"PREXY" AND "BEZ" ENDORSE "Y" WORK

Testimonial Letters Received From College Officials Urging Support of Drive

To the Students of Penn State: The Y. M. C. A. is firmly established as one of the leading welfare agencies at Penn State and deserves the hearty approval and generous support of us all. I have been pleased to hear testimonials that for many years the Penn State Y. M. C. A. has ranked high among similar college organizations of the country. It is constantly performing friendly acts for the students of our college.

JOHN M. THOMAS

When appeal was made to the student body to participate in the Emergency Fund for Health and Welfare Buildings, to which they responded so generously. It was stated that the campaign for the Y. M. C. A. would be the only other general appeal during the year. I hope that the manifest response of the students to the need of the college will be duplicated, in proportion to the amount requested, in the Y. M. C. A. campaign.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA HOLDS BIG PAJAMA PARADE Illuminated by the blaze of a gigantic bonfire, the pajama-clad Californians held their annual parade in the big open-air theatre last week. Class stunts, speeches, and music were the order of the evening. Special sections were reserved for the varsity and freshman football teams who took part in the festivities of the night.

"Y" BUDGET FOR NEXT YEAR IS ANNOUNCED

Twenty-six hundred dollars will be needed for office work and over-head expenses in carrying on the work of the Association, thus completing a budget that will amount to five thousand dollars for the coming year.

BIG RECEPTION GIVEN "BEZ" AT PITT SMOKER

The band and cheer leaders were responsible for much of the pep that characterized the affair, the smoker being one of the most successful that has ever been staged by the alumni.

STUDENTS VOLUNTEER FOR CHRISTMAS WORK

The campaign total is rapidly nearing the $350,000 mark, over $30,000 having been received last week in reports from thirty-four counties and ten states. The alumni smoker in Pittsburgh Thanksgiving eve resulted in the pledging of over $7,000 by sixty-odd alumni father Coach Bezdek had "balled 'em out" for being so slow in coming across with subscriptions.

PITT DOWNS PENN STATE TEAM 14-0

The Panther's ferocious attack gradually brought him down to the Nittany 30 yard line. Here the Lion held firmly and after three downs Williams decided to try for a field goal. His attempt went wide of the standards. The ball was placed on the 20 yard mark and the Blue and White team tried to rush the Pitt defense but failed to go far and Palm dropped back to kick. His punt was blocked. However, Palm himself fell on the ball and then managed to kick out of danger on the next play.

Match Me

"Match Me" is a card game of twenty one cards of which 8 are the basic patterns of the science of Finger Prints. Thus, it is scientific, interesting, and instructing for the young or old. In offering it to you, first, I do so, confident, that it will take well and as one student said, "Go over big" and why? For the reason that there is something to this game. Something for nearly all indoor entertainment, for the House Party, the Card Party, the Dinner Party, Church Social and the Home.

Match Me

I have not the temerity to offer it in my own "home-town" unless it is meritorious because, here, we find the most critical and exacting and you must have something meritorious to go over "Big". Take "Match Me" home with you, EUGENE H. LEDERER

The Nittany line held at this point a trick forward pass fooled the second and Anderson made the second and touchdown. FIRST FOOTBALL RULES MADE FIFTY YEARS AGO

Popular College Sport Was Man's Game When "Grandpa" Donned the Grid Molestins

With the interest of football fans flamed to a high pitch at the present moment, it is well to know that exactly fifty years ago the first football rules were framed at a meeting of representatives from Princeton, Yale, Columbia, and Rutgers. Under this new code Princeton defeated Yale for the first time in the fall of that year, 1873. Two years later Haverford joined in the promotion and encouragement of the gridiron sport in this country.

Prior to the framing of these rules football as played by American colleges and schools was a combination of "anything and everything", rather difficult to describe. Harvard played English Rugby which corresponds more closely to present day soccer than the modern game of football, but the other schools competed in games that resembled the present day "elgus rushers" governed by neither laws nor rules.

You CAN'T PUT A QUART OF SYRUP INTO A PINT JUG, NO MATTER HOW GOOD THE SYRUP IS. Yet for generations we have been trying to do practically the same thing. Many parents fail to understand why some children advance more rapidly than others and try to crowd knowledge into these younger intellects not knowing their capacity is limited. This may be due to the abnormal condition of the children's eyes. I make a specialty of prescribing glasses for children's eyes. Dr. Eva B. Roan, Optometrist, 10 E. In 1875 Harvard defeated Yale under a system of rules that was a compromise between the English and American Rugby laws. This style of play was found to be unsatisfactory, however, with the result that the English features were eliminated and American intercollegiate football began to take on a character of its own.

Under the leadership of Sam Winslow, Harvard developed a notable team in 1875. At that time the forwards were called "rushers" and had no fixed positions, and in the backfield there was a "quarter", two "half ends", and a "full end". The players wore jackets and knee breeches of white or brown canvas, knitted skull caps, and heavy leather shoes with thick rubber soles. The game at that time was indeed a man's game with fierce tackling, long runs or plunges by fleet "fenders", spectacular drop-kicking and punting and at all times an unnecessary roughness never seen in the present day game.

The American game was then perfected by Yale and Princeton during the next few years to such an extent that Harvard was left far behind. Yale with such famous players as "Pa" Corbin, Terry, Heffelfinger, and "Butt" Stagg, coach of Chicago University at present, and Princeton with "Snake" Ames, Cowan, and Edgar Allen Poe, played a slashing game of football with every modern feature perfected with the result that they outclassed all their rivals.

Harvard appealed to Lorin F. Deland, a theorist for a new method of coaching with the result that the first mass plays were perfected, that for a time threatened the popularity of the game. The climax came when Pennsylvania invented the "guards back interference" made famous by such giants as Wharton and Hare. This system of football was so rough that a number of relations among the big colleges were severed, some of which have never been resumed.

Through the efforts of the Intercollegiate Rules Committee, the game was freed from such rough-house tactics and at the same time greatly improved.
