

SIRLOIN CLUB WILL HOLD MOCK SHOW

Eighth Annual Sale Will Start at One-thirty O'clock Tomorrow Afternoon

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED TO INDIVIDUAL WINNERS

Plans are completed for the eighth annual mock sale and show, commonly known as Penn State's "Little International," which is to be held in the Stock Pavilion tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of the Sirloin Club. The show will get underway with the judging of the animals at one-thirty o'clock.

Prizes Are Offered
Four pure ribbons have been offered for individual winners in each class of livestock. Beside these awards, there will be a Grand Champion ribbon handed over to the man who has entered the best fitted animal of the show.

In addition to the ribbons, there will be other awards. Professor W. H. Tomhave, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry, will present a book devoted to the study of livestock to the student possessing the best-fitted animal. Professor F. L. Pentley, of the same department, will also give a book, his volume going to the man receiving the cattle ribbon. Similar prizes will be awarded to the men having winning beasts in the other three classes of livestock.

Mock Sale Awards
Following the judging, the horses, cattle, sheep and swine will be placed on mock sale. W. B. Conell of the Extension Department acting as auctioneer. Sirloin Club members alone are eligible for bidding, and the man who comes nearest to the valuation set by the department faculty will be given a ribbon. In all, four ribbons will be given out to the winners of the Mock Sale.

J. E. Wynn '24 is general chairman of the committee in charge of the sale and show. He is assisted by J. P. Willman '24, who is in charge of the cattle division of the show, while H. D. Dekert '24 looks after the horses that are entered. "Completing the list are L. Hood '24 and J. V. Kirsch '24 who have charge of the sheep and swine, respectively. At a recent meeting of the Sirloin Club, a committee to arrange for the annual banquet of the organization was appointed, J. H. Arnold '24 being chairman of the group.

RAILROAD SUPT. TO GIVE LECTURE THIS AFTERNOON

Mr. William Elmer of Altoona, Superintendent of the Middle Division, Pennsylvania Railroad, will speak to the senior engineers at four-thirty this afternoon in Old Chapel, his subject being "The First Year Out."

Mr. Elmer was graduated from the Electrical School of Princeton in 1894 with the degree of B. E. Since serving his apprenticeship, he has been advanced with the Pennsylvania Railroad, being appointed to his present responsible position in 1920. He has also served as President of the Central Railroad Club and Chairman of various committees in the American Railway Association and in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He has made extensive study of locomotive tractive power, train resistance, and methods of utilizing an adjusted tonnage rating, whereby a locomotive can be loaded most economically. Mr. Elmer is Chairman of the Central Pennsylvania Section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

PROF. BONINE TELLS OF VOLCANOES AT LECTURE

Discusses Causes and Effects of Eruptions—Explains Quakes in Illustrated Lecture

The faculty of the Liberal Arts lecture series, an illustrated talk on "Volcanoes and Earthquakes," by Professor C. A. Bonine, was well received by the largest audience of the season. The discourse represented the result of an exhaustive study made by Mr. Bonine. He stressed the fact that volcanoes and earthquakes, essentially surface phenomena, are caused by agents deep in the interior. Thus it is necessary to consider the physical and chemical nature of the earth's recesses—a highly speculative subject. Two hypotheses of the earth's origin, the Nebular and the Planetesimal, were discussed, the surface of the moon being cited as a former state of the earth during its youth.

In the opinion of Professor Bonine, eruptions occur at the borders of continents due to the fact that the earth is contracting—shrinking—across new surfaces. The rock breaks, and the relief of pressure enables a magma to work its way upward along the lines of fracture to the surface, a volcano resulting. When the stress on the line of fracture exceeds its elasticity, a sudden movement of the rock occurs, producing an earthquake.

Over a hundred scenes, including views of Vesuvius, Pelee, and Kilauea, were presented in illustration.

