

ANNA CASE GIVES FIRST "Y" NUMBER

Well-Known Metropolitan Soprano Charms Large Audience in Auditorium

SINGER RENDERS WIDE VARIETY OF PIECES

From the opening notes of "While I Listen To Thy Voice" until the last strains of the "Song of the Robin" had died away amidst a thunder of applause, Anna Case charmed her audience in the Auditorium last Saturday evening with one of her justly famous song recitals which have made her name famous throughout the country.

Miss Case comes to Penn State as the opening number of the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course for this winter, which includes the best talent obtainable in lyric courses throughout the United States.

Miss Case has a rarely beautiful soprano voice and her well-chosen and varied repertoire of songs has been picked with special attention to the particular type of notes. The concert Saturday evening included several songs in French, Latin, and Swedish, as well as a beautiful Avta in Italian. In every one of these pieces, Miss Case showed a faultless technique and vocal training, and held her hearers as only a true artist can.

Anna Case sings unaffectedly, vivaciously, or plaintively by turns, as the nature of her songs requires, and her high soprano voice of fine quality, together with the utmost grace and refinement, enables her to do what she wants with her song. Her group of old and modern French and Swedish songs were most charmingly rendered with the distinct enunciation and shades of expression and vocal color that bespeak only the very highly trained voice.

As an encore for the last number on the program, Miss Case sang Penn State's song "The Blue and White" in a manner that gripped the heart of every Penn State man in the audience such as only Miss Case's voice could do. Although she had never heard the song before, Miss Case rendered it with a fineness of feeling that gave the song a new meaning to those who heard her sing.

DEAN KNIGHT MAKES PLEA FOR UNIVERSITY

"If we deny to Pennsylvania a state university, we deny the wisdom of President Lincoln when he signed the Morrill Act, which made state universities possible; we deny the great public services rendered to the country by the universities of the middle west; and we admit that we do not wish to give our boys and girls the advantages which other states are giving to their boys and girls," said Dean Knight at a meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women held last week at Reading. She addressed the gathering on the subject, "State College—The State University."

Dean Knight made a special appeal for the young women of Pennsylvania "to whom an education at the expense of the state is a birthright." "We could have just three times as many women at the Pennsylvania State College this year as we have, had we accommodations for them. I urge the women of Pennsylvania to do all they can in the campaign now being carried on in the state to have pledged to the $2,000,000 fund directed towards buildings for women."

Dean Knight drew a graphic picture of the needs of Penn State and her alma, especially with reference to the women of the state. She said in part, "Every day we are asked why the State College wishes to change its name to the State University. We can only answer by an enumeration of the public services of the institution, the scope of its teachings and the number of its departments; and make a comparison of its services with those of any other state university of the country. We want the dignity of the name as well as the credit of our accomplishments. We want the people of the state to stand behind us in the next legislature that we may eventually get from the state a millage of taxation sufficient to adequately meet the needs of a state university."

PENN STATE RECEIVES PRIZE HOLSTEIN HEIFER

Professor A. A. Borland, head of the Dairy Husbandry department has received word from the All-Ohio County Holstein Priesian Association, announcing the intention of this group of dairymen to present the college with a pure blood heifer, as another addition to Penn State's growing herd. The gift ceremony will be made a feature of a Holstein Field Day to be held on the Bell farm this week.

E. P. Brits, a graduate of the Connecticut Agricultural College in 1893, has been appointed to take charge of the dairy husbandry extension work at Penn State. After his graduation he was connected with the Louisiana experiment station for a number of years. He then managed a large stock and dairy farm in New York, which position he held until eight years ago when he was elected dairy extension specialist at the Ohio Agricultural College at Columbus.

FRESHMEN WIN FIRST CLASS MEETING SCRAP

First Year Men Put Up a Good Fight and Reach Co-op Despite Sophomores

Over six hundred fresh were present at the first freshman class meeting and all were full of pep. As an instance of their class spirit they raised their quota in the College Campaign by ten percent. This is a big advancement and brings their standing practically on a par with the other classes. The meeting according to custom was under the supervision of the Junior president "Mike" Palm. He urged the freshmen according to custom was under the leadership of the Junior president "Mike" Palm. He urged the freshmen to get a good start in college and to go out for activities around school. He impressed upon the freshmen the fact that going out for these activities would increase their acquaintanceship and do them a great deal of good.

After the class meeting the annual clash between the freshmen and the sophomores was held on Co-op corner. It was a magnificent scrap while the fun lasted. An avalanche of water from three hoses and bushels of well-dome vegetables met the freshmen as they dashed from the Stock Pavilion. Every freshman, soaked to the skin, but with unshaken ardor, ran past Holmes Field and took his stand with the rest of his class at "Co-op". Then the fun started.

The juniors proved themselves as standing for fair play in their slogan for the evening "Only one man to a man". The frosh gave their class yell and hung around for some fun. Down charged the light brigade of sophs from between the entrance posts and swept the freshmen up Allen Street to Beaver; then back they came again and cheered some more for the juniors and themselves. As a just retribution, or dramatic irony or what not, one of the leaders of this cheering, fighting mob was a man with a shorn head, shorn but a few days before by the second year men. The sophomores, too, put up a noble battle, but being handicapped by lack of numbers, they succeeded only in depicting, not in disbanding the enemy.

