INTER-UNIT BASEBALL CARD STARTS TUESDAY
...inable at the gym before the game and must be returned immediately afterward when it will be checked against the managers. In the event that any game cannot be played on account of inclement weather or other conditions it will be played on the first available evening.

Entries for inter-unit golf and tennis will not be closed at this time on account of the lateness of putting the courts and course into shape for playing. These entries will still be dropped in the box located in the gym. Indications are that an extensive tennis competition will be enjoyed this spring.

CORNELL A TO PROTECT DIAMOND AGAINST RAIN
The Cornell Athletic Association plans to purchase a large canvas tarp to protect the new baseball diamond against rain. A number of important games have been called off in recent years because rain had soaked the field, although at the time the game was scheduled to be played it had ceased. Similar protections have been employed with success at some of the major league parks, and the Cornell athletic officials believe that in the tarpaulin they are buying insurance against loss entailed by cancellation of games.

STATE REPORT MADE ON WORK OF HORTICULTURAL DEPT.
There has just come from press, two years after being submitted for publication, a very valuable report on "The Apple Industry of Pennsylvania," known as Bulletin 369 of the State Department of Agriculture. It reports the results of a survey made three years ago by members of the Horticulture Department of Penn State in cooperation with representatives of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. It is a comprehensive view of the great and over-growing apple industry of the Keystone state, and is the most valuable single source of information on the subject.

MUSICAL RECITALS PROVE SUCCESSFUL
Interpretation displayed by the Glee Club was noted and appreciated by many artists present at the concert. The College Orchestra concluded the evening's program by playing an inspiring march, "World's Progress" by Hobert. The members of the organization showed an ability and a knowledge of technique worthy of praise in a student organization. The concert as a whole was a success and marked the beginning of the series of extra fine musical programs that followed.

Mme. Olga Samaroff
On Wednesday evening in the Auditorium, Madame Olga Samaroff, America's greatest woman pianist gave a concert of the highest order. She displayed an ease and grace of movement, a superb technique, and a marvelous interpretation which won for her the immediate sympathy of the audience so that she was encored time after time throughout the evening. No programs were given out for the concert but Madame Samaroff announced each number before she played it.

Opening with a number by Chopin in C sharp minor, Madame Samaroff confined herself in her first group of four numbers entirely to the works of Chopin. The second number which she played was a soothing and appealing Nocturne in F sharp major followed by a lively and interesting first sharp Etude. She concluded the first group with Chopin's "Funeral March Sonata". The sonata consisted of four movements which Madame Samaroff played without interruption, the third movement being the wonderful funeral march, followed by a presto movement which brightened the atmosphere and concluded the sonata.

Rachmaninoff's Prelude in G minor was the opening number of the second group. For the next selection Madame Samaroff had been requested to play Liszt's "Love's Dream", but she said that she has played it at almost every concert this year and simply could not play it again. In its stead she played Nocturne by Greg. The third number was a bright and enchanting Dance by Debussy, and having saved the best till the last, Madame Samaroff played for her concluding number the Twelfth Rhapsody of Liszt. At the end of this piece the audience seemed unwilling to leave and were not satisfied until Madame Samaroff had played three encores all of which were masterpieces of technique and interpretation.

STUDENT COUNCIL TAKES UP SEVERAL MATTERS
The head of the Student Government to send four delegates to the biennial intercollegiate conference which is being held this year at the University of Pennsylvania on April twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh, and twenty-eighth. Penn State was represented two years ago when the conference was held at Boston. This year, it is planned to discuss problems on four phases of college life, namely, Student Government, G. P. Lane '23 with J. S. Adams '23 alternate, Publication D. E. Helm '21 with L. R. Schultz '24 alternate, Music and Debating, E. P. Kerr '25 with J. Gray '25, Athletics, R. E. Longacre '24 with M. H. Palm '24 as alternate.

Fathers Day Committee Named
All junior members of Council were appointed members of the Fathers' Day Committee in addition to the nine students elected from the junior class at large, who are as follows: R. W. Armstrong, D. W. Zander, J. C. Frank, N. S. Hibschman, E. E. Helm, J. R. Hillman, E. M. Jameson, I. A. Patton and F. D. Young. This committee will take charge of all arrangements for the observance which falls due this year on the week-end of May fifth.

Poverty Day Date Set
Poverty Day will be held this year on April twenty-fifth. The committee in charge consists of J. B. Park '24, chairman, H. B. Park '23, E. P. Kerr '25, and M. E. Buckley '26.

At the same time a committee was appointed to consider new forms of scraps that might be held this spring. From the recommendations of the committee, Student Council will probably select one to be held the early part of May. The committee is R. D. Longacre '24 chairman, B. D. Evans '23, L. G. Weil '23, J. A. Decker '23, C. H. Gough '25, E. S. Wetzel '25.

A committee was named to determine the wishes of the officials of the college and of the student body in regard to the instituting of a daylight saving program this spring. E. D. Schive '23, chairman, C. W. Niles '23, and W. B. Oliver '24 will report on this matter at the next Council meeting.

THESPIANS SET FOR SPRING PRODUCTION
F. D. Young '24 and J. C. Huffman '25 as business partners of "Pete Lloyd" round out the list of characters which hold the center of the stage through the conflicting circumstances around which the comedy is constructed. It is only through the fine interpretation by these leads that the dancing chorus finds its opportunity to work up the special feature of the show. This dancing chorus is a revival of an old Thesplan "stand-by" that had been permitted to die out during the last five years. The chorus is under the direction of J. W. Meyers '24.

Original Costumes
The costumes have been designed with the utmost care by George Horner and were effected in State College. In the first act the chorus is to be costumed in metal cloth cut over a modernized version of a mediaeval gown which will be reminiscent of the Robin Hood period. The costumes for the remainder of the show differ somewhat in that afternoon frocks of the latest fashion models, which have for their basis the Egyptian costumes of King Tutankhamen's reign, will be worn. The up-to-dateness of the costumes lends originality throughout the entire show.

Scenic Effects
The scenic effects are all modern and have been created by J. H. Patton '24. It was necessary that special attention be paid to the lighting effects for this production and the result has been to emphasize the overhead floodlights with modified footlights. This tends to direct the stronger lights to the upper features of the characters and takes away undue emphasis upon the lower extremities of the players, a feature which is necessarily essential in a feminine-roles play made up entirely of male characters.

The usual popular prices of fifty and seventy-five cents will prevail for this performance.

BASEBALL TEAM MEETS U. OF PENN TOMORROW
The twirling staff has shown some development in delivery and control. Bee alternated his pitchers in the practice games to insure them against becoming stale after such a strenuous work-out the week before. Miller and Black showed the most encouraging results on the mound, while Longhurst and Fixter were drilled in their relative positions during delivery and in covering their infield territory. The twirlers were well supported by "Chai" Hare, E. B. Hollabaugh '23 and T. M. Mallin '25. With the addition of Hare behind the plate the team will include those men who made the southern trip. Wise, the constant third-sacker, Fortna, Reed, Loeffler, Bedenk, Hare, and Koehler are counted on as being able to find the Red and Blue ball tossers for timely hits. The work of the team in tomorrow's game will furnish the Nitany coaches with additional information as to their best combinations for the remainder of the season. The team will depart Friday at noon taking the two forty-five train out of Tyrone.
