FRESHMAN ELEVEN MEETS DARTMOUTH

Third Game of Season Will Be Played Tomorrow at Hanover, New Hampshire

REBUILT NITTANY SQUAD SHOWS FIGHTING SPIRIT

Following a three day period of intensive scrimmage since their defeat at the hands of Kiski last Saturday, the freshman football squad of twenty picked men left yesterday morning for Hanover, New Hampshire, where they will clash with the Dartmouth yearlings for the third game of the season.

During the first part of the week, Coach Hermann has been completely re-organizing his first year aggregation trying to offset the faults which came to light last week with Kiski. The greatest problem which had to be solved was the weak left end of the line, especially the tackle positions. The line which will start against Dartmouth tomorrow will have been completely shifted, some of the former members taken off and new men put in their places.

Following a costly fumble last Saturday, which resulted in the first touchdown for the preparatory school team, the freshmen lost their fighting spirit and seemed unable to do a thing to prevent the loose playing and fumbles. The results of the scrimmage this week have been satisfactory from the standpoint of aggressiveness on the part of the first year men. More hard work has been shown during these practices than at any other time this fall.

Two of the most dependable men of the squad, who were expected to fill their respective positions, McCann at end and Kirkoff at tackle, received injuries recently which prevented their going with the team. McCann has a lame shoulder and neck, while Kirkoff is suffering from a strained knee.

The first team which will be sent against the Dartmouth eleven will be composed of Faulkner, L. E.; Ride, L. T.; Michalowski, L. G.; Grey, C.; House, R. G.; Onyx, R. T.; Martin, R. E.; W. Baker, G.; Light, L. H.; Buckley, R. H.; G. Baker, F. B.

For substitutes "Dutch" Heermann took Adams, C.; Shanks, L. H.; Helmer, R. H.; Johnston, F. B. The extra linemen are Hinson, E.; Fellows, Graft, Bingham, and Shaffer for either guards or tackles.

The Dartmouth game this year is one of the most difficult on the freshman schedule. Little is known of the Green and White aggregation except that they are exceptionally well supplied with good material. Last year on Old Beaver the Dartmouth freshmen defeated the Nittany eleven by one touchdown in the last quarter by a forward pass.

NEW YORK GRADS WILL HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Ten Living Members of First Blue and White Grid Team To Attend Celebration

Now that a Penn State football game at the polo grounds at New York has come to be an annual affair, the New York Alumni are arranging their annual banquet so that it falls on the eve of that game. Plans for the coming banquet are such that one of the best and most successful affairs that has ever been held by the New York Alumni will be to be staged this year.

First Grid Team to Attend

The banquet will be held on Friday evening, October twenty-seventh at six-thirty at the Hotel Pennsylvania. One of the big attractions will be the presence there in a body of ten members and the manager of the first Penn State football team of 1887 who represent all the living members who comprised that eleven of thirty-five years ago. Besides these old football stars there will be other distinguished men present whose names are being held back by the New York grads who are anxious to spring a surprise and are not willing at this time to divulge their identity.

Will Have Radio

One stunt that it is hoped can be "pulled" by the New York Alumni at their banquet is the broadcasting by radio of music by the Penn State band and the Varsity Quartet. Arrangements have been made to have the band, if it can be taken to New York, stationed at one of the most powerful of the New York broadcasting stations and to send their music out into the ether where Penn State men and hundreds and thousands of other listeners within the radius of this powerful station can listen to the strains of Penn State music as rendered by their own Penn State band.

Besides this a complete radio receiving station will be set up in the banquet hall so that the music of the band will be reproduced so clearly that every man present will hear it. This will the New York Alumni at the same time accomplish very valuable advertising for the college and a most novel entertainment for themselves and visiting graduates. If the project can be arranged finally the band will be introduced by a speaker who will tell something about Penn State, its size, its location and its aims, and the Penn State program (Continued on last page)

FINAL PLANS FOR ALUMNI DAY HAVE BEEN COMPLETED

Celebration of Homecoming Will Begin With Parade by College Band Saturday Morning

Alumni Day promises to be exceptionally well conducted this year. Two important get-togethers have been planned for the visiting grads over the week-end. The first of these will be announced by the College band, which will parade through the streets on Saturday morning, beginning at nine-fifteen, and will lead the procession to the Auditorium where a rousing booster meeting will get under way at ten o'clock, and to which all members of the Faculty, as well as seniors and juniors are cordially invited.

