THE ELECTIONS

Information which causes many Penn State men to knit their eyebrows and to furrow their foreheads has been brought to light concerning the outcome of the attempted election of the freshman trial-presidents last Tuesday night. It appears as though the first-year men had already begun to indulge in a practice which, if it is continued, will ultimately result in class disruption, disharmony of class principles, ethics, and cooperation.

Not all the freshmen attended their class meeting, an offense which is serious enough in itself to warrant some action to insure a larger attendance at the next gathering. It has been estimated that between six and seven hundred men were seated in the Amphitheatre, evidently so convened for the purpose of conducting their class business in an honorable and noteworthy manner. To the freshmen were distributed almost a thousand election ballots. When the time came to elect the men to be considered as trial-presidents it was found that two hundred ballots, more or less, were needed to supply each man with a chance to vote. Moreover there were certain men who had not even received a single ballot. Indications pointed strongly to the assertion made later that some men had retained more than one ballot.

When the truth of the distribution of the ballots became known the election was postponed until a later date. It was the only course to take under the circumstances. When the election is again held let the ballot be distributed to each man as he enters the door, that will eliminate the possibility of any man exceeding his legitimate voting power.

But the more serious side of this affair has not yet been discussed. If the election had gone through and those men had been elected to participate by competition for the office of class president, it is not to be supposed that they would represent the popular choice of the Class of 1928. Furthermore, the Freshman Class would not want any one of those men, illegally elected, to become its president later on. Why then have some men brought suspicion upon themselves by openly trying to rule the elections?

There is not the slightest tincture of honor or spirit evidenced in such conduct, neither is there the remotest sense of fair play shown in the action. If there has been any electioneering, and such a thing at present is entirely out of the category of Penn State class elections, it should either be unearthed or smothered up now or else decide to have an open campaign during which time the candidates for election could be "stumped" and talked up as is done in national and state political elections.

The fraternities have always been condemned as having exerted fraternity politics in various elections conducted at Penn State. To some extent this has probably been true and without doubt it will continue as long as there is competition for supremacy and representation in undergraduate affairs. Would it not be well, therefore, for Student Council to take this matter under advisement and endeavor to determine in what respects open campaigning for class offices and elective committees would be both beneficial and injurious?

There need be no civil influence arise out of an open campaign for class offices. Men will recommend their choice for office those candidates whom they think most fitted for the position regardless of whether there is a ban placed on a uniform and organized electioneering campaign.

The evil which results from popular elections comes from hatred and malice, and these are usually occasioned by personal differences and dislikes. The election can and should be conducted on a fair and square basis in every instance, but the matter of presenting and preparing the voting body for a wise and correct selection of candidates should receive more attention and publicity than has heretofore been accorded such affairs.

THE FIRE

The COLLEGIAN takes this opportunity to express its sympathy for those people who suffered loss during the recent conflagration. Several families were swept from their homes with no chance to recover personal belongings, and with scarcely time to save their lives.

Much credit is due those men who so ably assisted in fighting the flames. It was only due to their tireless efforts that the fire was kept from spreading over the whole business district of the town. Fortunately it is that no worse damage was done.

YALE PROFESSOR TO BE NEXT CHAPEL SPEAKER

Dr. H. H. Tweedy, professor of Theology at Yale University, will deliver the chapel services next Sunday. Professor Tweedy graduated from the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, acquired his D. D. degree, and after three years' residence at the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, received his D. D. degree. He then spent two years at the University of Berlin. Since he received his M. A. degree from Yale in 1909, he has been teaching theology at that institution. He has written four books, which are as follows: "Mind and Religion," "Religion and the War," "Training the Devotional Life," and "The King's Highway Series."

Gridiron Gossip

Marlett College is the Army representative of Vice-president-elect Charles G. Dewey.

Red G. Blinn's one ambition in life is to beat his old coach. Maybe some day Red but not tomorrow.

