FAILURE OR SUCCESS

The student campaign to raise three hundred thousand dollars as a part of the two million dollar movement for Health and Welfare buildings is now in full swing. The thermometer on the campus is rising and those in charge are anxiously awaiting the reports of the canvassers as each day passes. It is a time for sober thinking.

The student drive is the most important phase of the biggest campaign that the college has ever dared to conceive. Agriculturists throughout the state have recognized the needs of the college and have generously donated large sums of money for the erection of a hospital and a men's convalescent. The faculty of the college were asked to start the general campaign and they responded with a hundred percent participation. The student body is asked to duplicate the feat achieved by the faculty members by each member signing a note of one hundred dollars to his Alma Mater. Furthermore, the canvass of the students is the prelude to the last great step of the movement which is the canvass of the Commonwealth.

A worthy trust and responsibility thus befalls the present undergraduate students of Penn State. To them the officials of the college look for the guidance that will lead the movement to a successful conclusion. The eyes of the State of Pennsylvania are directed upon the events of this week here at the college and the outcome of the student drive will be an indicator of the final reckoning.

If the students of Penn State show that they think enough of their Alma Mater to give one hundred dollars apiece for her improvement, if they show their love for the Nittany institution by giving unselfishly that the Penn State spirit may have a bigger and better dwelling place, if they demonstrate in such a forceful manner their belief in the Penn State expansion policy, the citizenry of the state will be impressed to no small degree. And in the end, the Legislature will be forced to recognize the needs of the college.

But what will happen if the students fail? The foundation upon which the movement is established will have been taken away. Can Mr. Citizen be expected to donate to the college when the student himself denounces its needs? And with the failure of the student drive and the state canvass, the entire movement will have resolved itself into a most pitiable effort.

The last few days of the campaign will decide the outcome. At the present time, Campaign Headquarters has every reason to believe that student drive is to be a tremendous success. The number of pledges received daily increases as the week advances. Fraternity houses are going one hundred percent and student organizations on the campus are taking up the baton of "Three hundred thousand for a Student's Union." Such an encouraging outlook should be an added incentive to go beyond the goal, and not be content when the limit has been reached, but when each student enrolled under the colors of the Blue and White has given to Penn State one hundred dollars.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHEERS

After the football contest last Saturday afternoon, many a complaint was heard on the campus concerning the manner in which cheers were given at the game. What is the matter? Can't we cheer as well as we used to do?

One of the most noticeable characteristics of a collegiate institution, especially at an athletic contest, is the cheering that rings across the field during the course of the fray. Even the spirit of the student body and the atmosphere of the campus is gauged by the college yells and by the enthusiasm and manner in which they are given. Recently Penn State seems to have lost the skill in this respect and it is time that efforts were made to improve conditions.

It is exceedingly difficult to diagnose the case and name the remedy. Cheerleaders and students should give this matter their attention. The game tomorrow afternoon supplies another opportunity to bolster up Penn State cheering.

THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES

The fraternities of the college have taken a most decisive step in their declaration to pay no more than one dollar and a half an hour to the members of the town and college orchestras. The old rate of two dollars an hour per man has at last received the blow deserved.

Following the lead of President Thomas who expressed his desire earlier in the year that the students practice more economy in their daily social life, the inter-fraternity council has attacked the rate of the orchestra men in an effort to reduce expenses. Their action is justifiable and commendable.

The cost of education has been increasing by leaps and bounds during the last few years and this increase has not been due to the academic cost of college life. Rather it has been due to the social life which is so necessary and yet which should not run into extravagance. As in many other things, there is a happy medium to be reached and maintained. Any item which tends to overbalance this condition should be investigated to the end that it may be remedied.

The cost of dancing to a college orchestra has been much higher than a just and reasonable figure. It has been exorbitant. It could not exist. The price offered by the fraternities is within the union scale and fair to all concerned. Incidentally, it will mean a marked saving not only for the fraternity man but for the non-fraternity man also. The latter would do well to follow the example of his brother on the campus by keeping within the dollar and a half limit. This consideration is praiseworthy; parents have a right to demand for the college should expect it. It is the Spirit of the times.

