

It is Time to Begin to Think About Studying

SUMMER COLLEGIAN

Only Seven More Weeks Until the End of the Summer Session

VOLUME 7, NUMBER 2

STATE COLLEGE, PA., WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1922

ENROLLMENT IN BEZDEK'S COURSE EXCEEDS 100 MARK

Three Women Register for Course in Athletic Coaching; Many Sections Represented

FIRST COURSE OF ITS KIND AT PENN STATE

The enrollment for the class in athletic coaching is one of the largest of any of the classes in the summer session, and the number is far greater than was anticipated when it was scheduled over part of the summer's work. Over 100 men and three women are taking the course.

Many sections of the country are represented. Boston, Mass., marks the boundary on the north from which students come, while others are here from New York state, and various sections of the south and middle west. The majority of those enrolled, however, come from Pennsylvania. No part of this state is especially prominent in the enrollment, but sections in virtually every part are represented. The course is the most widely scattered in enrollment in the summer session this year.

The work comprises the teaching of methods of coaching in basketball, track, baseball and football. Basketball is being taught by E. M. Germann, Penn State's varsity basketball coach, and track will be under the supervision of C. W. Martin, the Blue and Whites track mentor. Hugo Bezdek, head coach of football at Penn State, and baseball coach, will have charge of these two sports. The course will last the full eight weeks of the summer session, being divided into two parts each of the above mentioned sports. Basketball is being considered at present, and there will follow in order, baseball, football, and track.

The system of teaching consists of an hour's lecture in the forenoon and an hour's practical or practical work in the afternoon. The credit given amounts to four and one-half credits.

This is the first time a course in athletic coaching has been offered at Penn State and it is one of the first courses of this kind given in the east. The majority of those taking the course are high school and vocational school coaches, while a number of former Penn State athletes who wish to

PENN STATE OPENS PHILADELPHIA OFFICE

Penn State has established headquarters in Philadelphia, at 247 S. Juniper Street, where a service and college information bureau is being conducted in connection with the coming campaign for the Pennsylvania State University and the $2,000,000 emergency building fund for student health and welfare purposes.

R. L. Sackett, Dean of the College School of Engineering, has been temporarily detailed in charge of this bureau.

Training classes for industrial employees in the Philadelphia district, conducted by the Penn State Engineering Extension Department, which Dean Sackett is the director, will also occupy his attention during the time he is in Philadelphia. Dean Sackett includes in his service territory the counties of Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, Montgomery and Delaware.

SPEECH CLINIC IS SPECIAL FEATURE OF 1922 SESSION

Twelve Children from Pennsylvania Being Treated in Class for Speech Correction

DR. SARA STINCHFIELD IN CHARGE OF COURSE

Among the special features of the present summer session are the course in corrective speech and the speech clinic given by Dr. Sara M. Stinchfield, of the Department of Speech in the University of Wisconsin. The speech clinic is of special interest, for in it children who stutter, stammer, or have other speech defects, are being treated. This service is free to citizens of the Commonwealth who have children suffering from any form of speech derangement.

Twelve children are being treated in this speech clinic, one of whom is from the town, and the rest from various parts of the state. Eight summer students have enrolled for this speech clinic course.

In connection with this speech clinic is the course in corrective speech. There are twenty-five students enrolled in this, and while the majority are from Pennsylvania, there are some from New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island. This course has been arranged especially for teachers specializing in speech correction in public schools and colleges, for teachers of expressional English, for grade teachers, special teachers, and teachers of the mentally defective. There is now a greater demand for teachers trained in this work than can be supplied, and in order to assist the Department of Public Instruction to meet this demand, the college established this course for the summer students.

In addition to the above mentioned courses, Dr. Stinchfield also has a class in oral English, the reading and essentials of expression.

NOTED ENGLISH WOMAN TO SPEAK SATURDAY NIGHT

Miss Mary Sheepshanks to Lecture on the "Woman's Movement in South America"

HAS JUST RETURNED FROM TOUR OF THAT CONTINENT

A lecture on the "Woman's Movement in South America" will be given this coming Saturday evening in the Open Air Theatre by Miss Mary Sheepshanks, of Cambridge, England. This lecture will fill one of the dates left open by the cancellation by Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson.

