ENG. EX. STARTS COURSE IN INDUSTRY MANAGEMENT

A series of lectures comprising a three years' course in industrial management has been started at Harrisburg by the Engineering Extension Department of Penn State.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Shops are sending one hundred and fifty men, the Miller Fisher Company about twelve men, Harrisburg Pipe and Foundry and the Bethlehem Steel Works about fifty each.

Other firms will bring this total to about three hundred men. This lecture course will be of incalculable worth to the respective companies and to the men.

The plan, as it is arranged, is for certain men around college to speak at these meetings every other week.

The first lecture of this series is to be addressed by Professor J. O. Keller, head of the Industrial Engineering Department here at the college.

Professor Keller leaves for Harrisburg for this purpose next Monday, October thirtieth. Other men to speak are Professor P. P. Henshaw, Professor C. W. Beese, and Mr. C. E. Bullinger.

Byron G. Harlan, Comedian, With Company of Three Will Be Here November Fourth

In an effort to assist in the raising of the Girls' Endowment Fund for the Pennsylvania State College, a company of entertainers headed by Byron G. Harlan, an American comedian and tenor of considerable stage repute, has been secured to appear in the Auditorium on Saturday evening, November fourth.

The entertainment has been arranged by a joint committee representing the Girls' Endowment Fund and the committee on Student Fellowship for Christian Life Service of the Penn State Y. M. C. A.

Proceeds derived from the performance will be used in the Endowment Fund Drive which the co-eds of this institution are enthusiastically conducting at the present time.

Byron G. Harlan is a familiar veteran comedian of the American stage, and it will be a hearty welcome that he receives when he steps from the wings in the Auditorium for the first time.

In company with the famous Collins, he has been the creator of numerous phonograph records. His "raucous" songs, negro dialect songs, "Cousin Caruso" Italian comies, and his famous duets with Collins have made him one of the nation's most noted entertainers of the present day.

Harlan has a pleasant personality and a superior voice. He is a gloom chaser, versatile and original in his methods. The style of entertainment that he furnishes is irresistibly funny. His Italian ballads are classics and he impersonates each character that is injected into his songs.

Harlan brings with him a company of talented artists. Miss Beth Hamilton is an American violinist who always arouses enthusiasm from critics and audiences. Her training has been with the most eminent masters of America and Europe. She always reaches her audience with the first draw of her bow. Armstrong "The Man of Mystery" one of the most versatile, refined and original entertainers is an evening's entertainment in himself and must be seen and heard to be fully appreciated. Magic is an art that sometimes intrigues, often amuses and always entertains. Miss Mabel H. Loomis is the pianist and accompanist and although equipped with the technique of a virtuoso, she uses it only as a means of expressing; this she combines with a musical touch and artistic temperament in such a way as to make piano playing an art. Miss Loomis also renders a number of delightful vocal selections.

PENN STATE TRAINING CLUB TO RE-ORGANIZE THIS YEAR

The Penn State Training Club composed of students who attended the Military Camp any summer, intend to reorganize again this year, and carry on the work of the club as was done in former years.

This club is organized to arouse and maintain the interest of the students in this branch of military work. It is composed of juniors and seniors who have passed their basic work at the summer camp.

REPLACEMENT OF DAIRY HERD AIM OF BREEDERS

Fifteen First-Class Animals Have Already Arrived at Penn State Cattle Barns

The general movement on the part of the dairy cattle breeders of the State to present to the Pennsylvania State College choice animals of the various dairy breeds is now making rapid progress.

This movement was started by the breeders themselves in order to replace the herd which was swept away by disease in 1915-1916. The Institution has never been able to finance the replacement of the herd, and the breeders recognizing the importance of the need of animals for student judging purposes, have come to the rescue.

Those animals that have already been received at the college dairy barns or are soon to arrive are as follows: Lyeomg Breeders Choice, a fine three year old Holstein cow presented by the Lyeomg County Holstein Breeders Association.

Weller Farm Yankee Beauty, the beautiful little Holstein heifer presented by E. H. Weller & Son, of Warren, Pa.

Sir Roberts Romom Delle, an unusually fine Ayrshire type heifer that was presented by the Masonic Homes of Elizabethtown.