WATER COLOR EXHIBITION IN FINE ARTS MUSEUM

A water color exhibition from the New York Water Color Company and the American Water Color Society is now open for visitors and will remain on display for two or three weeks. These water colors are shown in the large gallery of the Fine Arts Museum in Old Main Building. The collection of almost a hundred paintings represents the work of fifty-eight American artists, many of them painters of the first importance.

The subjects of these water colors cover a wide range of interests and include colorful glimpses of many lands. William H. Holmes, of the National Gallery of Washington, D. C. is represented by landscapes painted beneath the brilliant blue sky of Arizona. Julius Debes records the quaint charm of the English village by three striking studies of Sussex. Irving E. Coube is recognized by his brilliantly colored studies of the American Indian and John Carlson, Charles Warren Eaton and George Innis by their paintings of the Adirondacks. The variety of treatment as well as the range of subjects adds much to the pleasure of those who view the exhibit.

The exhibit of water colors and oils by faculty members will be shown in conjunction with this exhibition.

PROF. CHEDSEY RETURNS FROM MINING CONGRESS

Professor W. R. Chedsey, of the Mining Department, recently returned from attending the American Mining Conference at Cleveland. While he was there the coal strike problem was brought up and discussed at length. Many excellent solutions of the problem were suggested, and it is expected that the strikes in the future can be prevented by one of these methods.

Another interesting subject that was discussed was the education problem in California. It was stated that $40,000,000 was provided last year for education. The money is all provided by a system of taxation. Over $9,000,000 of this money went to the University of California.

Never Wear Glasses as you can possibly do without them.

This advice has been quite faithfully kept by quite a number of people who are now unable to get glasses that give them proper relief. It's just as logical to wait until life is almost extinct before calling a physician. What chance has the doctor when your vitality is about all gone? None!—Neither can you get comfortable glasses if your power is so exhausted that the muscles cannot respond to artificial aid. Scientific Examinations with out drops. Consultation free. Dr. Eva B. Wrestling, boxing, and music will furnish further means of entertainment during the evening.

FIRST PENN STATE GRID TEAM WILL BE HONORED

Heroes of Thirty-five Years Ago To Be Given Reception at New York City

Just thirty-five years ago last Wednesday, Penn State's first football team took the field and introduced the grid game to this institution. Only two games were played that fall of 1887, both with Bucknell and both resulted in overwhelming victories for the Nittany Lion, at that time a mere "cub."

The members of this first Penn State team are to be signally honored at the time of the Syracuse game at New York City on the last Saturday of this month. They will be the guests of honor at the annual banquet on the eve of the game and will also attend the contest in a body as guests of the Athletic Association. At the banquet they will be presented with individual gold footballs, similar to the present day variety award, by Coach Hezlek. On one side of the above and the player's name below. On the reverse side will be the line "First Penn State Team". There were no awards in those early days of Penn State history, and the presentation of the charms was left upon by the college officials as the finest tribute to those who first wore the Blue and White on the gridiron.

Ten members of this first team are still living and occupy prominent places in the business and professional world. They are: J. P. Jackson '89; J. C. Mock '90; G. H. Lins '92; W. L. Barclay '93; H. B. McLean '90; J. S. Welby '89; C. M. Kessel '90; C. C. Hillbrand '92; J. L. Rose '85; H. R. Leyland '90; and Manager J. F. L. Morris '89. The deceased member of the team is John G. Mitchell '88.

LOCAL ALUMNAE PLAN TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

The local alumnae of the college will entertain the visiting alumnae and the girls of the senior class at a party in the Woman's Building on the evening of October twenty-first.

Miss Sarah Hartman '22, president of the Women's Student Government Association, will speak and the girls' club will help to entertain the guests. A number of the former Penn State girls are expected to be here for the Alumni Day festivities, and the girls are looking forward with much pleasure to entertaining them.

DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE WILL CONDUCT SURVEY

J. S. McCord Is in Charge of Farm Management Investigation in Chester County

J. S. McCord of the Department of Rural Life will leave for Chester County to meet the representatives of the Bureau of Farm Management of the United States Department of Agriculture, to make preliminary arrangements for a farm management survey in that county.

The survey will be conducted by the Department of Agriculture in conjunction with representatives from Penn State. A large number of farms will be visited at that time and information will be obtained relative to the best farm practices and the most profitable systems of farming in practice in that county. The facts obtained will have a direct bearing on methods of cultivation, care of livestock, and other general farming operations, rather than any special type of farming. This is the only farm management survey conducted in this state by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, but the findings of this investigation will be applicable to the entire southeastern section of the state.

A similar survey was conducted in Chester County ten years ago and the recommendations of the national experts as put into practice will be served from the standpoint of profitable returns during this investigation. The findings of the survey will be published in bulletin form by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The bride, Esther Allebach, was given away by her father, Leah Lark. Evelyn Mack was Eleanor Collins, the groom's best man, and Janet Cutler was the bride's maid.