"Prexy" to Address Gathering

A speech by President Thomas, outlining the campaign and pointing out just what is needed and expected of the alumni, to make it successful, will be the main address of the morning. In response to this the chairmen of the various districts will make reports on the progress of the campaign in their respective territories. In this way the

Work of Many Artists Depicts Scenes From All Parts of the World

The following article on the water color exhibit now open to the public in the Fine Arts Museum of Old Main, was written by a representative of the COLLEGIAN who had been delegated to describe his impressions of the paintings.

Depicting views and scenes from many corners of the world, the water color exhibit now arranged for public inspection in the Fine Arts Museum of Old Main offers to those not familiar with the more exact points of the art of water color painting an opportunity to appreciate pictures of such things that are or ought to be interesting to the average person.

One of the most attractive groups of pictures is that dealing with the sea harbors and docks. Some of the scenes are of the vast views of the sea, reaching out as far as the eye is able to see and rolling in on the shore in huge waves. Other paintings show old fishing vessels either under sail or grouped together in the harbors with furred sails and tall masts against a background of quaint houses of an earlier age. The color of these marine views is far from dull and gray but on the other hand each part has such a distinctive shade that the whole picture seems to be an actuality.

On the wall opposite the pictures of the sea is another group covering a wide range of subjects of inland views, particularly of parts of the United States not well known in this section of the country. The mountains and western scenes are pictured in such style as to show their uniqueness and magnitude not justly appreciated by those not familiar with them.

Other pictures are of old fashioned gardens in wild riot of color, forests and farms during the summer seasons; groups of tall old style houses, clustered together as was the European custom years ago, are shown in several paintings.

The entire exhibit is such as will present a new idea of art as a whole, showing that pictures can be interesting to the laymen and present an idealized idea of common things.

CRABAPPLE CLUB TO HOLD CIDER AND APPLE FEED

The Crabapple Club will meet in room 100 Horticulture building, Monday evening at seven o'clock. All the students interested in Horticulture are invited to attend. The first meeting will be of a social nature, a feed of cider and apples having been arranged for the occasion.

Dean Watts will address the meeting on the early history of the club since its founding fifteen years ago under the direction of the present Dean.

NO CLASSES TO BE EXCUSSED

The Council of Administration of the College, at a recent meeting, ruled that Alumni Homecoming Day would not be considered as a college holiday.

The Council also decided that Pennsylvania Day, which is also Armistice Day, will be considered a college holiday, and that public exercises will be held in celebration of Armistice Day. Details of the celebration were left to the Committee on Student Welfare and will be made known later.

K COMPANY TO ATTEND MILESBURG CEREMONY

In order that Penn State may be represented at the unveiling of the war memorial of the Milesburg soldiers who gave their lives in the recent World War, the military department is sending K Company of the cadet regiment to Milesburg this afternoon. About one hundred and forty men will go with this company, and the Military Department urges that all these men report at the Army in uniform at twelve-fifteen. Excuses from classes for the afternoon have been secured so that the men will not lose out in their college work.

progress of the campaign throughout the state should be fairly well summarized at the conclusion of the meeting.

This booster meeting will be presided over by George H. Deike '03, President General of the Alumni Association, who is acting as campaign manager for Allegheny County in the drive. James A. Leyden, a former Penn State track star of the class of 1914, and a perpetual booster for the welfare of the Alma Mater is expected to be on hand to lead the alumni in cheering and singing.

Smoker at Armory

The second meeting is to be an informal smoker in the Armory at eight-fifteen p. m. An orchestra has been engaged to furnish music, and cider and pretzels will be used to ease the throats of those who become hoarse after the football game. After this meeting numerous fraternity houses will conduct similar meetings for their returning alumni.

Underclass Runners To Contend for Honors on Golf Links Course Tomorrow

The annual freshman-sophomore cross country meet will take place tomorrow, beginning at one-thirty in the afternoon, the start to be made from the grandstand on New Beaver Field, and the runners to follow the usual course.

It would not be at all surprising to see the freshmen win tomorrow's contest, as many of the new men are fulfilling Coach Martin's hopes, expressed at the beginning of the season, that the Class of 1926 will produce some brilliant runners. Of the yearling distance men, Shipley and Arm show the best form at present.

