

WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY AIDS COLLEGE TEACHERS

Summer Session Proves Interesting and Profitable to Men in Technical Branches

Twenty-two teachers of engineering from twenty-one widely separated colleges and universities spent the month of July in the East Pittsburgh Works of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company renewing their contact with industry in the interests of better teaching. This was the thirteenth consecutive season for a group of engineering teachers to gather at the Westinghouse Company. During these years upwards of four hundred engineering teachers representing eighty engineering colleges of the United States and many of the leading institutions of foreign lands have participated.

The teachers at the conference spent most of their time at the Works, largely as guests of the Company under the supervision of the Educational Department. The wide field from which it was possible to gather information made it necessary to outline the activities of the month in the form of a booklet, but this program was carried out with sufficient flexibility to enable the individual members to get the specific type of information that each was most interested in.

Each man was assigned to the department or section of the Works where he could be in contact with the men who could best give him what he wanted. Several men went into various kinds of testing, others into engineering departments, and a smaller number into the manufacturing sections. Although the amount of material which the men gathered during the total of ten days that they spent in department and section work depended on the initiative with which they went after it, every facility was placed at their disposal in the way of written information and assistance on the part of those men actually engaged in the work. Only a few of them gained a great deal of information by observation.

Most of the mornings and about three evenings a week were given over to conferences on specific subjects of interest, led by the representatives of the Company who were at the head of these various lines of work. These were held in a conference room at the Works where the men met informally around a table and discussed the points as they were brought out by the leader of the meeting.

PLAYERS WILL HOLD TRYOUTS FOR CASTS

(Continued from first page) others will be added so that the road show will make trips continuously to various parts of the state throughout the year.

Scenic Work Important
Besides the acting end of the Players there is another feature of the organization which claims the attention of trained students. The stages are set and decorated entirely by the students themselves. While it is important that each actor plays his part, it is equally important that the men behind the scenes do their part equally well. In the near future a call will be issued for students who are interested in the staging of plays to come out. Experience is not necessary as the work offered by the Players is thorough and extensive.

Likewise the Players are looking for scenic artists, who will help to design and paint the scenery used in the productions. The scenic artist is chosen, as are all other positions, by competition. The Players invite anyone in the student body who is interested in dramatic activity to enroll tomorrow night at the property room. In case there is no opening at the present time all names are kept on file throughout the college course of the applicant for constant reference.

PENN STATE RADIO STUDENTS IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTRY

Hundreds of radio "fans" from coast to coast, and some in Canada and Cuba, have made inquiry to the Pennsylvania State College department of engineering extension relative to the home study course in radio reception and transmission which was offered for the first time early in the summer.

TWO-YEAR AGRICULTURAL COURSE IS WELL LIKED

"One of Penn State's best mediums of service to Pennsylvania agriculture," is a thought frequently expressed by President John M. Thomas, of the Pennsylvania State College, in speaking of the Two-Year course in agriculture offered by the institution. To date there are over fifty applicants for the quota allowed, with room for a small additional number, says R. C. Bressler, who is in charge.

"This course is maintained for the benefit of young men who can not take the four-year course because of the lack of high grade preparation required of four-year students," Professor Bressler says. "Any young man, eighteen years of age or over, who does not have the time or money to prepare for the long course, but who desires to fit himself for successful farming will find the two-year course very beneficial."

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS DECLARE WAR ON BOARDERS

To find out on which side of the ledger their milkers belong, about 1,000 dairymen of the state are carefully weighing their milk and feed each day and are having the milk of every cow tested once a month for butterfat content.

FROTH FOOTBALL MEN START SCRIMMAGE WORK

(Continued from first page) that he will give the others a stiff battle. Welke, who played fullback on his high school team, has been shifted to tackle. He is slow for the backfield but with his hundred and ninety-five pounds of weight, "Dutch" is hoping that he will develop into a powerful linesman. Lukens and Gleske look best at the guard positions right now. Smick and Baltz, a new addition to the squad, from Wilkes-Barre High School, have also shown lots of promise. The centers are evenly matched and it is a toss-up whether "Dutch" will select O'Dea, Page, Reed or Schanche.

The second team was directed by Patton at quarterback in Saturday's game. Laferty and Buckley, halfbacks, and Wentz at fullback completed the backfield. On the second team's line were Paulkner and Anderson, ends, and McCann and Ellwood, tackles. Tom Murray was passing the ball at center and Onyx was a permanent fixture at right guard. Left guard was held down by Block, Rowland and Boyd in succession. Flock started the game but hurt his ankle and Rowland took his place. Rowland was then replaced by Boyd who finished the game.

Boyd is a new addition to the squad. He played at Penn State in the S. A. C. days and was endorsed at that time by no less a football personage than "Bob" Higgins. Last year he was ineligible. Backfield Look Good. Palm and Johnson looked especially good in Saturday's contest. Palm has evidently rounded into shape for he showed lots of speed in running back the ball and is getting that quick shift and whirl that distinguished Killinger's open field running. During the first quarter he was doing the drop kicking and put the ball over the cross bar four times in succession. Johnson look as though he is developing into a splendid ground gainer. He is learning to follow his interference and pick the holes. The new halfback seems to always have a burst of speed in reserve that enables him to speed past his tacklers and get away for long runs.

CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED TO DEFRAY EXPENSES

(Continued from first page) No further campaign for members is to be held later in the year, so that it will be possible for only those who are fully paid up members at the first of the year to participate in the Engineer's Ball and the Picnic in the spring. To these members, there are no further charges, the dues to the Combined Engineering Society including all charges to these functions.

Of the linemen Michalski and Bedonk form a great combination at the guard positions. Several times both men broke through the line and nipped the runner at the same time. Frevest showed lots of speed on Saturday. He pulled some nice bits of interference and on one occasion when Palm was running the ball back from the kickoff, he sent two of the second team players sprawling.

"Dick" Schuster seems to have his foot well trained for during the last three quarters he put his placement kick high and straight between the goal posts after every touchdown.

The Second Team. The second team put up a hard fight during the entire game. Faulkner looked good at right end and got off several long punts. McCann played a good game at right tackle. "Barney" Wentz was working hard at fullback and kept the second team full of pep. He is going better this year than he was last year when he played on the varsity eleven. One of these days he will catch a bad cold or something worse for all through Saturday's session he played without a headgear although "Bez" once stopped the proceedings in an effort to persuade him to cover up.
