FIVE JUDGES CHOSEN FOR JUNIOR CONTESTS

The judges for the coming Junior Oratoricals have been chosen and will comprise Judge Ellis E. Orvis, '76, of Bellefonte, a trustee of the College, Judge Allison O. Smith, '78, Clearfield, third oldest prize winner, to act as chairman of the Board of Judges, also a trustee of the College, George M. Downing '87, Philadelphia, a trustee of the International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Milton McDowell, '91, Director of the Agricultural Extension Service, Penn State, E. E. Overdorf '22, last year's prize winner.

The advance guard of the contingent of Dads will arrive at the college today to spend the week-end as the guests of Penn State.

In anticipation of a larger attendance than that which marked last year's affair, the committee in charge of the arrangements has prepared an entertainment program that is designed to keep the Dads busy from Saturday till Sunday.

Following the custom established last year, the committee has scheduled no special entertainments for today or tonight. This action was thought advisable, due to the fact that many of the Dads will not reach the college until tomorrow and also because the students will want to enjoy a chat with their fathers.

The program for tomorrow's extensive and promises to keep the Dads busy from morning till night for those who will arrive early, a fun over the campus and town is suggested, and also the committee strongly urges the students to take their fathers to classes with them so that the guests may gain a true insight into the realities of college work.

At eleven o'clock President Thomas will open a short business meeting which all the Dads are invited to attend.

After explaining the purpose of the college in seeking recognition as a true university, and after giving a talk on the two million dollar campaign for health and welfare buildings which is to start in the near future the proposition of forming an organization of Penn State fathers will be considered.

ENGINEERS HERE TODAY TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Needs and Advantages of School Will Be Brought Before Technical Men

All preparations for the conference on Engineering and Industry have been carried out satisfactorily, and the School of Engineering is now ready to receive the delegates from the many corporations that have accepted the invitation to be represented here today and tomorrow.

Every Department in the Engineering School has prepared a list of suggested topics for discussion by the various committees, so that the needs and advantages of the School will be put before the technical workers of the State in a tangible way, in order that criticism from a different viewpoint than that taken by the college authorities may be obtained.

Some of the items that the delegates will be asked to consider are of this type: Criticism of present methods of instruction as observed by the representatives of the engineering profession and laboratories, whether or not the laboratory facilities are satisfactory, and if they are not what is needed to improve them.

Other questions that will be put are: Is classroom space sufficient? Is there too much, or too little, specialization in the courses? What can be done to improve the courses? To what extent should members of the staff engage in outside practice? Is our practice of requiring summer work in the industries of all students desirable? How can the plan be improved so that the work may be of greater educational value to the student and of greater practical value to the industries? What can be done to give the college teacher a closer contact with the industries? What can be done to bring the industries into closer contact with the college?

The men who will inspect the various departments during the conference are sent by the leading corporations of Pennsylvania, and it is believed that their viewpoint will be valuable in that it will supply much-needed practical answers to the questions and topics mentioned above.

YEARLING NINE MEETS PITT CUBS TOMORROW

Coach McCollum's Batsmen Ready For Hard Tussle With Panther Freshmen

The Freshman nine has continued its hard fight throughout the past week and are now in the best of condition to meet the Panther Cubs on New Beaver Field tomorrow afternoon. A battle between the Penn State Frosh and the Pitt yearlings always promises a real game, and from all indications, the fray tomorrow will be no exception to this rule.

While nothing definite could be learned about the Pitt team, it is known that they have a winning combination this spring and are coming to Penn State with the firm purpose of taking the Freshmen over and avenging their recent track defeat.

Coach McCollum has tightened up on the Blue and White yearling team since the poor showing that it made in the last game with the Shady Side Academy aggregation and now has his nine in the best of condition. The Freshmen have a number of good hits. (Continued on last page)

INTERCLASS TRACK MEET WILL BE RUN TOMORROW

The annual interclass track meet will be held tomorrow afternoon on New Beaver Field at one o'clock. The outcome of the event is uncertain as little is known of the strength of the upper class teams. The Freshman aggregation however is being favored since they overpowered the Sophomore team Wednesday in the class scrap by the score 104 to 31.