COLLEGE CREAMERY SHOWS LARGE OUTPUT DURING YEAR

During the past year the College creamery, which is primarily a laboratory for students, did a large commercial business. The creamery manufactured 157,696 pounds of butter, 11,277 pounds of cheese and eight thousand gallons of ice cream. In addition to these products, large amounts of ice cream mixture, a preparation which is prepared for the freezing process, were sold to ice cream manufacturing concerns. Several hundred dollars worth of butter-milk and nearly thousand dollars worth of cream were sold and delivered by the department.

COACH HOUCK DEVELOPS FIGHTING COMBINATION

Closing its 1921 season with the intercollegiate championship, the Penn State boxing team established itself under the guiding hand of Coach Leo Houck as one of the most formidable fighting combinations in the east. The Nittany aggregation lost but one out of six hard fought bouts and by only a 4-3 score at the hands of the Navy.

Coach Houck started out at the beginning of the season with a squad of about seventy men under his instruction but under his stringent training the number of candidates gradually dwindled down to a more workable size and early in January real work was begun in preparation for the opening meet with Franklin and Marshall.

The Lancaster team cancelled its meet and the first team to be encountered by the Blue and White mittmen was a representative combination from the West Branch Y. M. C. A. of Philadelphia. Houck's fighters won this initial contest by a 4-3 score, gaining decisions in the 125, 137, 175, and unlimited classes.

"Rags" Madera defeated a Starting off with a decided win in the opening meet of the boxing season, "Rags" Madera '24, captain of the Blue and White team, came through the entire schedule without losing a bout. J. C. West '25 and F. A. Washington '25 also fought throughout the season without a defeat.

J. T. McClernan '26 entered the first encounter of the season with but little experience in the intercollegiate boxing ring. He failed to win in the first few meets but he soon gained confidence and assurance in the squared ring and toward the end of the winter schedule, the Nittany 115-pounder was showing up well.

"Hap" Frank was another of the mainstays of the Penn State combination. He gave a good account of himself whenever he appeared in the ring, veiling the Blue and White colors and although he lost by a decision to the Navy 175-pound representative in a dual meet, he staged a comeback in the intercollegiate and won from the daily fighter.

F. A. Washington entered the ring in the first college bout in his experience against the Army aggregation and won a decisive victory over his opponent. Since then he has proved himself to be a steady boxer and has not lost a bout that he has entered.

NITTANY TEAM LOSES TO NAVY

Losing its only meet of the season by the margin of one bout, the Penn State boxers went down to defeat at the hands of the middy fighters by a 4-3 count. Washington, won a technical knock-out in this contest, while West and Madera each received a decision.

The matches in the Navy meet were all first ones and showed the good condition of the Nittany fighters. At no time during the season did Coach Houck let up on the stringent training rules which he laid down at the start of the winter work.

Staging a marked comeback after its defeat of the week before, the Blue and White mittmen overachieved the Y. M. C. A. team by the score of 7-2, taking 12, but the 145 and 175-pound bouts. Kell '25 showed up well in this encounter and defeated a strong opponent in the 160-pound scrap.

The intercollegiate The crowning victory for the Nittany boxers was the winning of the first annual intercollegiate meet with Syracuse was met in its place. This contest was the first intercollegiate encounter in which a Syracuse boxing aggregation had ever taken part. The grange-men showed up fairly well but because of their lack of experience were easily outpointed by the Blue and White fighters. The Nittany combination piled up a final score in this meet of 6-1, losing only one bout out of seven.

Coach Houck's trained mittmen scored their fourth consecutive meet by gaining a 4-3 victory over Penn State crack boxers. For the third time since the start of the season the Blue and White heavy-weight, "Rags" Madera, entered the ring with the power to win or lose the contest and for the third time he came through the winner.

Professor D. W. Dedrick of the Milling and Baking Department is conducting a series of tests this week of different varieties of wheat produced in the college wheat plots. These tests were begun last Friday and to conduct them properly will take about a week.

Professor Dedrick will give a speech over the radio on April second on "Our Daily Bread."

FRESHMEN TEAM

A freshman boxing team was not gotten together until near the middle of the varsity's season and it took but in only one intercollegiate meet, facing the Navy phobos and going down to defeat.

The freshmen showed up well, however, in the annual interclass scrap, winning four out of seven bouts.
