meet here.

In the central portion of the state Altoona, Mt. Union, Renovo, Windhorst and Williamsport High Schools remain in the race for the championship. Williamsport High will be remembered as a strong contender in last year's tournament, losing out to McKeesport in the final round by the score of 24 to 21. It stands a strong chance of fighting its way to the tournament again this year.

BEZDEK COMMENTS ON FOOTBALL EVILS

the same as the average person considers a Greek or Latin prof," commented the popular Penn State mentor as he smiled, leaned back in his chair and gazed out of the window.

Bezdek then strongly emphasized the fact that the football coach should not be a professional man merely interested in this sport and remaining at the college only during the grid season.

Such a man is not interested in the college. He only wants to turn out a winning team by any method which he can put across. "He should be abolished," said Bezdek.

"Bez" then explained the real duties of a coach. He should be one residing at the college the whole year around, in order to feel the pulse of student sentiment, and to really become a part of the institution. The coach should know the college traditions, be interested in the problems of the campus, and really become a part of the college. Football is more than a sport. It is a crystallization of college spirit and the coach is largely responsible for that spirit.

"The coach is necessary during the game," asserted Bezdek with decision. He then explained how instances are bound to arise where the older experience of the coach is necessary to maintain fair play at a time when those younger than he would "lose their heads" in a case where a decision goes against them. The coach also prevents rioting and preserves order on the playing bench during the progress of a game. At that time, he can teach sportsmanship and impart a love of fair play to those near him who otherwise might become unfair critics and knockers.

WINTER SEASON ENDS WITH MASS MEETING

Penn State man can do and ought to do for his Alma Mater. It is a tradition with us that we always seek with pleasure to honor those who have achieved success. But we gather here this evening with mixed feelings of regret and praise. We are sorry to lose his valuable services, yet we can not refrain from praising the man. We know that new laurels await him in that commendable university in New York State. In recognition of the worth and services of Harlow, the student body would like to make its expression felt in some tangible manner. We thought that no more appropriate remembrance could be secured than a loving cup.

easy matter to form a conference. "I was brought up in the Western Conference, but I do not favor their system. It destroys the initiative of the individual colleges," he said.

All of the colleges are bound to a set of rules and there is nothing left to do but to follow them. In the east, each college is benefitted because it has its own problems to solve. This a great aid in creating a fine spirit. A gentleman's agreement exists between the colleges concerning eligibility and other questions and this is better than the iron-clad rule method.

Bezdek admits that there should be some method of bringing the colleges together to make decisions on common questions. However, a conference, similar to the Western Football Conference is not necessary for this purpose.

Only Minor Problems

That all of these are minor problems, is Bezdek's opinion. They will be solved in time and should cause no large amount of worry. The main problem of football is that of using the sport as a means to develop undergraduate sentiment, college spirit, and love of fair play and clean sportsmanship.

As a reply to the presentation of the silver loving cup former Coach Harlow said, "all that I can say is 'By George, I love you all.'" "Dick" will leave in the near future for Colgate University where he will officially occupy the position of Head Coach.

The attention of the students was then directed to the wrestling team and the prospects of again winning the eastern championship title in this sport. Captain Watson, who wrestles his last for Penn State this week, Coach Deitz, and Director of Athletics Bezdek explained the condition of the team and expressed their expectations as to the probable outcome of the matches. The keynote of the speeches may be stated in the words of one of the speakers, "they will put up the characteristic Penn State fight."

As the last speaker of the night, Director Bezdek gave a summary of what has preceded and he omitted the usual baseball story. He paid high tribute to Coach Harlow and what he had done for the college and mentioned the fact that the University of Missouri, the Iowa State College, and Colgate had in turn attempted to secure his services. He closed his talk by talking of the success of both "Hinkley" Haines and Klingler who are making good at the present time.

Why College Men Are Making Good In the Life Insurance Field

1. Because they have the capacity to understand the vital economic necessity of Life Insurance, and interpret its necessity with the fervor born of personal conviction.
2. No business offers such large rewards, both immediate and ultimate, without invested capital.
3. Their education, and social standing, is in keeping with the dignity of the institution of Life Insurance.
4. The need of Life Insurance prevails wherever people live, and ambitious college men need not sever the home relationships in the establishment of a permanent business.
5. The acute minds of college men, give them access to the large minds of business, and they have opportunity for creating markets, which would never occur to those not so well equipped mentally and socially.

The Edward A. Woods Company seeks opportunity of presenting concrete facts about the potentialities of Life Insurance as a profession for college men of unlimited ambition.