There's a new book out that has been discussed all over Pennsylvania. It's "The Whistle" by C. O'Connell.

Here's hoping that bathing suits are the more appropriate than milkshakes at Pittsburgh next Thursday.

Redfoot will be out on New Year's Eve in full force tomorrow to see the local side. Woodbine do his "stuff" Woodbine is one of the mainstays on the Marlett line.

The O'Connell like sacrifice have an end by the name of Hinson. Old Gossip sincerely hopes that the Marlett Hinson doesn't do the same thing the O'Connell Hinson did here on Alumni Day.

Out in East Pennsylvania the Lehigh-Rutgers and Lehigh-Lafayette clashes are holding the center of attention tomorrow.

Wholesale is now famous for two things—Blinn rucke and stopping Redfoot.

The entire Pitt squad will be the cause of Cummie Tech tomorrow when the Tartan clash with the Quindoo Mules.

And after seeing these Devil-Dog in action this week we have to think of what will probably happen to Tech tomorrow.

Penn State's mid-sters will have to wait until some other time to see their favorite movie stars in the real life. The faculty committee decided with the postponed title to the lot next month.

Well known H-F-H and H-F-H beats the Marlett acts five men on Wall Street. All-American at City, suchdown had counted.

Cannell plays Cue College tomorrow in preparation for the annual clash with Penn on Thanksgiving Day.

The use of the three W. Weston Wilson and Wilson sounds almost like a chapter from one of Houdini's magic novels.

"Pit" Hilde's injured leg has been coming along in fine shape and the former Newark star should be in excellent condition for the Turkey Day bout.

When along comes one of Berksburg's leading citizens and wants to verify the report that Penn State beat Lebanon Valley.

MANDOLIN CLUB HOLDS SMOKER FOR NEW MEN

Will Be Staged in Band Room at Seven O'clock Tonight—W. O. Thompson to Speak

The Penn State Mandolin Club will hold a smoker in the band room of Old Main at seven o'clock tonight. Any new men with mandolin ability are urged to attend and see a special evening. W. O. Thompson will speak of the possibilities of mandolin music. There are eighteen men in the organization at present, but H. L. Parker should be so many as fifty in consideration of the size of the College. The Club is holding this event in hope of interesting more men in the organization and acquainting them with the present member. The first performance of the Club will be in the play presented by the Spanish Club during the latter part of this semester. They have been practicing some preparation for the mid-winter concert but as yet the program has not been arranged. As there is a need for first mandolinists, it is desired that new men attending the smoker will bring their instruments along. This will not be considered a try-out but is just to get an idea of the ability of the candidates.

FIFTY-PIECE BAND WILL APPEAR AT PITTSBURGH

To Play at Thanksgiving Football Game—Broadcasts Program Wednesday Night

With a personnel of fifty men, the Penn State Band will leave State College next Wednesday noon for Pittsburgh and take part in the Alumni Football Smoker in the dining-room of Kaufman's Department Store, and the Penn State Radio Night from station KDKA, Wednesday evening. The National musicians will entertain with a special concert, in the lobby of the Post Hotel Thursday morning. Ten o'clock and they will conclude their activities in Pittsburgh at the football game Thursday afternoon.

The Penn State Alumni Association of Pittsburgh is doing everything in its power to make the smoker a success and a good program has been provided. All students going to Pittsburgh for the game are invited to attend.

On the well-known program of the Penn State Radio Night, as published in last Tuesday's issue of the COLLEGIAN, the main speakers are "The Star" Thompson and "Red" The Grand and vinty quartet, with several.

There are other Penn State students in possession of the mandolin. The mandolin will be the main attraction for the smoker. The first to Penn State to play will begin practice for his series of winter concerts in the Auditorium. Some time later in the year a trip will be taken to the Rockwell Mountains, where the Blue and White musicians will entertain the prisoners.

