AGRONOMIST LECTURES ON CULTURE OF SOY BEANS
Mr. W. J. Morris, Agronomist in the Office of Forage in the United States Department of Agriculture, gave an illustrated lecture in Old Chapel on Saturday evening on the Soy Bean Industry. Mr. Morris outlined the history, utilization and culture of soy beans. The culture of soy beans originated in China. From China the beans were carried to Japan by the religious rites of Buddhism. From China they were carried to Europe and were introduced into the United States in 1804. Their chief utilization in this country has been as a forage crop. Until recently the area of production has been somewhat limited, it has only been in the past five or six years and through the impetus of organized drives that they have been introduced into our Northern states. The products of soy beans have a wide variety of uses. It is this feature rather than their use as a food that makes them of such great economic importance. The plants when cut and properly cured make an excellent variety of hay. Soy bean oil can be put to perhaps as many commercial uses as any of the widely known vegetable oils and soy bean meal is also readily utilized, although it has not found the market in this country as a stock feed that has been accorded the other oil cakes.

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE ATTRACTING ATTENTION
Seventh Annual Meeting Will Be Held Under Auspices of Extension Department
The seventh annual Industrial Training Conference, to be held in State College May seventeenth to nineteenth inclusive, under the auspices of the Department of Engineering Extension, is receiving widespread attention and it is estimated that about fifty men, representing all types of industrial activities, as well as schools, Chambers of Commerce, and other such organizations, will be present. Judging from the large amount of interest shown thus far in the undertaking, it will rank as the most important conference the Department has ever projected. A prominent place on the program has been given to the subject of "Waste in Industry," and a representative of Mr. Hoover's Committee in connection with the Federated American Engineering Societies will be present to discuss the subject. This subject will be of special value, as it will be presented as it applies to Pennsylvania industries and will be amplified to include wastes caused by the lack of training on the part of employees. Representatives have also been appointed from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Railway Association. Among the subjects to be considered is the development of regular College subjects for all industrial employees throughout the state. The plans, which will be for officials, executives, and employees alike, will be formulated and will deal with Shop Organization, Foreman Training, and such subjects as Planning, Scheduling, Stores, Costs, and the like. The courses of study fitted to the needs of Public Utilities employees will also receive some attention, for recent developments have indicated that much success can be obtained through such efforts. The tentative program which has been worked out shows that the different sessions will consider problems of unusual and timely interest to the many organizations that are sending representatives. As the college will be in session, the delegates will have an opportunity to make inspection trips and witness the athletic contests, and this will be an added attraction to many of them. One of the interesting features of the program will be the joint banquet to be held with the Industrial Conference at the Hotel Dearackett, at which President Thomas will present the School of Engineering.

Ball, Pittsburgh, Vice-President; C. G. Cochran, Dawson, Vice-President; E. H. Heffley, Somerset, Vice-President; Jas. Carroll, Jackson Center, Vice-President; D. I. ARCHITECTS TO REPRODUCE "THE INFERNAL TRIANGLE"
The Architect's Club has chosen Wednesday evening, May tenth, as the time for the re-showing of their play, "The Infernal Triangle." This performance is to be presented by the Drama Section of the Woman's Club of the village in the little theatre at Professor Woodruff's home. The Infernal Triangle was first given by the Penn State Architects on March 24 as a feature of their costume ball. The lines were obtained from the Cornell Architects and revised for local production by J. Gordon Amend, who also coached and directed the production. Much credit is due the Club for the creditable manner in which they presented this show and its success has prompted a desire to make the event an annual one. The same cast is to be used in the second production to be used in the first, featuring: H. E. Dickson, '22, D. M. Cair, '23, T. W. White, '21, R. W. Robinson, '25, and J. M. Judge, '22. H. E. Schlosser, '23, will be added however, in a feature novelty.

INTER-FRATERNITY TENNIS CONTESTS BEGIN THIS WEEK
The chart for the inter-fraternity tennis tournaments has been drawn and placed in the window of the Study Room, so that the fraternities can begin the contests this week. At present nothing can be predicted as to the success of this year's inter-fraternity court contests, except that all the fraternities of the town have been listed and all have signified their intentions of entering them. The fraternities will arrange between themselves the times and places of the games. UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI CO-EDS HAVE NOVILL DANCE
Co-eds of the University of Cincinnati experienced the happiest of novell evenings without any of them becoming seasick. The occasion was their April dance, at which the guests walked over a regatta gang plank onto the deck of a Cunard liner which formerly was known as the men's gymnasium. The orchestra dressed in sailor suits, reminded the crowd that the deck was cleared especially for dancing as well as for the accommodation of inviting steamer chairs.
