PENN STATE PLEASSED BY ALTHOUSE CONCERT

Leading Tenor of Metropolitan Opera Charms Audience at Saturday Night Recital

Penn State was given a pleasing treat last Saturday evening when Paul Althouse, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, appeared in the Auditorium under the auspices of the seventh number of the Combined Musical and Entertainment Course. Mr. Althouse's pleasing personality combined with his really fine tenor voice won the heart of his audience at once and he achieved triumph after triumph as each number of his well-arranged program drew a tremendous ovation.

Mr. Althouse's concert will be a memorable one in the annals of this year's musical course, for his voice is unquestionably among the best in America today. His tones are smooth, resonant, and clear, and his intonation accurate. At no time during the entire program did the artist allow his careful intonation to become slurred and the people in the farthest corner of the Auditorium could hear every word distinctly.

With the exception of the first two groups, Mr. Althouse's program was sung in English. In the first group the artist presented four little French songs including the ballad "Cheville Belle-Etoile" and the sentimental French love song "Les Yeux". As the second group, Mr. Althouse sang Meyerbeer's "Aria: O Paradiso (L'Africano) in Italian.

The fourth and fifth groups were given over to light songs in English, such as Mr. Althouse delights to sing, and with which he invariably charms his audience whenever he sings. The songs in these groups were of a widely varying nature and ranged from the soft, plaintive "Pleading" to Elgar and Martin's dainty love song with the swinging rhythm "All in a Lily-White Gown" to pieces of more serious nature such as Kramer's "Great Awakening" and "The Blind Plowman" by Clarke.

Throughout his program Mr. Althouse was accompanied at the piano by Rudolph Gruen, a pianist of unusual ability both as an accompanist and soloist. As the third group on the program, Mr. Gruen played Chopin's Ballade in G Minor, Opus 39, No. 12 by MacDowell, and Liszt's sixth Rhapsodie. It was in this last piece that Mr. Gruen was enabled to display his wonderful ability and the manner in which he played through the difficult runs of the Rhapsodie fairly made his hearers gasp with astonishment.

Both artists were generous with their encores and responded to the insistent applause of the audience at the end of each number with a willingness that added to the success of their program.

ARCHITECTS INSPECTION TRIP STARTS TOMORROW

Numerous Cities Between Harrisburg and Philadelphia To Be Visited by the Men

Leaving State College tomorrow, the seniors in the Department of Architecture will make an inspection trip continuing until the Easter vacation, visiting Harrisburg, Lancaster, Downingtown, Philadelphia, and several other towns immediately outside of Philadelphia.

On Thursday, March twenty-second the men will inspect the Pennsylvania State Capitol located at Harrisburg and the Bethlehem Steel Company Plant at Steelton. Going from there to Lancaster on Friday, the twenty-third, measurements will be taken of the Lancaster Town Hall and of the Tower of the Trinity Lutheran Church. The actual taking of measurements in detail of various works of architecture is an entirely new phase of the annual inspection tour.

In Downingtown, on Saturday, March twenty-fourth, minute measurements will be taken of various colonial details. At five o'clock the party will go to Philadelphia where they will make their headquarters at the Hotel Rittenhouse, Chestnut and Twenty-second Streets. No trip has been regularly scheduled for Sunday but the students have been urged to visit the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the various historical buildings in Philadelphia and the Pennsylvania Museum at Fairmount Park.

The morning of Monday, March twenty-sixth will be taken up with a visit to the offices of Day and Klauder, Architects for the College, followed by the inspection of a building under construction. In the afternoon the men will be conducted through the entire plant of the Curtis Publishing Company. A trip will be made to the Bryn Athyn Cathedral on the following morning and an inspection of the Hotel Bellevue. Stratford will take place in the afternoon.

ACTIVE SEASON PLANNED FOR NON-FRATERNITY MEN

Promising an active season in non-fraternity athletics, the recently elected management of the Penn State Club plans to include in its spring program the largest number of sports that can be handled successfully.

According to a recent announcement, plans are made to include baseball, track, and golf. Tennis may be added to this list if it is feasible and the non-fraternity men indicate a desire for this sport. Gym credit will probably be received for activity as a unit team as in previous years. Definite announcement of this and other details will be made soon. Any questions, suggestions, or criticisms will be welcomed by the athletic manager, C. M. O'Journe '21.

To attain the marked success recently enjoyed in the basketball season is the goal of the plans for spring sports, especially for baseball. Although no competitive playing will be done before Easter, organization of units will be pushed as far as possible in order to assure a long playing season, particularly in this sport.

GRANGERS' DONATION IS STIMULUS TO CAMPAIGN

Galnes, State Grange Lecturer, while other members of the committee were M. B. Orr, of Mercer, Mrs. Howard VanKirk, of Washington, Pa., Mrs. Louis Piollet, of Wysox, and Professor R. G. Bressler, of the faculty. It is planned to have the entire Grange fund raised by the spring of 1924 so that construction of the building can be started at that time. The new dormitory will house at least one hundred and fifty girls according to tentative plans, and that is about half of the present total enrollment of women students at Penn State.

