MISS MADGE T. BOGART COMES TO PENN STATE

New Instructor To Succeed Miss MacDonald As Head of Home Economics Extension

The appointment of Miss Madge T. Bogart of the Syracuse University faculty as head of the home economics extension work in Pennsylvania to succeed Miss Pearl MacDonald, resigned, was announced here recently by the extension department of the Pennsylvania State College.

Miss Bogart comes to her new work well trained in all phases of extension activities pertaining to the home, both from a practical and educational standpoint. She will be called upon to direct the great program of home making principles developed in the past ten years by Miss MacDonald. She will come in contact with thousands of wives and mothers in Pennsylvania towards whom Penn State extension service workers direct their efforts.

Miss Bogart is a native of Minnesota, having studied at the University of Minnesota, the Oskosh Normal School, and later at the Teachers' College at Columbia University. In 1918, she was called to Syracuse University to become the head of the Department of Food and Cookery and acted in that capacity for five years.

The work in home economics extension, started by Miss MacDonald in 1914, has seen a steady growth until it now reaches into practically every community in Pennsylvania, rural and city.

Miss Bogart has not yet announced her plans, but she will undoubtedly proceed along the lines carried on by her predecessor who did educational work in the home along clothing, household management, and nutrition lines. Miss Bogart will have a force of at least thirty trained women to aid her in carrying out an extensive program of better home practices.

PENN STATE PLAYERS PREPARE FOR SEASON

Under the direction of Arthur C. Cloetingh, of the Department of English the Penn State Players have already made extensive plans for the coming year. Backed by their successes of three preceding seasons, the Players expect to launch not only an extensive local program but a much broader statewide schedule.

Two shows for the coming season have been decided upon—"Loyalists," by John Galsworthy and "Caste," by John Galsworthy and "Caste." These plays are on an increasingly higher dramatic plan and the countless requests for dramatic activity in the organization have made the opening which the Players are ever ready to fill.

An early performance of the Players is planned for Scranton and it is also probable that the show will be taken to Wilkes-Barre on the same trip. It is the plan of the organization this year to prepare their road show at the beginning of the season so as to have it on hand for out-of-town engagements throughout the year.

All students, freshmen included, are eligible for membership in the organization, which is chosen by competition.

CANOEING RESULTS IN DEATH OF PENN STATE '23 MAN

While canoeing on Lake Schenectady, New York, L. C. Hazen '23 was drowned on the evening of August twenty-fifth. Accompanying him was Harry F. Beyer '23. Both men were employed in the plant of the General Electric Company at Schenectady.

STUDENT PASTORS WILL COOPERATE IN "Y" WORK

Freshman "Y" Organized Similar to College "Y"—Is Part of New Plan

The student pastors of the State College churches have been invited by the Y. M. C. A. to assist in the direction of the "Y" work on the campus. Although only two churches in the town have a student pastor in addition to the regular preacher, both of the men have readily consented to take up the duties offered to them.

The Reverend Harry F. Babcock of the Methodist church will have charge of the extension work which includes deputation trips, meetings at the State Penitentiary at Rockview, and the county boys' conference.

The Reverend Donald V. Carruthers of the Presbyterian Church will take the freshman work. His duties will include the development of a fresh "Y" with its own cabinet and officers and with aims similar to the regular "Y."

The working of the student pastors with the Y. M. C. A., is in line with a similar co-operation at Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania. The pressure on the present "Y" officials will be relieved by the new plan.

F. I. Olmstead, head of the Penn State Y. M. C. A. says: "It is a most significant step in the development of our college 'Y' organization."

PENN STATE'S OLDEST LANDMARK DESTROYED

The "Old Willow" Falls Before Wind Storm on Night of August Twenty-first

When the "Old Willow," its massive trunk rotted to the core by the ravages of sixty-five years, failed to withstand a vigorous wind storm on the evening of August twenty-first, the oldest physical tradition on the Penn State campus was destroyed.

Planted on the campus in 1858, before Old Main was completed, by Professor William G. Waring, then a leading official of the "Farmer's High School," the "Old Willow" has won a warm spot in the affections of nearly 20,000 students who have passed within the portals of Penn State.

Originally the tree consisted of two branches coming from a short stumpy trunk. As improvements were made on the campus, an earth fill made the tree appear as two separate trees. Two years ago the western branch of the "Old Willow" was destroyed by a wind storm, despite the efforts of landscape architects to prolong its life.

About nine years ago, William G. Murfitt, assistant comptroller of the college, made a cutting from the old tree and cared for it in the yard of his home. Then in 1921 on Alumni Day a brief ceremony was held at the "Old Willow" where the new tree was officially dedicated to carry on the traditions of Penn State. On that occasion, J. H. Waring, instructor in the horticulture department and grandson of Professor Waring who planted the original tree, appeared to acclaim with President Thomas that the new tree "carry on" the tradition of the old.

The industrial engineering department of the college is making souvenirs from the sound wood of the old tree.

These will be sold for the campaign fund. A number of cuttings were also made and an attempt will be made to sell them.

In a recent article on Penn State traditions, Professor F. L. Pattee said of the "Old Willow" "In its prime, it was a thing of unusual beauty and the center of thousands of photographs, but it is now a ruin. A cutting from it planted in 1921 by a grandson of Professor Waring is growing nearby and preserves the tradition of the "Old Penn State Willow."

A BIG PEN to see you through a BIG four years

This is a great pen for college men and women! It is made by the makers of Eversharp pencil. It has a huge ink capacity! And the Wahl filling device fills it plumb full every time. It's a big pen. But it is so nicely balanced and proportioned that it fits into the fist most comfortably.

The Wahl Signature Pen writes the instant the point touches paper. The ink begins to flow evenly—always enough, never too much. The patented comb feed makes shaking unnecessary.

The everlasting nib is a wonder. Experts say it is the ultimate in nib-making. It suits itself to any hand—to any style. It is extra heavy. The 14-karat gold is tipped with the hardest and finest grade of iridium that money can buy.

The patented construction of the cap makes it impossible for the pen to leak in the pocket. The cap cannot split, for it is strengthened by the plain gold band. There are two sizes of the Wahl Signature Pen—one at $5 for women, and one at $7 for men! Other Wahl Pens, $2.50 up!
