DR. THOMAS TELLS OF UNIVERSITY PLANS

State University and its facilities developed to the point where 10,000 students can be accommodated in order that the State's sons and daughters may have that of which they are entitled and in order that the Commonwealth may have scientifically educated leaders for its farms and factories.

"The establishment of a state university in Pennsylvania," said President Thomas, "would have a beneficial effect for all commercial and industrial people in the Commonwealth. We have vast resources for development of this state, what we need is men. You cannot have too great a supply of trained leaders in industry—and it is the duty of the state university to supply such men. One man of mystery power is capable of creating opportunities for many others.

Benefit to Business

"You business men ought to also be interested in education in order to help us school people remedy some of the defects we know exist. We have not been able to bring about anything like equality between the city child and the child of the country. The average expense for the education of a child of the city for the entire United States is forty-two dollars per year, while the average for the country child is only twenty-three dollars per year. The average of the city school teacher is $851 per year and that of the country school teacher $479. The average length of the school year in the cities of America is 182 days, while the country districts the average is only 142 days. I recognize that a dollar in the country will do more than a dollar in the city, but these figures indicate that the boys and girls out on the farms are not getting quite a square deal. "Business men should be interested also in the direction of school studies toward the various vocations. The principle should be that so far as pupils are trained for vocations in the public schools they should be trained for the callings in which the public will have the greatest need of such trained workers. That should mean for Pennsylvania—agriculture and industry. But as a matter of fact over one-half of the students in Pennsylvania high schools are taking commercial courses. Over seventy per cent of the girls in the high schools of Philadelphia are taking commercial courses. I recognize the great value of this subject, but that proportion is too great and some day in this great industrial and manufacturing state, which ranks seventh in agriculture, we are going to wonder what is the matter with our great farming industry and our manufacturers."

President Thomas outlined the history of the Pennsylvania State College from the time of its establishment as the Farmer's High School, through the period of its existence as the Pennsylvania Agricultural College and then through its ever-broadening development as the Pennsylvania State College with five great schools of instruction.

The real growth of the institution began, according to Dr. Thomas, when the School of Engineering was established in 1896. This school is now by far the largest in the college with an attendance of 1189 as compared with slightly over 900 in agriculture. This point was emphasized by President Thomas as an indication of the great desire on the part of the young men of the state to equip themselves technically, in order that they may participate in the full development of the state's industries.

teenth bushels but in a very short period of time a State College research man with a knowledge of plant breeding, increased the acre yield five and six-tenths bushels above the average yield, with Pennsylvania 41," said Dr. Thomas. "We are in the college with an average of 1189 as compared with slightly over 900 in agriculture. This point was emphasized by President Thomas as an indication of the great desire on the part of the young men of the state to equip themselves technically, in order that they may participate in the full development of the state's industries.

The agricultural progress of the state will be hindered if Pennsylvania continues to neglect the development of research by failing to appropriate a "dedicated penny," as it has in the past, dedicated Secretary Rasmussen. The farmers of any state must have the benefit of research if they are to progress in the development of Agriculture, and the industry is a high rank in Pennsylvania, that is unsuspected by most people, who think of the state as engaged entirely in manufacturing and mining pursuits.

The committee are under the leadership of Dr. L. P. Fox of the State Chamber of Commerce research bureau, and today the men will separate according to their various professions—mechanists, druggists, stockmen, and so on, and will inspect thoroughly every department on the "Bill" which includes in its work, research. The needs and accomplishments of each department in the way of research will be explained to the committee members and then they will be assigned to inspect by them, the report to be given to the Board of Trustees who will use it in preparing their budget for presentation to the Legislature.

champion, will be called upon to meet a number of fast men in the 880-yard run. Lupton Brown, the clever Pennsylvania leader, will probably be the man who will give the Nittany star a close chase, although Cook, of Cornell, who has been showing up exceptionally well this year, will likely be among the first to break the tape.

Shields and Connolly in Mile

The real thrill promises to come in the mile run, when Larry Shields, a million miles, fights it out with Jimmy Connolly, the Georgetown runner who won the mile in the intercollegiate last year in 4 minutes 17 1-5 seconds, and whom "Larry" had the misfortune of accidentally tripping at the Penn Relays this season which resulted in Penn State being disqualified and Shields losing first place in the distance medley relay event. Strickler, of Cornell, Crawford, of Lafayette, and Burke, of Harvard, are formidable entries and are sure to furnish Shields and Connolly with some stiff opposition.

In the two mile run, Cooper will have to compete with R. E. Brown and Norman Brown, both of Cornell, Dorr, make home games impossible for this year, the Wyoming Seminary nine has developed into one of the strongest prep school combinations in its part of the state. Coach Quay's diamond men have played six games this far this year and have won five of that number. This record nearly promises to equal that of last year, when the Wyoming Seminary team won sixteen out of seventeen games.

FRESHMAN NINE WILL HAVE BUSY WEEK-END

Six of last year's nine reported for practice this year and it has been around these men that the Wyoming coach has built the team which meets Penn State on Friday. It is probable that Coach Quay will use either Siegel or Beretold on the mound in the coming game as both men have been exhibiting some masterful stuff this season.

Kiski Coming On Saturday

On Saturday afternoon, the Freshmen will meet the Kiski Prep School team on New Beaver Field at two o'clock. While but little is known of the Kiski combination for this spring they are reported to have a good nine and intended to give the Freshmen a hard tussle for the game.

of California; Baker, of Bates, Head of Pennsylvania; Curtis, of Princeton, and several other strong competitors.

Hurdles Figured to Place

Captain Barron, Kaufman and Hill, Penn State's trio of hurdlers, stand a good chance of annexing some points for the Nittany institution in these events. Powers, of Pennsylvania, Taylor and Thompson, of Princeton, Whitney, of Harvard, and Henderson, of California, are other entries hopeful of placing in the hurdle events.

With Grubb in the broad jump, Heickel and Green in the high jump, Tico in the pole vault, McMahon in the shot put and discs throw, and Styer in the javelin throw, Penn State has a good chance of placing in a number of the different events. The discs and javelin throws are being introduced into the inter-collegiate for the first time this year and Bob Legendre, the Georgetown Pentathlon Star, should prove to be a strong contender in both of these events.

tally. On Friday, May 12, the Pitt baseball team played Holy Cross at Worcester while Coach Bezek's men watched the game from the side-lines. Both invading teams lost to Holy Cross during their New England tour. In addition to these games, Pitt lost to Johns Hopkins by a 4 to 2 score and to the strong Grove City combination by a 4 to 3 tally. The Panther defeated Western Reserve in their second game of the year by a 12 to 1 score.

Penn State Nine Praised

Although a comparison of baseball scores is not an infallible test of the strength of two teams, the Nittany men are confident that his diamond artists will make a creditable showing in the three games at Pittsburgh this week-end. Hite is still out of the game with his split thumb and it is doubtful whether he will be able to pitch in either of the games. However, Ladwick has developed into a first-class catcher and "Bez" has a great deal of confidence in his second receiver. The remainder of the line-up has remained much as it has been in the