"Bill" Martin also has his eyes upon several likely sophomores. Among the latter are Decker, Horton, and Loy. None of these men ran for the class team last year, but all made excellent showings in the amateur handicap track meets staged last winter and spring.

President of Society, Dean Elmer of Cornell Speaks to Engineers

ENGINEERING PROFESSION GROWING IN IMPORTANCE

"The engineer of tomorrow will be the political and industrial leader of the country" was the keynote of the address delivered by Dexter S. Kimball at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held in Burnham last Monday afternoon. Dean Kimball who is President of this national engineering society and who heads the College of Engineering at Cornell University appeared as the chief speaker on the program.

William Elmer, chief official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Altoona and Superintendent Lewis of the Standard Steel Works also contributed to the general subject of "Management".

The engineer must invade the field of management because he is the only one trained to attack such a difficult task," the Dean continued. "The present day tendency is to apply science to the solution of every problem. In this way he will be expected to bring a clear vision to the entanglements of human relations and thus be the harbinger of harmony. The engineer has conquered all other fields and now he is asked to bring about industrial peace".

Room at the Top

According to William Elmer there is plenty of room at the top for college trained men who are willing to work (Continued on last page)

A Trusty Lineman

"TINY" McMAHON

"Tiny" McMahon is a product of the west. He has played football on the varsity squad for three years, being "Bugs" Madala's line partner last fall, and is one of the bulwarks of Penn State's defense this season. Another of "Tiny's" specialties is wrestling, and although this six-foot, seven inch heavyweight was unable to wrestle last winter on account of an injury, he made a name for himself during his sophomore year when he filled the heavy-weight position on the varsity wrestling squad.

The subject of the debate is, as yet, undecided and will not be proposed until confirmation of an engagement has been received from Panther headquarters. The debating society will also endeavor to conduct a triangular debate at that time by having a local contest take place in the Auditorium.

Arrangements are being made for a tour of New England or Middle West-ern states this year, but will be governed largely by the replies received from colleges and universities in these localities. Last year the debating society received a total of seven hundred and seventy-five dollars in guarantees from the various schools where the team competed. This helped materially to defray expenses incidental to transportation and board enroute. It is hoped that a similar, or even larger amount may be forthcoming this year in order to aid in making the season successful.

At the regular meeting of Student Council held last Tuesday night, it was decided that the tie-up scrap would be held on October twenty-eighth instead of in the spring as has formerly been the case and that Poverty Day would not be held this year. Instead it will be a spring attraction when the warmer days will influence a more interested participation. The publication of the proceedings of Student Tribunal in the college paper, a revision of all customs, the purchase of a new pushball, the securing of special trains for the football games, present postoffice conditions, a sophomore hop, and the advisability of petitioning for a Thanksgiving vacation were other matters discussed and decided upon.

BIBLE DISCUSSION GROUPS FORMED

Twenty-Five Fraternities Have Already Agreed To Foster Study of Life of Jesus

STUDENT LEADERS ARE COACHED BY DR. PATTEE

A number of Bible discussion groups have been formed in the fraternity and rooming houses of the town within the last week under the direction of the local T. M. C. A. These groups will have for their main purpose the discussion and study of the social principles of the life of Jesus, together with a general discussion of the Bible as a whole.

Prof. Pattee, Coaches Leaders Under the direction of Dr. F. L. Pattee, a number of leaders for these groups are being coached. These men, in turn, with the assistance of Rauchenbusche's "Social Principles of Jesus" have charge of the various individual groups. Twenty-five fraternities have already agreed to start groups with this plan, and several of these have the work well under way at the present time.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION EXTENDS INVITATION

The Alumni Association extends an invitation to all members of the Faculty, and to the Seniors and Juniors of the College, to attend the Booster Meeting in the Auditorium on Saturday morning at ten o'clock; and the Alumni Smoker which will be held in the Armory at eight-fifteen p. m.

MIDDLEBURY IS READY FOR PENN STATE CONTEST

New Englanders' Veteran Line May Present Knotty Problem to Nittany Backs

The last opportunity of seeing the Nittany Lion in action on familiar soil, before it hits the road for the big game with Syracuse and Navy, will be given tomorrow afternoon when Bezek's proteges clash with Middlebury's pigskin artists on New Beaver Field. The battle is scheduled to begin at two-thirty o'clock, and there is every indication that it will be closely contested and hard fought throughout.