Miss Sheepshanks is well qualified to speak on the subject announced, inasmuch as she just returned from an eight month tour of South America. During this time she travelled throughout many of the countries, studying the conditions, meeting many prominent men and women, and visiting ancient and historic cities.

Miss Sheepshanks is connected with Newham College, Cambridge, England, and has had exceptional opportunities to study many aspects of present day social and political problems. After some years' work at the Woman's University Settlement, London, she became principal of Morley College for working men and women, and there gained further insight into modern conditions.

Active work in the suffrage campaign and speaking tours in connection with it led to an extensive lecture tour in Belgium, Germany, Austria and Poland in 1913, where Miss Sheepshanks addressed large audiences in the largest continental cities, speaking French and German. After taking an active part in the international suffrage congress at Budapest in 1913, she became secretary of the International Women's Suffrage Association, whose president is Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and edited the "International Women's Suffrage News" from 1913 to 1919.

After the fall of Antwerp in 1914, Miss Sheepshanks was sent on a special mission with food for the Belgian refugees. In 1915 she became secretary of the Food and Fuel Council and of its economic committee for European reconstruction, and in this capacity organized international economic conferences in London in 1920 and 1921.

In 1919 she took part in the All-Summer Women's International League at Zurich. She has thus had extensive experience and has gained insight into international affairs.

GREATER PENN STATE MOVEMENT GAINING FORCE

President Thomas Speaks to Six Alumni Gatherings During the Past Week

SAYS STATE COLLEGE IS LOGICAL UNIVERSITY SITE

President John M. Thomas, carrying the gospel of a greater Penn State, put in some stalwart ticks last week when he addressed alumni gatherings in no less than six different counties, in addition to speaking to the county Rotary Club, Harrisburg, at the Penn State alumni meeting at Sunbury on Friday evening.

Alumni gatherings were held at Gettysburg, Adams County, York, York County, Lancaster, Lancaster County, Reading, Berks County, Pottsville, Schuylkill County, and Sunbury, Northumberland County. At the latter meeting alumni were gathered from four counties—Northumberland, Snyder, Union and Montour. Other field agents sent out by the college visited alumni in Ploga, Potter, McKean, Warren, Clinton, Jefferson and Perry counties last week.

Results of this active campaign are already in evidence. More than 150 counties are now on a campaign basis, with about 40 more ready for the selection of a campaign chairman. The remaining counties, not yet definitely organized, are rapidly coming into line and another month should see every county in the state on a campaign basis. Meetings are scheduled for practically every day this week.

Fund Growing

During the past ten days, the largest single contribution to the building fund campaign was received, from the Rev. Charles J. Jordan, of Volant, Jefferson county representative in the State Legislature. This was to be added to the Potato Growers' Fund with which the new $150,000 hospital is to be constructed. An equal amount was raised by other potato men in Jefferson county. One township in Elk county subscribed $500.

Growers in Lawrence and Chester counties, in addition to Jefferson and Elk, have actively joined in the campaign, while those in Cumberland, Montgomery and Berks are preparing to subscribe generously to the movement that is sweeping the state.

The Pennsylvania State Editorial Association at its meeting in Harrisburg approved the plan to develop Penn State into the State University and commanded President Thomas and his associates to work that is being accomplished. The association is composed of its own editors and publishers of the state.

In his talk to the members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs of Sunbury and the Penn State alumni of Northumberland and surrounding counties on Friday night, President Thomas discussed the plans for a Greater Penn State from a business angle. "Higher education at the expense of the state is the inalienable birthright of every Pennsylvania boy and girl," he said. "Pennsylvania State College should become the Pennsylvania State University, and its facilities should be developed to the point where 10,000 students can be accommodated, in order that the State's sons and daughters may have that to which they are entitled and in order that the Commonwealth may have scientifically educated leaders for its farms and factories."

Dr. Thomas gave facts about the cost of education in Pennsylvania. He said that the people of this state spent $90,000,000 last year.

