

SOSA'S BAND IS GIVEN BIG OVATION

"March-King" and Noted Artists Render Best-Finished Program Ever Heard Here

SELECTIONS COVER WHOLE FIELD OF MUSIC WORLD

Before crowded audiences thrilled by his art, Lieutenant Commander John Phillip Sousa and his band appeared in the auditorium yesterday for the first time in the history of Penn State. The concert of both afternoon and evening were characterized by true "March-King" perfection of execution and stirring rhythm and, as the first of the "Y" Course features, the Auditorium was well filled with appreciative music lovers.

In addition to the regular organization there appeared Miss Nora Fauchald, a brilliant soprano, Miss Rachel Sessler, solo violinist, Miss Winifred Bambrick, harpist, John Egan, the famous cornetist, Meredith Wilson, a flute player of note and George Carey, perhaps the world's greatest xylophone player. Selections by these artists, artfully rendered as they were, made even more pleasing a program which would have been admirable in any case.

Program Making Sousa makes programs that are well-nigh universal in their appeal and deserves rank as one of the most expert program makers in America. "Musical program making is largely a matter of keeping up with one's public," is his opinion.

"The musical program maker must realize that the musical tastes of the American public are changing constantly, and he must realize it just a bit before the public realizes it. It does not do to come back from a tour and say that a certain kind of music has passed its popularity. One must learn to anticipate the passing of that particular type of music and eliminate it before the tour, instead of afterwards."

There are certain broad principles which may be laid down and which seem to endure, of course. Among them is the indispensable one that American musical taste is steadily improving. That means that each year I may venture a little more in the way of serious or classical music. American audiences like light music, even if it is topical and there is a point where the program maker must be on his guard. Each year before I assemble my band, I go through my catalogue, and examine closely my program notes, particularly on selections from musical comedy and light opera. If a particular selection showed any signs of faltering the last time it was played, I eliminated it. And as a general rule I find that the public response to any given selection of light nature is based upon sound relationship. The first to go are those of least musical worth and the hardy survivors are those which have some musically qualities.

Good Music Survives "It is more than a decade since "The Merry Widow" was current, yet it still receives a warm response in all sections of America. The whole country still likes to hear (Victor Herbert's "Kiss Me Again", although nine persons in ten have forgotten the name of the musical comedy of which it originally was a part or the name of the person who originally sang it. It has survived because it was good music."

Both of yesterday's programs betray the careful thought and skill of the great band leader, for the selections ranged from the classic genius of Chopin to his own spirited marches for which he has become so justly celebrated, and included compositions from almost every type of the composers art. For many years Sousa and his group of musicians have enjoyed the well-earned reputation of being one of the finest organizations of its kind in the world and in the concert of yesterday they demonstrated to the full the coordination of individual skill which has won them their fame.

CAMPUS COUNCIL FORMED BY GIRLS

Girls' Clubs Hope to Introduce Sororities at Penn State—Rushing Season Held

SIX SOCIETY PRESIDENTS MAKE UP NEW COUNCIL

The present year has seen, for the first time in the history of Penn State, the establishment of a Campus Club Council. This is a new development in the social affairs of the women students at this college and has become necessary because of the present status of Girls' Clubs on the campus. The Council was formed last semester but the real organization was not definitely outlined until this year.

The history of Girls' Clubs at Penn State has been short but extensive. The first club was formed January 15th, 1922, and was followed shortly by several others, until at the present time there are six Girls' Clubs on the campus. The ultimate aim of Campus Clubs is the introduction of sororities at Penn State, and with this end in view, a vote will be taken among the women students in the spring of 1924.

The Club Council is composed of the presidents of each club, along with two representatives from each with Dean Kay acting as advisor. Definitions are laid down for the organization of all clubs and any club violating such rules or regulations is subject to punishment by the Council.