Although not in the pink of condition, the Penn State gridder are in as good shape as might be expected at this time of the year and may be counted upon to give Dave Morey's lads a fight, the memory of which they will take back with them to the foothills of Vermont. All of the regulars are physically fit with the exception of Captain "Newsh" Bentz who is out with a badly bruised shoulder as a result of the game with Lebanon Valley last Saturday. Hurford will fill his regular berth at right end in tomorrow's game as his ankle although still causing him considerable trouble, is healed sufficiently to allow him to enter the fray. Middlebury Has Veteran Team Middlebury has a veteran combination this year, and the men have been pointed for the Penn State meeting ever since the season started. Coach Morey has moulded together a team which is sure to give Bezek's warriors a stiff fight and help them get in shape for the five hard games which follow tomorrow's contest.

The Vermonter's line is powerful, but their backfield is none too strong. The average weight of the line is one hundred and seventy-five pounds, while the average of the backfield men is around the one hundred and sixty pound mark. The entire eleven is dependable on all occasions and its defensive tactics are well developed and form a combination that Bezek's men may find hard to crack.

NITTANY DEBATERS TO CLASH WITH PITT TEAM

Arrangements Also Under Way for Tour of New England or Middle Western States This Year

Reservations for a debate with the University of Pittsburgh for either December the first or eighth have been submitted to that institution by the Penn State Forensic Institute. Either of these dates will mark the initial contest in which this year's team will compete.

The subject of the debate is, as yet, undecided and will not be proposed until confirmation of an engagement has been received from Panther headquarters. The debating society will also endeavor to conduct a triangular debate at that time by having a local contest take place in the Auditorium.

Arrangements are being made for a tour of New England or Middle West-ern states this year, but will be governed largely by the replies received from colleges and universities in these localities. EMILE WALTERS WILL EXHIBIT AT PENN STATE

Well-Known Oil Painter Has Won Valuable Prizes in Noted Art Exhibits

During the past season, Penn State has been unusually fortunate in securing art exhibits of high standard. Possibly the best exhibit ever hung in the Fine Arts Museum in Old Main will be the collection of paintings done by Emile Walters, one of the best artists of young America, if attempts to obtain an exhibit here are successful.

Walters, through the efforts of Professor A. J. Koehler, head of the Department of Architecture, was induced to come to Penn State this summer and teach a class in oil painting. At the close of the summer session, Mr. Walters went to Unlontown where he opened his own school for a six weeks course, and it was at the close of this school that the scene of the Nittany Valley drew him back to Penn State in order to visit his friends and do some canvases of the valley for exhibition in New York this winter.

Emile Walters is considered by the critics as one of the finest of the American artists of the impressionistic group, and he has canvases in almost all the private collections of note in the United States, not to mention the large galleries and museums, while his greatest achievement was the winning of the George O. Goodwin prize in Chicago.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION EXTENDS INVITATION

The Alumni Association extends an invitation to all members of the Faculty, and to the Seniors and Juniors of the College, to attend the Booster Meeting in the Auditorium on Saturday morning at ten o'clock; and the Alumni Smoker which will be held in the Armory at eight-fifteen p. m.

ALUMNAE TO MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

Penn State Alumnae Club Makes Interesting Program for Homecoming Day

Arrangements for Alumnae Homecoming were the chief consideration of members of the Penn State Alumnae Club at its first fall meeting held September twenty-sixth, at the home of the president, Mrs. E. K. Hilschman. The preliminary program decided upon at that time sets the main meeting of the occasion for Saturday evening, October twenty-first at eight o'clock.

Interesting Program All Penn State alumnae have been urged to be present at this event, and senior women students have been invited as guests of the club. This latter group will contribute to the program with stunts, a play will be given by the Alumnae Club, while music by the Girls' Glee Club and piano solos are promised.

Methods of securing finances for a gift to the two million dollar building fund have been under consideration. Alumnae have been asked to specify that their pledges be used in the construction of the buildings for women since it was pointed out that one room in the Women's recreation building will be set aside for use by Penn State Alumnae.

Reports on the alumnae fund showed an increase of about five hundred dollars in the last six months through recent donations. Several loans have been given out this fall, and four have been requested already for next semester. Assistance in meeting college expenses has been given to twenty-two girls.

