ALUMNI DAY

Just one week from today, the third annual Alumni Day commences! Next week, Penn State puts everything aside to assume the responsibility of hosts to the alumni and alumnae who will return to their Alma Mater next Friday and Saturday!

For two successive years, more and more guests have been entertained at this annual home-coming so that it is reasonable to expect an even larger gathering this year. Smokers are intended to bring about many happy reunions and the football game and mass meeting should be feature numbers. But what about the attendance? Student Council can be relied upon to arrange for an interesting program but it cannot create an attendance. That is up to the student body.

The college cannot expect to have an unusual Alumni Day unless it goes to unusual trouble in preparing for it. The fraternity and individual student should assume the duty of advertising Alumni Day to every former student of the institution. If each one would urge one of his friends or former acquaintances to come back to his Alma Mater for the week-end, Penn State would have an Alumni Day which would exceed the expectations of the most optimistic.

There is enough time remaining to make a last argument in favor of the home-coming idea. Let's put it across and put it across strong.

AN ENGINEERING EXHIBIT

And now comes the announcement that the various engineering departments are planning to stage exhibits at Pennsylvania Day! At last, the largest school on the campus is realizing the advertising possibilities of one of the largest of Penn State's social events.

For many years the students have been entertaining a large number of guests at this time of the year and only one school of the college has taken the trouble to advertise its work. THE PENN STATE COLLEGIAN suggested in an editorial a few weeks ago that the other schools follow the example set by the Agriculture Departments, believing that the entire college should be presented to the visitors in some striking manner and not by one school alone.

The student body can take for granted that nothing will be left undone by the engineers once they get started. Members of the three upper classes remember the Inaugural Parade of last year when the various departments of this school vied with one another in staging the best and most typical exhibit. The work and ideas of each department were kept secret as much as possible until the morning of the parade and the results were very satisfactory.

The same plan is being followed this year in regard to Pennsylvania Day. One department is already working on many ideas and seems to have had a gratifying start. But definite information is difficult to secure.

It will pay the student body to watch carefully for announcements concerning these exhibits which will be made in this paper from time to time. A full program will be announced immediately preceding the week-end of Pennsylvania Day so that each student will be able to plan to be at the engineering buildings when the stunts and exhibits will be presented to the public. Watch the engineers!

THAT HAIR CUTTING EPISODE

The action of the hair cutting committee last Saturday night in cutting the hair of some Freshmen who were caught loitering in the vicinity of Co-op corner while the student tribunal was meeting out punishment to some of their classmates, has been criticised from all angles during the week. Arguments have been heard pro and con and the affair is apparently dying a hard death.

There is no doubt as to the guilt of some of those unpunished. They were tried, found guilty and sentenced. The others disobeyed an unwritten custom which has been related to them ever since they matriculated and were punished without the routine of a trial.

There is an unwritten custom to the effect that no Freshmen shall be in the vicinity of that place where one or more of his classmates are being punished for infraction of student regulations. All Fresh are taught that as soon as they enter college, especially during the first few nights after the beginning of the semester. There is absolutely no excuse for disobedience in this case.

It is true that the Sophomores were hasty in their action which was irregular and they should be sure that it is not repeated. The student Council is anxious to have all customs rigidly enforced but it will not countenance indiscriminate hazing. Let this be a warning. But the culprits should be thankful that the affair has ended as it has. If they had been taken before Student Tribunal and the regular routine followed out, they would undoubtedly have received a much harsher sentence. As it is, they have fared well compared to what might have been.

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE

The Juniors and Seniors in the Mechanical and Industrial Engineering Departments are fortunate in being given an opportunity to attend the meeting of the A. S. M. E., at Lewistown. A program has been prepared for this gathering which is noteworthy in more than one respect. Besides dealing with one of the most important problems that confront the engineers of today, the program also presents, as speakers, men who have been successful in their respective fields of endeavor.

Dean Kimball, of Cornell, is a national figure, prominence which he has attained through the many accepted books which he has written and through his work as head of the largest engineering organization in the country. Superintendent Lewis, of the Standard Steel Works Company holds the chief executive position at the Lewistown plant, being one who has "arisen from the ranks." William Elmer needs no introduction as his position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, of Altoona, is more than sufficient recommendation to place him above the average. Add to this, a discussion by prominent Pennsylvania manufacturers and there is formed a program of great value to any person interested in the engineering profession.

Campus Gossip

The educated man is the one who knows how much he doesn't know.

The longer we come to college the more we discover there is to be learned.

A freshman thinks he knows a lot while a senior tries to make the professor know a lot.

The average freshman is so confident of his knowledge that he tries to defeat a rhetoric proof in argument.

We never were Old Main rats, but we often wonder how it feels to be one.

To be yelled at by all dispersing meetings would be quite a novelty—for about a week.

To be interrupted and to have to respond to such yells would be a novelty—for about one-half hour.

By that time we would have discovered that all college students exercising their vocal cords on us lack originality.

Every third one yells the same thing and the other two repeat the same thought.

College Spirit

The following is a prize winning definition in a contest conducted several years ago at Penn State:

COLLEGE SPIRIT: To be loyal to our college, to our daily work, to our ideals, to our sense of honor, to our fellows, to our country, to our God.

We agree with the editor. There should be a slender path on New Beaver Field leading to the new stands.

But why stop there? There are lots of other paths around college that are sadly in need of repair.

Why is it that the lights never fail to go out on the only night that we have to study?

The Tribunal advocates something different in haircutting. Ask the frosh who wears one.

Freshmen may secure reservations for some choice standing room for the next events at Co-op corner by applying to us.