A NOTEWORTHY GIFT

The recent action of the Theatians in giving a gift of one thousand dollars to the college falls into the applause of every friend of the college. This organization, which is the oldest one on the campus, has given unselfishly that it is for a Pennsylvania State University and is a true supporter of the Health and Welfare Campaign. It has set a fine example for other campus organizations and students.

REHABILITATION MEN AMONG BEST STUDENTS

Disabled Veterans Take Active Part in College Activities At Penn State

Disabled veterans of the great war are being recognized by the use of the honor roll of the college. The names of these men are being placed on the honor roll of the college and a few of them are being named as best students at Penn State. The organization of these men are being organized into a club and the members are making their own contributions to the college.

Edward Raymond G. Reesler, a member of the Federal Board of Pensions, has been named as one of the best students at Penn State. He is a disabled veteran who has been in the service of the United States and who, as a result of war injuries, had to leave school. He is now attending the college and is making excellent progress.

Three other veterans have won important positions on the staff of the college. They are: George G. Grant, a member of the National Student Body, and the other two are also disabled veterans who are making excellent progress in their studies.

Three D. S. C. Men
These are the men who are well up in their studies and are holders of D. S. C. degrees. They are: Edward V. ... and the other two are also disabled veterans who are making excellent progress in their studies.

Two of the first honor students at graduation last spring were: Claude M. Huber, a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society, and Arthur R. ... who are both disabled veterans who are making excellent progress in their studies.

One of the war service students is a girl, Mary McGovern, of Conshohocken, Pa., who is also a disabled veteran and is making excellent progress in her studies.

These are the men who are well up in their studies and are holders of D. S. C. degrees. They are: Edward V. ... and the other two are also disabled veterans who are making excellent progress in their studies.

SPECIAL MOTION PICTURE MACHINE FOR I. E. DEPT.

A special motion picture machine has been added to the equipment of the Industrial Engineering Department. The machine is so arranged that a film may be viewed up or even completely stopped without damage to the film. This will give a great asset to the department in the study of Time and Motion. Films have already been received and the showing of pictures will soon start. The machine is very accurately timed and can be regulated to one two-thirtieth of a minute. This idea is giving very practical lines in that the methods and motions of a workman may be criticized.

EXTENSION COURSES ARE HELP TO REJECTED MEN

Many of those who endeavored to enter Penn State this year and who were turned down because of the over-crowded conditions are now seeking extension through the Engineering Extension Department.

By taking the mathematical courses offered by the department many men will be able to enter college next fall as Freshmen with advanced standing. Among the courses most prominently selected by these students are Mechanical Drawing and Trigonometry, which are usually followed by Descriptive and Analytic Geometry. It is also noteworthy that many of the students enrolled in this school do not intend to enter college; but are studying the courses in connection with the work they are performing in the business world. This is particularly true of the subjects included in the various engineering branches.

Yes! Writing without effort!

What George S. Parker has achieved for students with the 25-Year Duofold

THIS lacquer-red pen with jet black tips is not only handsomer than gold—it's a perfect classmate for the college man or girl.

Better penmanship for every one—without effort or fatigue—on any paper—at study, at classes or at lectures.

Mr. Parker achieved it by producing a native Iridium point as smooth and life-enduring as a jewel bearing, and a leak-proof barrel with a grip that is balanced with scientific precision and symmetry.

Such perfect poise and super-smoothness in writing relieves the nerves of tension. The Duofold glides under your subconscious direction of its own balanced weight!

You think of only what you're writing—not how. So your thoughts come easier, clearer, more composed.

We will let you have the Duofold for 30 days to demonstrate. You'll never be content to write the old way after that. Even before they tried this 25-Year point, 62 men in 100 chose the Duofold for its classic beauty and balance from a tray of assorted pens. Its popularity has never been equalled.

Over-size Duofold—a real HE Pen holds a double ration of ink, $7. Duofold Jr. and Lady Duofold at $5 are like it in everything save size. Come in and try the points—extra fine, fine, medium, coarse and stub. Students are always welcome here.

Parker Duofold
The 25 Year Pen

Rivals the beauty of the Parker Pen—only Duofold is so smooth, so balanced, so perfect.

Would you give your roommate the original Duofold? No! Give him the original Duofold—regardless of who writes.

Press the button and Duofold draws its fill. No pump—no lever. No catching and spilling ink.