Alumnae Residing Here A number of Penn State women are in residence at State College this fall. This number includes Miss Mary Engle '20, Miss Georges Lequemere '20, Miss Cordella Pharo '20 who are teaching.

ENG. EXTENSION NOW HAS OFFICE IN PHILADELPHIA

Headquarters for East Established at Philadelphia Thru Means of Home Economics Dep't.

Engineering Extension activities in the eastern part of the state have grown to such an extent that it has been necessary to have an eastern branch office. The need for headquarters for the Building Campaign made it necessary to provide a local office in Philadelphia. Through the courtesy of the College a very convenient location was found at 247 South Juniper Street, where the Extension representatives are now located.

The office was originally provided as headquarters for the local work of the Home Economics department, which is represented in Philadelphia by Miss Mary Spaulding and Miss Mary Rogers. With these three activities of Economics, Engineering Extension and Building Campaign the office is a veritable hive of industry.

ATHLETIC MASS MEETING

There will be a football mass meeting in the Auditorium, this evening at seven o'clock. Besides "Bez" and the speakers from the varsity team, it is probable that several members of the original Penn State football team will give short talks. Hand Out.

"UNIVERSITY PIG" CONTRIBUTES TO EMERGENCY FUND

Most Valuable Pig in Captivity Adds Impetus to General Building Campaign

WESTERN ALUMNI ARE BACKING DRIVE TO LIMIT $505,000 Mark Is Passed During Last Week—Pledges Continue To Come in

The most valuable pig that ever walked on four legs arrived at the Pennsylvania State College hog farms yesterday. She is "Northumberland Pals' Lady of Penn State University" and is worth just three thousand five hundred dollars, that amount in pledges being sent with her as a contribution to the college two million dollar emergency building fund by the pure bred Durce Jersey hog breeders of Northumberland, Snyder, Millin, Columbia, and Dauphin counties. The presentation of the pig took place at the annual show on Tuesday at Sunbury held by the breeders of these counties. Twenty central Pennsylvania counties were represented at the show, the biggest Durce exhibit ever held in the east.

That the new Penn State pig is an aquatic wonder as well as the highest valued little grunter that was ever held in captivity, was learned yesterday from Dr. H. H. Havner and other agricultural extension men who attended the Sunbury gathering.

On the morning of the show, just a short time before the presentation of the college took place at high noon, "Lady of Penn State University" broke away from her land moorings and started to act up like a mermaid in the cooling waters of the Susquehanna river. The show was held on an island in the river and Lady thought the main shore looked better. She waded in and swam half way across the river before attendants could rescue her.

Will Be Exhibited at Smoker The three thousand five hundred dollar pig has been the center of attraction on the campus since its arrival. It will be exhibited at the big smoker to be held Saturday evening as the final event on the Alumni Homecoming Day program.

This action marks the third big donation that livestock men of the state have made toward the erection of a unit of new dormitories for men at the college. An Altoona meat packing firm has given one thousand dollars and the Pittsburgh Union Stockyards two thousand dollars. These and other similar contributions will enable the college to admit more students when the needed facilities are finally provided.

Campaign Passes $505,000 Mark The general campaign fund has slowly grown past the $505,000 mark during the past few days, and there is every indication that it will take a big leap tomorrow when the Alumni gather in the auditorium and give reports on activities in the various counties. It is felt that many districts have been holding up their subscription announcements until this meeting.

Yesterday "Prexy" Thomas received messages from Penn State alumni in Chicago and Los Angeles, California. Both stated that the alumni in Illinois and those in Southern California were backing the drive to the limit and that they expected to send in 100 per cent participation records in the very near future.

ARCHITECTS PLANNING FOR BEAUX ARTS BALL

Annual Event, To Be Given in Conjunction with Play, Will Be Staged in March

That Penn State will take a prominent part in the collegiate social world this year was decided on Monday evening, when the students of architecture decided to hold a Beaux Arts Ball this winter. This ball has long been a high light in the social events of the year at Penn, Carnegie Tech, and many other colleges of the country. The dance and play held by the architects last year was a complete success and it has now been definitely decided to make it an annual affair. This season the dance and play will take place over the week-end of March ninth and tenth, 1923.

It has been decided to have this spring affair follow a definite period, instead of the mixed costume ball of last year, and the committee has selected Spanish for this celebration, on account of the great opportunity afforded by Spanish costumes as to the use of color and originality.
