

Penn State Collegian

Published semi-weekly during the college year by students of the Pennsylvania State College...

EDITORIAL STAFF: Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Business Editor, etc.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS: J. H. Lum, H. S. Morris, W. L. Pratt, etc.

BUSINESS STAFF: Business Manager, Advertising Manager, Circulation Manager, etc.

ASSISTANT BUSINESS MANAGERS: J. M. Elsler, J. H. McCulloch, etc.

REPORTERS: J. R. Dunlap, B. Butter, R. T. Kriebel, etc.

The Penn State Collegian invites communications on any subject of college interest...

Subscription price: $2.50, if paid before January 1st, 1924...

Entered at the Postoffice, State College, Pa. as second class matter.

Member of Eastern Intercollegiate Newspaper Association

News Editor this issue: J. H. LUM

TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1924

HARD LUCK FOR THE GIRLS

The question of expense incident to the conduct of and participation in student social functions at Penn State has always been a live and debatable one.

Realizing the importance of encouraging common-sense measures of economy in social affairs, Student Council last year recommended in no uncertain tones that young gallants be not permitted to indulge in lavish gifts of flowers for the personal adornment of their Junior Prom Misses.

It was unmistakably the idea of the men responsible for the initial move last year to establish a precedent that would govern the actions of undergraduates on subsequent occasions of a similar nature.

THE HOUSE PARTY PROPOSITION

A possible solution to the much discussed house party problem presents itself with the announcement by a joint committee from the Inter-Fraternity and Intra-mural Councils...

The students have asked for an opportunity to handle the house party situation themselves. Such privilege has been granted them by the College Senate.

The proposition, as a whole, will be placed before the students next Monday night and, if approved, will in turn be presented to the Student Welfare Committee of the College Senate.

A code of morals or regulations, handled by the fraternities themselves, seems to offer the most wholesome and satisfactory solution to the house party problem.

MUST WE "BUTLERIZE" PENN STATE?

One of these fine mornings the students and faculty of Penn State will wake up and discover that Old Man has been carried off.

It is about time that the student government imported one of Butler's first assistants from Philadelphia to check the "wave of robberies" that will soon put State College in the running with some of the noted metropolitan centers of crime.

To quote specific examples, there is the student who has tucked away in his locker, three bath-ropes belonging to members of the wrestling team.

Then there is the recent episode of the three students who were discovered leaving the basement of Mac Hall, laden with enough food to relieve the pangs of hunger for at least a week.

And so the list might be continued and further cases cited, but the COLLEGIAN is not attempting to compete with the police records of any of the great city newspapers.

It is a matter to be deplored that the actions of one or two unprincipled individuals should thus mar the reputation and good name of the Penn State student body.

Let this be sufficient warning!

COMPARISON OF EASTERN AND WESTERN COLLEGE ATHLETICS

By Hugo Bezdek

On a recent trip to a number of the great universities of the Middle West, I was impressed by a marked difference between intercollegiate athletics as they have been developed in that section and as they exist here in the East.

At Ohio State, Illinois, and Michigan there is remarkable outdoor equipment—large fields and plenty of them. In instance, Ohio State has large areas in reserve and when they have been developed, this institution will have the most complete outdoor equipment of any college or university in the country.

All three of these institutions boast wonderful seating accommodations. Ohio State and Illinois can seat more than sixty-five thousand people in their double-decked stadiums that are probably equalled only by the Yale, Dart and Franklin Field Stadium here in the East.

But the most striking feature of athletics at these western institutions is the fact that attention is concentrated on a few outdoor sports, notably football, track and football. The students and college authorities take a great interest in these sports and the equipment surpasses that of most eastern institutions.

Unlike the all-around program of outdoor athletics that is offered at most eastern colleges, such as Penn State, there is little interest in minor sports such as soccer, lacrosse and golf. True, they have ambitious plans for extending their outdoor facilities and it is expected that in the near future they will host a great number of from thirty to forty tennis courts.

As for indoor athletics, the western institutions have not developed them to as great an extent as they have outdoor sports. Yet in certain respects, they surpass eastern institutions, notably in the building of indoor cages.

Particularly impressive are these great indoor dirt cages that can be used for a sport requiring as much playing space as football. Four of the institutions that I visited possess indoor cages of this type, the one at Illinois having six laps to the mile. As a result of this fine indoor equipment the track status of the Middle West has been making remarkable indoor progress.

higher than they are here in the East. While the result of violation of the rules of the Western Conference by...

And then finally, there is the local color and individuality that flames so prominently in the athletics of our eastern colleges and gives to the contests in interest that is sometimes lacking among the members of the Conference group.

The next of the series of articles by faculty members will appear next Tuesday.

AG STUDENTS TO STAGE DANCE ON APRIL NINTH

Students of the School of Agriculture have abandoned the annual Ag banquet in favor of an informal Ag dance which will be held in the Assembly on April ninth.

The dance is featured by the newly organized Agriculture Student Council. Progress has been made in the past but has not been successful although it is being held by students of the School of Agriculture.

SIX HARVARD MEN GET COLD DUCKING IN CHARLES RIVER

Six men and two cows worth of Harvard crew were unceremoniously given a cold ducking when their shell struck a sharp piece of ice in the Charles river. The ice punctured a small hole in the hull which caused the shell to fill rapidly with water forcing the crew to jump into the river.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF RETAILING

The School of Retailing offers executive positions: Merchandising, Advertising, Personnel, Finance and Control, Sales, etc.

Coca-Cola advertisement featuring a man in a suit and the text 'Refresh yourself 5¢ Drink Coca-Cola Delicious and Refreshing'.

Advertisement for Otis Elevator Company featuring a picture of an elevator shaft and the text 'Building a Picture'.

CAPTAIN TO BE PICKED FOR EACH GAME AT FRANKLIN

A new system of electing captains of teams will be installed at Franklin College, Indiana. The captain will be elected before each game and will rule for that game only.

Sanford's Fountain Pen Ink advertisement featuring an image of the ink bottle and the text 'The Ink That Made The Fountain Pen Possible'.

Wrigley's advertisement featuring an image of a pack of cigarettes and the text 'After every meal. A pleasant and agreeable sweet and luscious menthol as well.'.

Melachirino advertisement featuring an image of a cigarette and the text 'THE constant smoker finds in Melachirino Cigarettes a delicacy of flavor of which he never tires.'.

Advertisement for Fuller Brush Company featuring the text 'Your biggest chance is with the best-known, largest-advertised house'.

Tuxedos advertisement featuring the text 'FOR THE PROM TUXEDOS $34.50 THE QUALITY SHOP M. FROMM'.

The Duffell Theatre Co. advertisement listing today's show 'GLORIA SWANSON in The Humming Bird' and other performances.

Luxenberg Clothes advertisement featuring the text 'Talk No. 1 CLEAR REASONING' and 'Nat LUXENBERG & Bros.'.