HEALTH SERVICE REPORTS FEWER STUDENTS SICK

Regardless of the inclement weather which the country has been subjected to for the last few days the Health Service Department reports that the health of the students is much better. Prevention must be taken at this time, however, if his favorable report is to be maintained.

An utter disregard of the following schedule constitutes the various reasons for so many colds during this season. If this advice is lived up to by the individual the resulting list of sick cases will be noticeably decreased:

To Avoid Colds
 Keep feet dry and warm.
 Dress according to the outside weather and temperature.
 Do not wear too heavy clothing indoors.

Be regular in your habits; eat slowly, masticate thoroughly; avoid an excess of proteid diet.
 Don't eat cold lunches during the winter months; get warm food at noon hour.

Practically every cold is preceded by constipated bowels or torpid liver.
 Drink plenty of water between meals; and breathe deeply of fresh air.

Lack of exercise and overeating are two favorable conditions for "colds".
 Avoid draughts when fatigued.
 Ventilate your room well.
 Bathe regularly.

All colds are more or less contagious, therefore sneeze and cough in your handkerchief and protect others.

SOPH-FROSH GOLF MEET NEW FORM OF CLASS SCKAP

The sophomore-freshman golf tournament is being played this week on the college course. The teams consist of ten men each, who play a round of eighteen holes. A victory for a round scores three points for the winning team. Considerable interest is being shown in this new form of class scrap and it is planned to hold such a tournament annually in the future.

In the latter part of the month teams will be picked from each of the four classes which will play for the championship of the college.

"THE PERFECT WOMAN" LAUDED BY ROTARIANS

Upon the conclusion of the eighteenth performance of J. Gordon Amend's play, "The Perfect Woman" last Tuesday evening in the Rotary Club at Phillipsburg, the author received much favorable comment on its merits.

The spacious hall room of the Phillips House held a record attendance and was well represented by followers of this lighter variety of play. Requests from the Rotary Clubs of DuBois and Clearfield for the staging of this production have been received and will be fulfilled within the near future.

The cast of characters in the last performance was composed of Austin Hakeskie '23, Miss Ruthanna Sharpless '23, and J. Gordon Amend.

The Dial

will either delight you or excite you—it certainly will not bore you. It is not just "another magazine," but the only journal in America devoted exclusively to art and literature, to beauty and ideas. These things are not decorative additions to life, but are the deepest satisfaction of all intelligent or sensitive persons. If your college career has made you appreciative of beauty and ideas you will like THE DIAL: if not, you will probably read a copy, smile archly and ask—

- HIGHBROW? If refusal to compromise with the popular and semi-popular constitutes "highbrowism," then we admit the accusation.
- QUEER? Yes, if by queer you mean the constant doing of things other magazine never think of.
- DULL? Certainly, if your standard of values is based on the appreciation of Snappy Stories and Telling Tales.
- MORBID? Perhaps, that depends—all of our stories certainly do not have happy endings.
- DEGENERATE? Possibly—but wouldn't you like to be associated with the following company of degenerates, all of whom contribute to THE DIAL: Sherwood Anderson, Johan Bojer, Robert Bridges, Van Wyck Brooks, Joseph Conrad, T. S. Eliot, Thomas Hardy, Vachel Lindsay, Robert Ross Lovett, Amy Lowell, George Moore, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Romain Rolland, Bertrand Russell, Carl Sandberg, G. Santayana, May Sinclair, James Stephens, Arthur Symonds, William Butler Yeats.
- EROTIC? Well, we never have upheld the genteel tradition in American letters, and we do publish frequently the work of D. H. LAWRENCE, EZRA POUND, ARTHUR SCHNITZLER, and JAMES JOYCE.

Caviar to the Particular

THE DIAL is not satisfied with being caviar to the general—it is caviar to the particular. Its sole purpose is to bring the work of the artists who count to the people who care. It is publishing, both in traditional and unconventional forms, and by known and unknown men and women, the art and the literature by which our generation, here and abroad, will be remembered by future generations. Each month the significant works of the creative minds of the world, in fiction, poetry, the essay, and the graphic and plastic arts, appear in its pages. In addition, it affords a complete critical survey of books, music, art, and the theatre—in short, a complete rendu of what the intelligent world is doing and thinking.

MANY MARRIAGES

a new novel by

Sherwood Anderson

Mr Anderson is the most interesting and important figure in contemporary American letters. Since his arrival six years ago, Mr Anderson has published six books, each of which has marked a distinct growth in this development. His latest work to be published in book form is THE TRIUMPH OF THE EGG; a collection of his best short stories. This was probably the most seriously discussed book of the past year.

MANY MARRIAGES, his latest novel, both in theme and treatment, stands far apart from the run of novels dealing with the American scene. The confident belief held by American and foreign critics in Mr Anderson's future will be justified by this new novel, for in it he has gone farther than in any previous work in the full development of his art. A man living in a small town in the State of Wisconsin is the central character of this significant work. It is the story of the love and marriage of a man, told as the man understands it on the decisive night when the marriage comes to an end. The intensity of emotion and the richness of imagination are equally remarkable. This novel marks a distinct break from the methods of photographic realism so much in vogue among writers of the middle west. It is the most important work that Mr Anderson has produced so far, and is certain to be acclaimed by the discriminating as a permanent contribution to American letters.

THE DIAL wishes to assure the admirers of Mr Anderson's work that MANY MARRIAGES surpasses anything he has previously written. It is probable that this novel will be the literary sensation of the coming season. We feel certain that you will not want to miss this fine work.