Two fine Jersey heifers have come from Susquehanna County, one from Ball Brothers, of Birchardville, and the other from S. C. Birchard, also of Birchardville.

L. B. Carter, Titusville, is sending one of his best bred Jersey heifers in northwestern Pennsylvania.

L. S. Kluogh, of Warren, Pennsylvania, is sending a beautiful Ayrshire heifer.

Charles Moore, of Garland, Warren County is sending a handsome Holstein cow.

The dairymen of Bradford County are presenting one Jersey and one Holstein.

The Allegheny County Holstein Breeders Association, at their Annual Field Day, on October 17th presented a fine Holstein heifer, selected from the herd of the County Home. She is a daughter of May Echo Sylvia, the World's record Holstein cow for milk production in seven days. Her production was 1,065 pounds of milk in seven days.

Simon Stahlman and J. P. McCracken, of Jefferson County are each consigning a well bred Holstein to the college herd.

The Chester County Holstein Breeders Association expect to present a Holstein cow on October 28th at their annual Field Day. Two other Chester County breeders, Mr. Hugh Moore and Mr. M. L. Jones, are each presenting a Holstein heifer from their own herds.

The Guernsey and Ayrshire breeders in Chester County are also planning to send representative animals.

The great interest taken by the dairy cattle breeders of the State in filling the empty stanchions at the College dairy barn speaks well for the future of the herd at the Institution. The animals practically all come from accredited herds, so that the college will not need to forfeit its accredited herd certificate. Every effort is being made to keep the college herd free from disease.

NEAR EAST RELIEF FUND

Old discarded things of many kinds will be converted into cash for the relief of suffering in the Near East if our citizens and students of State College will look about a bit for many things which have already been set aside or may be given up with little sacrifice.

Old jewelry and coins are especially valuable for the purpose. Anything of gold, silver, platinum, plated ware, brass or copper, Sheffield Plate will be acceptable. Other things that can be used are old postage stamp collections; old false teeth; old glassware, colored or white; lace, cameos, old violins.

Contributors can place articles in a box provided for the purpose in Gilliland's drug store at any time during business hours.

PLAYERS TO CARRY ON EXTENSION WORK

Penn State Dramatists Seek to Aid Secondary Schools in Producing Plays

In line with the aim of the Pennsylvania State College to serve the needs of the state, one of the college's dramatic organizations, the Penn State Players, has organized a bureau of information. Drama today plays a highly important part in education, but in many high schools the proper equipment and material is not available.

The Penn State Players desire to fill this need.

The Players have been presenting plays at State College for many years, producing dramas of Shaw, Shakespeare, France, Yeats, Barker, Wilde, Parker, and other famous dramatists. During the past two seasons, in response to demands from organizations throughout the state, they began presenting plays in other communities as well. A portable theatre is now part of their equipment. This portable stage consists of a frame and hangings which can be erected in any hall or theatre, large or small.

The Penn State Players have gone even farther in their attempts to be helpful. Realizing the difficulty in choosing the proper vehicle for amateur production, they have issued a pamphlet listing plays of all kinds for all occasions. Copies of all the plays in the list are kept on file and may be obtained for reading purposes by any resident of the state. This service is free except for a small fee to cover the mailing expense.

To Publish Bulletins

During the coming season, the Extension Department will issue a series of bulletins on the choice of a play and all the subsequent problems; such as costumes, lighting, scenery, and rehearsals. One bulletin will be devoted to the different kinds of make-up, with suggestions for the simplest make-up box, and hints on making up the various characters. Another bulletin will contain a list of plays suitable to the grades, and suggestions regarding their production.

CHAPEL SPEAKERS FOR THIS YEAR ANNOUNCED

Professor Wood, of the department of Mechanical Engineering, has received a letter from F. W. Thomas, Supervisor of Apprentices of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, commending this school on the calibre of men that they have secured from here for apprentice work.

Following is an extract of the letter received from the company: Dear Mr. Wood:

Do you know of any graduates in year or two whom you could recommend to us for employment as special apprentices? Those who came to us last spring have been doing good work, rendering very valuable service during the recent strike. Now that the strike is over the future for special apprentices on this road is particularly bright. We have several vacancies open just now and would be glad to employ any of your graduates whom you care to recommend.