At the final meeting of the Campus Club Council last spring rules for a rushing season were voted upon and approved. They provided for a period of two weeks during which time the various clubs are permitted, under certain stipulations, to "rush" prospective members. This period ended last Saturday, September twenty-ninth, at which time bids were sent out.

LOUISE HOMER CLUB WILL HOLD MONTHLY MEETINGS

The Louise Homer Club, founded last year to promote the interests of music among the women students of Penn State, has designated the second Tuesday in every month as the time of meeting. Meetings will take place in the parlors of Woman's Building and every third one will be a social affair. New members are chosen from the two upper classes and associate members are chosen from the sophomore class.

IT TAKES A PROFESSOR TO POINT OUT THE SHORTCOMINGS OF A STUDENT.

A certain freshman was reading a theme in English. He kept holding the paper further and further away. The professor noticing his effort to get the proper focus, said: "Mr. Student, if you can't afford glasses, come around after class and I will lend you the money."

We fit the student. Now he can see clearly at any distance.

NITTANY BAND IS HOST TO SOSA ORGANIZATION

Famous Composer Is Conducted on Campus Tour—Is Dined at Center Hills Country Club

From the time that John Phillip Sousa and his world-renowned organization arrived at State College yesterday morning until they made their departure, the celebrated composer and his group of musicians were entertained by members of the Penn State Band.

At noon, Sousa was the guest of honor at an informal luncheon held by the members of the honorary musical fraternity Kappa Kappa Psi at the Center Hills Country Club. Both Sousa and Bandmaster W. O. Thompson, who has known the great band leader for many years, are honorary members of the fraternity and from the remarks that the guest made, the luncheon was much appreciated. The party returned in time for the afternoon concert.

Immediately after the matinee the entire Penn State Band, numbering over one hundred members, met before the Auditorium and escorted the great organization to the banquet hall of the Methodist Church, playing "Saber and Spurs" and "Washington Post", two of Sousa's compositions. Director Thompson and A. F. Texter gave short addresses and Sousa responded with a few words of appreciation.

ENGINEERS CONTINUE TO JOIN COMBINED SOCIETY

Applications for membership in the Combined Engineering Society are still coming in at a rate which has increased during the last week. The number is still far below that expected, and the solicitors are being kept on the job hunting out those who were lacking in funds during the first weeks of the drive.

The souvenir program of the Exhibit which is to be distributed with the commitments of the Combined Engineering Society is being prepared and a special cover design has been worked out by the art staff of the Penn State Engineer. The program will give the names of all the exhibits in the order in which they will be seen, so that travelers may identify the work of the various departments.

DARTMOUTH PRESIDENT GIVES OPENING ADDRESS

"The problem which more than any other requires solution in these days of unrest and uncertainty is how to preserve to the needs of civilization the initiative and vigor and originality of individualism in connection with the responsibilities and necessities of associationism," said President Ernest Martin Hopkins, in his address to the student body upon the opening of Dartmouth College on September twentieth. Dr. Hopkins took occasion to criticize "extremists who capitalize themselves 'liberal' with a capital 'L'."

Many industrial organizations are now receiving aid from Penn State. The department of Engineering Extension has opened fall and winter courses for the present semester. Registration in the Wilkes-Barre district was held last week and classes were started last Monday. Three year courses in many engineering subjects are given and a large number of shop employees are taking advantage of this opportunity.

The efficiency of the training work done by the department is shown by the fact that many old companies and corporations have sent in applications for admittance of their employees into the various courses handled by the department of Engineering Extension. Some of the largest corporations in the state which are included among those who have sent in applications are The Carnegie Steel Company, The Penn Central Power Company, The West Penn Power Company and The Duquesne Light Company.

The Wilkes-Barre branch of the department of Engineering Extension offers three year courses in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and Mining Engineering. This school is in charge of M. H. Chaffee who graduated from Penn State in nineteen-eighteen. His duties are to register all students and to attend to all study problems that may arise.