EDITORS ENDORSE UNIVERSITY IDEA

The plan of the Pennsylvania State College to develop into the Pennsylvania State University was endorsed by the editors and publishers of the state at the recent meeting of the Pennsylvania Editorial Association held at Harrisburg. President John M. Thomas and his associates were warmly commended in the work that is being accomplished at the college.

The resolution adopted by the Editorial Association read: "We congratulate Dr. Thomas and commend his work and that of his associates at State College. We urge the early consummation of the project to make the State College the Pennsylvania State University. The editors also expressed the inclination of a practical course in printing at the college as a means for helping relieve the serious shortage of printing set-offers and linotype operators."

DEAN GRAVES TO BEGIN LECTURE SERIES MONDAY

Commissioner of Education for New York to Address Summer Students on Three Occasions

SPEAKER HAS TAUGHT AT MANY INSTITUTIONS

Perhaps the best series of lectures on education to be given during the 1922 summer session will be delivered on Monday and Wednesday evenings of next week in the Open Air Theatre, when Dr. Frank P. Graves, Commissioner of Education for the State of New York, comes to Penn State. The speaker's subjects have been announced as follows: Tuesday evening, "Vocational Guidance," and Wednesday evening, "Modern Tendencies in Education."

Born on the 23rd of July, 1859, Dr. Graves was the son of Horace and Annie (Hall) Graves. He is a Columbia University-educated man, having done all his academic work there. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1880, his Master of Arts degree in 1891, and his Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1912. Honorary degrees were also conferred upon him by Hildesheim University, in Ohio, gave him the degree of Doctor of Literature in 1896, and he was made a Doctor of Laws by Haverford College one year later.

Dr. Graves began his teaching career at Tufts College where he was assistant professor of Greek and Latin, and professor of classical philosophy. From Tufts College he went west and became president of the University of Wyoming, and two years later went still further west to become president of the University of Washington. Five years were spent at the latter place and he started toward the east again. His first stop was at the University of Missouri, where he was professor of the history and principles of education for three years, then assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. In 1907 he returned to the University of Missouri, where he was professor of the history and philosophy of education. He remained here from 1907 to 1913, and was dean of the Summer Session in 1909, 1910, 1911. During the next two summers, Dr. Graves was professor of education in the University of Chicago, and held the same position at Columbia University in the summer of 1917. After leaving Ohio State University, in 1913, he came to Penn State, where he was professor of education, and director of the State College of Education, in 1914. After one year as professor of education, he became dean of the School of Education in the same institution, where he continued until his appointment as Commissioner of Education for the State of New York.

The activities of Dr. Graves, however, have not been confined to his position as Commissioner of Education for the State of New York. He is vice president of the Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition in 1903, and he is a member of the Society for Promoting Liberal Studies in the American Association of University Professors.

FIVE BOYS GIVE $500 FOR PENN STATE HOSPITAL

Young Potato Growers of Cumberland County Have Done Their Bit for the College

"MORE IF NEEDED" IS THEIR MESSAGE

Five high school boys in Hopewell township, Cumberland county, have subscribed $500 toward the Potato Growers Hospital Fund for the erection of a very necessary building on the campus of the Pennsylvania State College. This was received here yesterday, and the subscription is one of the most generous yet recorded.

The five boys are members of the Hopewell Boys' Potato Club and strange as it may seem, they are among the largest potato growers in Cumberland county. They are John Rehek, 1 E. Myers, Mack Sherman, Frank Housler, and Roy Davidson. Three years ago, they decided to raise potatoes, each receiving an acre of land from his father. State College specialists advised them on the preparation of the seed bed and procured disease-free seed for them. Then the boys bought a sprayer cooperatively and took turn about in using it throughout the season. The result was that they raised 72 bushels per acre more than the yield of their parents in their very first year.

