Notices

Nominations for Athletic Association officers will take place at Chapel services next week.

Receipts showing payment of class dues must be presented in order for a Junior to receive his L. V. E. All men who have not paid their dues are requested to make payment at once to A. W. York at the Alpha Chi Sigma house.

The Penn State Orchestra will hold its annual election of officers tonight at seven o'clock in the Band Room. All orchestra members are requested to be present.

The following seniors have not been registered in their class and if they wish their names to appear in the Commencement program and desire to take should see D. K. Stabler, class treasurer in the Friends Union house at once: S. P. Buckler, P. E. Howell, G. W. Meyers, H. C. Doyle, O. R. Jones, J. L. Fyke, A. K. Houser, P. E. Hoffmann, D. H. Rankins, C. H. Landefeld and H. J. Laughlin. All others not listed as graduating seniors should see Stabler before Wednesday.

LION NINE FACES WEST
VA. WESLEYAN TODAY

Letters under on Tati's slants in the first frame, pushing over two corners. Puma got a "life" when Kopp, Bucknell first baseman, failed to handle the ball through to him. Chisney's short stop, Loeffler, proved his worth as clean-up hitter by coming through with a single, and he, in turn, scored with "Mike" when "Norm" McVicker poked a liner to the right garden.

Visitors Score in Third

The Lawlons continued inactive until the third stanza, when E. Beavers walked, advanced to third on MacMurray's single and Tati's one-bagger and allowed to score on "Johnny" Beal's throw to Loeffler. Bohm lived up to his name by hitting on a long sacrifice fly to McVicker, which accounted for the run brought in by MacMurray. Tati crossed the plate with the third marker when Chesney lived out a clean single. Again in the seventh the Orange and Blue were aided by poor fielding brought in two more runs. Reed again started things by reaching base on Loeffler's error. A successive single error by Kerstetter, hunt, fly and one-base hit accounted for the first two corners.

Lischnuth, appearing in left field for the first time distinguished himself in the eighth frame by punching out a Texas League's that was good for one sack, and then counting on Loeffler's pinch hitter, coming after Tati had been put out at first. McVicker next man up at bat, put in a strong bid for entry to the Hall of fame when he slammed what looked like a sure fourth out to left field. MacKenzie stepped into the scene, however, and contributed the finishing feature of the day by making a great race for the ball and finally separating it in mid-air.

MacKenzie Stars

MacKenzie proved himself to be the star of the day, because of his fielding stunts. With him, Chesney, MacMurray and Tati played best for the visitors. For Penn State Longhurst was one of the stars, twirling a good game but getting discouraging support from his mates. Jay Lischnuth in his initial game, also showed up well, handling his only fielding chance in approved fashion and clouting out two singles in four times at bat. Milt's and Loeffler also started with the willow, the former making three hits and the latter two, one of which was a double.

The Nittany bosses will leave their home field for foreign grounds tomorrow afternoon. This northern trip will be the second invasion of the scene to the Lions. Thursday afternoon the strong Syracuse nine will be met at Syracuse, New York. The following day, Friday, Boston College plays her second game with "Killy" men at Newton, Massachusetts. The Jaunt will close Saturday with the Holy Cross tilt.

NITTANY RADIO STATION TO BROADCAST 'PINAFORE'

Principals of Cast Will Sing Selections From Opera Next Monday Evening

The most ambitious musical feature ever attempted from the Penn State radio station will take place next Monday night when student talent will offer the comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore" to the "listeners-in".

Members of the men's and women's glee clubs have been rehearsing for weeks on this opera which was a feature of the music week observance on the campus. The broadcasting will take place under the direction of R. W. Giant, Director of the Penn State department of Music.

Owing to the small size of station WPAH, only the principals of the cast will be broadcast and the majority of the selections will consist of solos, duets, and quartets. The performance is scheduled for eight-thirty p. m., Eastern Standard Time and will follow the usual farm and garden program.

Battlesnake Concert

The warning signal of "Kelly," a grandly rattlesnake, was broadcast from Station WPAH last Wednesday night as an unheeded conclusion to a nature study talk given by Professor George R. Green of the Natural Science Department. Within a few minutes after the first rattle sounded, telephone messages came in to the station from towns within a radius of fifty miles, "fans" stating that the program was coming in perfectly. To date the only distinct messages received were from Massachusetts.

Tomorrow's Program

8:00 p. m.—Piano duets by Mrs. C. E. Govier and Mrs. Maude Mullin

8:15 p. m.—"Whole Wheat vs. White Bread" talk by D. W. DeWick, Penn State milling engineering department

8:30 p. m.—Music and news items

8:45 p. m.—The Mineral Industries of Pennsylvania talk by D. A. Holbrook, dean of the Penn State School of Mine

9:00 p. m.—Musical selections, Mrs. Govier and Mrs. Mullin

ANNUAL FARMERS' DAY WILL BE HELD IN JUNE

Two Thousand Farmers Expected To Attend—Stock Judging Contest Planned

More than two thousand farmers, coming from every section of the state, are planning to attend the sixth annual June Farmer's Day which will be observed at Penn State beginning Wednesday evening June eleventh and ending Thursday night June twelfth. Hundreds of exhibits are scheduled for the day and a month-long stock judging contest is planned for Thursday morning.

On Wednesday evening a meeting will be held for all the visitors, at which several reels of educational moving pictures will be shown. One of two prominent agricultural leaders will also address the farmers at the initial get-together.

On Thursday a full program of demonstrations will be given and exhibits of farm crops, fruit growing, vegetable growing, animal husbandry, dairy husbandry, farm equipment, home economics, field crops, soil fertility, plant diseases, floral culture and injurious insects are also scheduled. The afternoon will end at four-fifteen with an auction of pure bred dairy stock in the stock pavillion while at the same time games and contests will be under way on New Beaver field.

At ten o'clock Thursday morning, the Farmers' Stock Judging Contest, a new feature this year, will be introduced. This contest is open to everybody except those who are connected in some way with the college and the man selected as the best judge will receive a prize, the pick of a pure bred Holstein, Guernsey, Ayrshire or Jersey bull calf.

Farmers' Day will be concluded Thursday evening by the awarding of prizes to the young farmers who win the further stock judging contest. These young boys and girls will be at Penn State from Monday to Thursday of the same week.

Ohio Paper Notes

Ceramics Course

The following article concerning the newly formed Ceramics Department at Penn State, was clipped from the Ohio Paper of the Hadfield-Pentfield Steel Company of Ohio.

"Pennsylvania has fallen in line and will recognize the importance of the clay industry in that state by making a Ceramic course a regular part of the state university located at State College, Pa. Pennsylvania has always been one of the big clay producing states, having continuously been one of three leading states in the industry. While Pennsylvania has led as to importance in the industry she has lagged in recognizing the importance of Clay as a matter of education.

"Ohio, Illinois, New York, Iowa, Washington and New Jersey have all had Ceramic courses for years. Ohio leading in this work. Just why the usually aggressive state of Pennsylvania has not been a leader in the education of clay workers is hard to explain. Pennsylvania has diversified clay products plants and can on this account, do splendid work in the Ceramic department of the State University.

"The state produces annually millions of dollars worth of clay products and with recognition of the industry and the training of young men in that direction, will materially increase the total and the range as well as improve the quality and market."