Although the decision of the Grange committee was the most important feature of the past week in the general campaign, pledges continue to arrive at headquarters in varying amounts each day. The total pledged up to noon on Saturday was $1,120,433.44.

A team of faculty workers returned from Philadelphia Saturday night and brought back with them a total of over $6,000 as a result of several days of hard work. Cross-fire work among the alumni is being continued and the percentage of alumni subscriptions to the fund is steadily increasing.

NITTANY LACROSSE MEN HAVE DAILY SCRIMMAGE year's varsity, H. A. Body '23, Earl Singer '24, J. R. Rowe '23, C. R. Eisler '23 and H. C. Bush '24 are doing good work in the attack positions.

For the defensive positions Coach Jardine has a number of candidates who are shaping up for varsity berths. Captain F. A. Coulter '23 has had two years' varsity experience and is adept in his stick work. C. C. Morgan '24, last year's goal keeper, and M. H. Gatchell '23, a member of last year's varsity team, are likely selections for the team. I. A. Yost '24, varsity center last year, has been doing well in the third defense position. "Hap" Frank '24 and W. L. Anderson '25 have been applying their football ability to lacrosse with the result that they have been making remarkable progress, considering that this is their first year's experience at the stick game.

Maurice Chandres '26 and F. A. Washington '25, the 135 pounders, put up one of the hardest and most evenly matched battles of the meet. Washington started the bout by rushing the yearling boxer and twice knocked him to the mat. Chandres rallied, however, and before the end of the first round, got in some telling punches especially in the clinches. At the end of the third round the judges disagreed and the referee ordered another round. In the final frame both men winded and could do little. Chandres maintained a slight advantage, however, and won the decision by a slight margin.

With the score standing 3-0, T. C. Eley gained a decision over B. Ayers, in the 145 pound bout, clinching the meet for the first year men. The yearling boxer landed some hard punches at the start and managed to maintain his advantage through all three rounds.

The 160 pound bout came to a sudden and unexpected finish, when Kell, the yearling midget, scored a knockout on his heavier and larger opponent, R. P. Mears. Both men fought hard and bitterly from the beginning of the bout with Kell landing telling blows on the sophomore's body. Kell then slipped over a beautiful right and left hook to the jaw and body and Mears fell to the mat. The sophomore managed to struggle to his feet on the ninth count but the referee stopped the bout.

Another extra round resulted in the 175 pound division and in the final frame the freshman again gained the decision. The first year man, F. W.

PENN STATE MATMEN HAND ORANGE DEFEAT

Ansley of the Orange team wrestled Burdan to a draw. Both men were evenly matched and neither could secure a decisive hold.

Penn State secured its final points in the heavyweight contest when Emory threw Allen in 4 minutes and 1 second.

H. L. Borden '24, captain of the varsity boxing team, acted as referee and "Hap" Frank '24 and Clarence Beck '22, as the judges of the meet.

PROF. R. H. DOTTERER TO GIVE LECTURE TONIGHT

Whether Einstein's views will be finally accepted by the scientific world is yet to be seen. It is probable that the hypothesis will be modified in some important respects. Its essential features, however, have already won wide acceptance, especially among mathematicians. In philosophy it is asked in what respects its acceptance would alter the present view of the world. There are two prominent ways in which this would affect philosophy. In the first place it would give a universe which is finite, yet has no boundaries. In the second place it would lead, not as might be supposed, to a doctrine of subjectivity and caprice, but rather to a view of the world as existing independently of apprehension; for, while motion, mass, time and distance are relative, there remains certain absolutes even for this theory of "relativity".

Spring Fixin' Time

Spring's fixin'-up time for the house, barn, chicken house, and the rest of the premises. This fixin'-up time requires tools and hardware.

Item 1.—PAINT—Water quickly rots wood when it gets in the pores. You can prevent this by sealing them with B. P. S. paint. This forms a tough elastic film which will protect the surface for years, besides adding materially to the appearance of your premises. Outside paint in All Colors, $3.25 per gal. White, $3.45 per gal.

Item 2.—LOCKS and HINGES—Many styles and sizes, priced according to quality and finish. Check up to see what you need and come in.

Item 3.—POULTRY NETTING—A good chicken yard enables you to keep your chicks in and the dangers out. Poultry netting in 2, 3, 4 and 5-ft. heights at 7c, 10c, 13c and 15c per yard

Item 4.—ROOFING—If winter's storm left weak spots in your roofs, you can quickly repair them with Faultless liquid roof cement—applied with an ordinary paint brush. Or if you need a NEW roof, try our slate surface roofing—weather-proof and fire-resisting and guaranteed.

Foust's Special Asphalt $3.00 per Roll of 100 Feet

Item 5.—TOOLS—It's better to own good tools than to borrow. Following are some of the tools every man should own:

Utility Saw	$2.50	Files	$.40
Good Hammer	$.75	Zip Zag Rule	$.25
Files	$1.00	Wood Chisel	$.75
Block Plane	$1.25	Screw Driver	$.25