Since then, the boys have become leaders in the county and their father's have turned over to them the entire job of raising potatoes. They use nothing but disease-free seed and follow out the spraying program advocated by State College specialists. They all hope to enter Penn State's School of Agriculture when they finish high school. The boys heard about the movement started by potato growers of the state for the gathering of all funds

THIS EVENING'S LECTURER TO BE MRS. ANNA BURDICK

"From Chance to Certainty" is the subject of a lecture to be given this evening in the Open Air Theatre by Mrs. Anna L. Burdick, of Washington, D. C. The lecture is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p. m. and will be given in fine weather will of course be given in the Auditorium.

Mrs. Burdick is a woman who is well known in the lecture world, and she has delivered at other places have been attended by crowded houses and listened to with the closest attention. At the present time, Mrs. Burdick is a supervisor in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, being connected with the Federal Board of Vocational Education with headquarters at Washington, D. C.

PROF. ROBINSON TO LEAVE COLLEGE

Director of Music at Penn State to Assume New Duties at Ohio University this Fall

The students of the summer session will learn with great regret that Professor Clarence C. Robinson, the Director of Music at Penn State, has resigned, and will leave this institution on September 1st. He will go from here to Ohio University, at Athens, Ohio, where he will be Dean of the School of Music. Mrs. Robinson, who has also taught piano in the Department of Music at this College, will accept the position of head of the Piano Division at Ohio University.

Both Professor and Mrs. Robinson have been with the Department of Music at Penn State since 1910. When they came here, Penn State had no regularly organized department of music. The Music Club then was composed of only twelve men who were self-trained and self-directed, and there was no Girls' Glee Club. Under Mr. Robinson's supervision, the former organization was brought to a high state of efficiency, and it now ranks well up in the list with the glee clubs from such institutions as Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, and Pennsylvania. This is self-evident to any one who has been fortunate enough to attend any of the annual intercollegiate glee club contests in New York City.

The Girls' Glee Club and the College Chorus have also been developed to a high degree by Mr. Robinson. During the twelve years of his directorship, he has established a soundly organized and efficient Department of Music in which private instruction, as well as choral singing, is well developed. No have his activities been confined entirely to his activities.

SUNDAY SPEAKER IS DR. RICHARDS

President of Reformed Church Theological Seminary to Address Summer Students

The speaker for the union religious service in the Open Air Theatre this coming Sunday evening will be the Rev. Dr. George Warren Richards, president of the Reformed Church Theological Seminary at Lancaster.

Dr. Richards is a native of Pennsylvania, having been born fifty-three years ago at Farmington, Berks County. He attended the University of Maryland at Lancaster, receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1887, and his Master of Arts degree three years later. In 1902 he was elected to the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. He also studied at the Universities of Berlin and Erlangen in Germany.

He was ordained a minister of the Reformed Church in the United States in 1890, and in 1891 he was pastor of the Salem Reformed Church at Allentown. He then became Professor of Church History in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in the United States, at Lancaster, at which institution he has been ever since. He traveled and studied in Europe in 1890, 1899, 1904, and 1909. He was chairman of the Committee on Relations between Protestant Schools of Theology in France and Belgium and in the United States, of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Richards is the author of "Historical and Doctrinal Studies on the Heidelberg Catechism," as well as of various pamphlets on church history and criticism.

FINE ARTS MUSEUM OPEN DAILY TO SUMMER STUDENTS

The Fine Arts Museum on the second floor of Old Main is open daily to summer session students and other visitors, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. It is closed during the noon hour and on Sundays. An interesting exhibit at the present time is the collection of twenty-five oil paintings by Mr. Emile Walters, who is teaching several classes at Penn State this summer.

MINING MUSEUM OPEN

The Mining Museum in the New Mining Museum is open to visitors at the following hours: Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, from 3 to 5 p. m.

SOCIAL DANCING CLASS TAUGHT BY MISS STEARNS

A social dancing class began in the Armory last Saturday and will continue for ten lessons each Wednesday and Saturday evening of the Summer Session, beginning at seven o'clock. All summer students who wish to enroll and learn the art of dancing, as well as any others interested, should attend the class tonight in the Armory at seven o'clock.

The class is being carried on under the personal supervision of Miss Nathalie Stearns, a member of the Penn State University, and its faculty, in the Department of Physical Education. The fee for the ten lessons is $2.50.