MENORAH SOCIETY TO HEAR DR. W. ROSENAU

Rabbi William Roseman of the Oheb Shalom Congregation, Baltimore, Maryland, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Penn State Menorah Society in Old Chapel at eleven o'clock next Sunday morning. The speaker is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati from which he received his degree of Bachelor of Arts. He completed a course at the Hebrew Union College in 1919 and went to Omaha, Nebraska, where he was the leader of the Temple Israel Congregation until 1922, when he became rabbi of the Oheb Shalom Congregation. While attending his duties in Baltimore Rabbi Roseman took up graduate work at John Hopkins University and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Besides his position at the head of his congregation, to which he has been called for five years, he is also a member of the faculty of Johns Hopkins University and is the author of several books on theological subjects. The meeting is open to the public and all those interested in hearing Rabbi Roseman are invited to attend.

BLUE KEY TO ENTERTAIN MARIETTA GRID SQUAD

As has been done on previous occasions, the Blue Key Society will take care of the Marlett football team tomorrow and will also take care of the Saathome soccer team next Tuesday. The chapel speaker last Sunday, Rabbi Litzman, was taken care of and the same will be done for the chapel speaker this Sunday. Each faculty has received a letter from the Blue Key Society and it is requested that it be read in the next meeting and cooperation be given as much as possible. It is also requested that when a Blue Key man has a visitor to a dance that the members of that fraternity help to entertain as far as possible.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE PATRONS OF COLLEGE GREENHOUSES

The Department of Horticulture of the Pennsylvania State College has discontinued the retailing of flowers grown in the College greenhouse. This phase of the work has been transferred to W. J. Messner, proprietor of the State College Floral Shoppe, 117 First Street. Avenue who is under contract to retail the college grown material. This change will benefit the patrons in several ways. The student offer them a greater selection of fresh cut flowers at all times. It will give a large selection of floral necessities and will be in a position to offer better service and extend greater courtesy. This transfer will also allow the Division of Horticulture more time for instructional work.

Grows Hair or Money Back

ONLY one man in 9 need ever be bald. An amazing statement, yet it is a fact. You all know that each hair grows from a bulb—not from a root. Hair may get weak, die and fall out. But the hair bulb itself rarely dies. It merely becomes dormant—like a plant bulb in winter. Baldness results from inactive hair bulbs. So does falling hair and most other hair troubles. Now inactive hair bulbs can be revived. Falling hair stopped. New hair grown. A remarkable treatment guarantees it—or money refunded. This treatment is not a mere "tonic." The principle is new. Scientifically correct. Leading dermatologists agree on this point. This new method treats simultaneously each one of the four causes to which 99% of all hair bulb inactivity is due. Hence its remarkable success. Results Guaranteed. No matter what your condition—or how many "tonics" you have used unsuccessfully—we urge you to test this new method. It stops falling hair. It destroys dandruff. It grows hair. We guarantee results or we refund your money. Our written guarantee in every package protects you fully. No after odor—no oil—no grease. ## GLEE CLUB PREPARES FOR TRIP NEXT WEEK

Songsters Will Leave for Kane, Emporium and Brookville Next Wednesday

The Glee Club is holding intensive rehearsals in preparation for the trip to Kane, Emporium, and Brookville Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The programs will be similar to that of the Pennsylvania Div appearance but will contain a few additions. The "Italian Street Song" from "Dreams" the soprano obligations of "Nights in Sicily" and "In Paris" which will be sung by Miss H. R. Choll '25 and Miss M. Snyder '25 respectively, led by the club. Another feature of the program will be the number of excerpts from the opera "Puffo" which was given at the Penn State last year. Director Grant has selected eight men to render the selections and the entire Club shall take part in the finale. Rehearsals will be held tonight and on Monday and Tuesday nights of the coming week. Dean Grant has announced that he is ready to receive an application for the student leadership of the Club and will be in his office next week on Wednesday afternoon and on Thursday and Friday forenoon when applicants can report to him.
