GREATER PENN STATE MOVEMENT GAINS FORCE

600,000 a year in giving instruction, about two-thirds of which comes from local taxation.

"I do not believe that is too much," said President Thomas. "It figures about fifty dollars a child each year."

"That is not more than you would spend on piano lessons for a boy if you want him to learn to play, and are not spending too much but we may not be spending it wisely and efficiently. That is what the business man should come in, to see that the boys get a dollar's worth of education for every dollar expended."

"The business men ought also to be interested in education in order to help the school people remedy some of the defects we know exist. We have not been able to bring about anything like equality between the city child and the child of the country. The average expense for the education of a child of the city for the entire United States is $42 per year, while the average for the country child is only $23 per year."

The average of the city school teacher is $854 per year and that of the country school teacher $479. The average length of the school year in the cities of America is 182 days, while in the country districts the average is only 142 days.

I recognize that a dollar in the country will do more than a dollar in the city, but these figures indicate that the country child and his out on the farms are not getting quite a square deal."

Logical University Site

In further touching on the development of the present State College to a university status, Dr. Thomas said:

"There is but one place for Pennsylvania's State University—and that is at State College, at the exact geographical center of the state, where for over sixty years the most devoted men have been laying the foundation of such an institution."

"We have a plant and equipment valued at $4,000,000. We have the constitution and organization of a State University. What is most important, we have the traditions of the institution fully under the control of the state and responsive to its needs. I have not received a single word of criticism from any alumnus or trustee that I was going too far in suggesting that we offer full and absolute control to the people of the state in any form they wished. We have to a remarkable degree the good will of the people. I believe this is a thoroughly sound and sensible proposition and its development will be a good thing for the public school system and for our industrial and commercial life."

CURRICULUM COURSE TO END THIS WEEK

The two weeks' intensive course in "Sociological Foundations of Curriculum-Making," which began on Monday, June 26th, will come to a close on Friday of this week.

Twenty-eight students have been enrolled in the course. The class is reviewing certain sociological principles and applications appropriate to curricula for various age levels from four to eighteen in schools of general education and for various special schools. Some students are receiving graduate credit for their work.

This course is one of the big features of the 1922 summer session, and it is being given under the direction of Dr. David Snedden, who is professor of Education in Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York City.

Extended analysis of aims and values of special subjects are being made by Mr. J. Freeman Guy, Director of Research and Measurement in the Pittsburgh Public Schools.

DR. MOORE RESIGNS AS DEAN OF MINING

Head of Mining School Goes to Toronto University; Thirteen Years at Penn State

Dr. Elwood S. Moore, dean of the School of Mines at Penn State since 1917, has tendered his resignation.

The loss of Dr. Moore is a severe blow to the college. In the five years that he had charge of the mining school it has not only grown in size, but he has figured largely in the establishment of a mining experiment station here and has started various extension work among the coal miners of the state.

He received an offer from the University of Toronto to take charge of the economic geology work in September, which Penn State was unable to meet. Greater opportunity for specialized research work at the Canadian university also helped Dr. Moore to leave the institution from which he was graduated in 1904.

After receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Toronto, he went on studying for his Master of Arts degree at the same institution, receiving it in 1907. His Doctor of Philosophy degree he received in 1909 from the University of Chicago, where he was dean of the school of geology for the two preceding years. He came to Penn State in 1909.

Dr. Moore was geologist for the Canadian Geological Survey in 1912, and a member of the International Geological Congress Expedition to the Alaska and Klondike in 1913. The following year he pursued geological and mining studies in Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, India and Egypt, and six months of 1915 were spent in graduate study in France.

Among other activities of Dr. Moore's might be mentioned Consulting Geologist with the Mackenzie Expedition, Hudson Bay, Geologist on Oil Work, Cuba, Geologist on Topographic and Geologic Survey of the United States Geological Survey.

Dean Moore is a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the Coal Mining Institute of America, the Societe Francaise de mineralogie, and the Seismological Society. He is Fellow of the following: the Geological Society of America, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

He is Secretary of Section E, American Association for the Advancement of Science, and of the Phi Kappa Phi Chapter at State College, Pa.

PENN STATE WILL ADMIT ABOUT 1,000 FRESHMEN

It has been announced that recent action of the college board of trustees has made possible to admit the largest freshman class in history next fall.

Because of the more than 600 men and women who were graduated during the past year, it has been decided to admit 1000 freshmen. This is 150 more than were admitted last year, and as a result there is a greater chance of admission this year than before.

This is particularly true in the schools of agriculture and mining and in some departments of engineering. The registrar has begun to grant admissions and will continue to do so throughout the summer, admission being based on scholastic standing and not on priority of application.