MISS CHARLOTTE RAY TO AID DEAN KNIGHT DURING SUMMER

Miss Charlotte A. Ray, a graduate of Carnegie Tech, has been appointed assistant to Dean Knight during the weeks of the summer session. Miss Ray's home is in Pittsburgh.

MUNCY MOUNTAIN TRIP ON SATURDAY

Party Will Leave from Front of Auditorium; Must Register on Friday

State College is surrounded by the most romantic and picturesque mountain scenery in the country. In the distance there are numerous wild flowers, in harvest these are fields of waving grain, and in autumn the colors of the forest-covered mountains have the charm of an immense flower garden. The country surrounding the college consists of rolling limestone valleys separated by long steep parallel sandstone mountain ridges. In many places precipitous points provide an excellent opportunity for seeing the grandeur of both mountains and valleys.

Each Saturday at 1:30 p. m. it is planned to have an excursion leave from the front of the auditorium to some point of interest near the college. These excursions have been planned with a view to selecting the best paths and the easiest walks, and yet to include the most beautiful scenery and at the same time provide an opportunity for the study of geological formations and forest life. Notices will be posted each week on the college bulletin boards, announcing an excursion for the following Saturday and giving the cost, distance, etc. When an excursion is announced, those intending to go should register at the Summer Session Office and secure a ticket not later than 4:30 p. m. Friday. These excursions are taken in motor trucks to the place where the hike starts.

PENN STATE GIVES COURSE IN MINING

Approximately Thirty-Five Miners Enroll for Six Weeks' Term of Intensive Work

For the third consecutive year, the School of Mines at Penn State is offering a special six weeks' short course in coal mining. The course began on Monday of last week, and so far approximately thirty-five men have enrolled. Of this number, ten or eleven are back for the second time, and there is one who has found the work so attractive that he is returning for the third time. This short course is being planned to prepare men for examinations for foremen and mine foreman, but for those who have already passed such examinations, more advanced work is being offered to prepare them for higher positions. No charge is being made for tuition, and requirement for admission include that a man must have spent at least one year in practical work in or around a mine. Special work is being given in both anthracite and bituminous mining, so that the course is of practical benefit to both classes of miners.

The U. S. Bureau of Mines demonstration car for rescue training was here all last week. Such subjects as mining law, explosives, mine gases, mine ventilation, mining methods, and mining machines, haulage, hoisting and pumping, first aid and mine rescue, safety lamps, gas detectors and testing, and geology of coal, are being offered during the course.

The equipment of the mining school is the best that can be secured, and all the instructors are men of practical experience in their respective fields. A number of prominent mining men are to speak on special mining subjects, and every effort is being made to give a sound and comprehensive course.

STATE DIRECTOR OF ART TO LECTURE NEXT WEEK

An interesting lecture will be given next Wednesday evening, July 13th, in the Open Air Theatre at seven o'clock on "Our Daily Contacts with Beauty and Art." The lecturer will be Mr. C. Valentine Kirby, who is Director of Art in the Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg.

Mr. Kirby received the honorary degree of Master of Arts from Union College at Schenectady, N. Y. just last month. He was formerly teacher of art in the Technical High School at Denver, Colorado, and he was then called to be Supervisor of Art in the City Schools of Buffalo. He accepted his present position in Harrisburg as Director of Art in the Department of Public Instruction in 1912.

DATES OF PUBLICATION

Inasmuch as the "Summer Collegian" is being issued, not weekly, but six times during the eight weeks of the summer school, the interval between each number will vary from between eight to nine days. The publishers have decided upon the following dates as dates of publication for the remaining issues:

Friday, July 14th.
Tuesday, July 25th.
Friday, August 4th.
Monday, August 14th.

SUBSCRIBE TOMORROW

The "Summer Collegian" wishes to announce that another opportunity will be given the summer session students to subscribe to this newspaper tomorrow (Thursday) evening at the lecture in the Open Air Theatre. At this envelope will again be passed out. Write our name and address on the outside, and enclose a quarter, and you will receive the remaining issues of the paper as well as all back numbers.