They wanted to do their share to the extent of $100 apiece, and in addition were to go to the college authorities that "there would be more if it were needed."

MEASUREMENTS COURSE WILL BEGIN ON MONDAY

The intensive two weeks' course in "Educational Measurements," which is scheduled to begin this coming Monday, is already more than half filled by advance enrollment, and the indications are that when it starts it will be entirely filled. It is limited to fifty students.

Four phases of educational research are to be stressed in this course, namely, the testing of intelligence, the testing of achievement, diagnosis, and remedial measures. Extended use is to be made of the Demonstration School as a laboratory.

The course will be directed by Mr. J. Freeman Guy, who is Director of Research and Measurement in the Pittsburgh Public Schools. Professor A. L. Rhoads of the Department of Education will handle certain parts of the work. The course will close on Friday, July 21st.

OLIVE NEVIN TO GIVE RECITAL NEXT WEEK

On Friday evening of next week, July 14th, the students of the summer session will be given a rare opportunity to hear an excellent musical program by Miss Olive Nevin, soprano, of Sewickley, Pa.

She will give a program in costumes depicting the different historical periods of American songs.

Miss Nevin is the daughter of the late Elthelred Nevin, one of the foremost composers of the last decade, and among his compositions might be mentioned "Rosary" and "Narcissus," which are known to every one.

Miss Nevin has the endorsement of the Federation of Women's Musical Clubs, and ranks with the best artists that America possesses. At this music recital these will be no reserved seats. The admission will be 50 cents, and the program will start promptly at eight o'clock.

Miss Nevin will be accompanied on the piano by Mr. Harold Milligan, who will also give several instrumental solos.

DEAN GRAVES TO BEGIN LECTURE SERIES MONDAY

Professors, and the College Teachers of Education. He was president of this latter organization during 1920. He is also a member of the honorary scholarship societies, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Kappa Phi.

During the years that he has been teaching, Dr. Graves has written many books. Among these might be mentioned "Burial Customs of the Ancient Greeks," 1891, "The Philocetes of Sophocles," 1893, "A First Book in Greek" (with Dr. D. S. Hawes), 1895, "The State University Ideal," 1897, "A History of Education Before the Middle Ages," 1909, "A History of Education During the Middle Ages, and the Transition to Modern Times," 1910, "Great Educators of Three Centuries," 1911, "Peter Ramus and the Educational Reform of the Sixteenth Century," 1912, "A History of Education Since the Middle Ages," 1913.

He has also contributed numerous articles to various magazines of the history of education and educational problems.

TEAMMATE OF BEZDEK DIES IN PHILADELPHIA

Robert W. Maxwell, Sports Editor of the Philadelphia "Evening Ledger," died on Friday of last week, the result of injuries received in an automobile accident a few days before Maxwell was teammate of Hugo Bezdek, Penn State's football and baseball coach, when the two played on the University of Chicago football team, back about 1905.

SECOND SUMMER SESSION DANCE NEXT SATURDAY

Van-Askey's Novelty Orchestra to Furnish Music Again at Armory Gathering

FIRST DANCE PROVED TO BE GREAT SUCCESS

The first of the series of summer session dances of the present season was held last Saturday evening in the Armory and proved to be a delightful affair. The inclement weather did not seem to effect the attendance in the least, and a large number of terpsichorean enthusiasts were on hand.

The dance followed the reception tendered to the summer students by Dean Chambers, President Thomas, and other members of the summer session faculty.

Music was furnished by the Van-Askey Novelty Orchestra, which played all with the splendid quality of music which came from their instruments. This orchestra has been booked for a return engagement, and will appear at the next summer session dance, to be held this coming Saturday evening in the Armory, beginning at eight o'clock. At this dance, added attractions in the form of solo and feature dancing by well known artists will be given.

A sounding board will be installed in the Armory at the remaining dances, in order to distribute the music more evenly throughout the building.

The management has arranged for the other dances to be given in the Armory during the summer session. A number of well-known orchestras, who are sure to please all patrons with the quality and style of music they will present. Among these may be mentioned the Harrisburg Lango Sax orchestra, Ken Keller and his band of Altoona, and Dave Hanson's Orchestra of Williamsport.

"THE WITCHING HOUR" IS NEXT PLAY OF PLAYERS

The Summer Session Players will make their second appearance on Saturday evening, July 15th, when "The Witching Hour" will be presented. This play was written by the well-known American playwright, Augustus Thomas, and proved very popular when presented to the students during the last college year.

It is in four acts and is very interesting, being a tragedy from the very beginning until circumstances that impelling, unknown factor in life solves the great problem which people usually want to call—destiny. The play is full of character study and based upon a thrilling plot.
