LION COURTMEN MEET BUCKNELL TOMORROW

Veteran Visiting Team Credited With One Win Over Coach Ham's Proteges

A team suffering reversals at the hands of Princeton and Navy, the Penn State tennis team will endeavor a comeback tomorrow afternoon when it meets the aggregation from Bucknell on the Army courts
The Lewisburg collection has one man from the Blue and White netmen tucked safely away but the match tomorrow argues will be a close one. Earlier in the season Bucknell took over the Lions by a 7 to 2 score. Gamm being the only man to count a point for the 'Sittany' team in the singles while Geuther and Webster came through in the doubles
Captain Geuther, Malpass, Webster, Gamm and Eggleston will comprise the team which is to engage the visitors. For the Blisons, Captain Lybarzer, McCrsky, McFarland, Zornum, Gudrick and Huter will attempt to stay the Penn State racketeers. All the men on the Orange and Blue team are veterans with the exception of Huter
Gamm was Huter's opponent in the match on May first and it is likely that the little Lion racketeer will produce again. Geuther and Malpass are especially hitting a winning stride and the Geuther-Webster and Malpass-Gamm doubles combinations are working together in a machine-like fashion. Eggleston has received almost completely from a knee injury suffered at Carnegie Tech and probably will see service in fifth singles men

The organization has been sanctioned by the student Welfare Committee as an official campus organization to be known as the Pi Lambda Sigma professional pre-legal society. It has been thought best to select future members for the most part from the sophomore class so that they may be able to further the work of the society throughout their college career

chance to finish among the leaders. The distance runs will not be run in trial heats all the entries competing in the finals tomorrow
Banner and Wagner will enter the high-lump trials in the intercollegiate through with the galaxy of promising jumpers. It is doubtful that they will place among the leaders. In the hammer-throw the will match strength with such champions as Hauer of California and Hills of Princeton. The remaining Penn State entry in the field events will be Roberts, who will throw the weighted spear

Keen Competition

The rival teams that the Penn State clubmen will encounter today and tomorrow contain the cream of club and field athletes of the American colleges. Yale, Georgetown, Southern California, California and Pennsylvania being the favorites in the two-day competition. Included among the entries will be Bowman intercollegiate sprint champion, Hauer of Olympic weight lifter, Owen of the foot and blue in the pole vault and Masters of Georgetown in the distance runs
Two of the invading teams from the West, Southern California and the University of California with fifteen and eighteen men respectively might possibly annex the title. Several of their hurdlers and sprinters have not participated in the first and might prove to be dark horses in the competition on Franklin Field. Georgetown's chances to win the intercollegiate received a severe jolt when it was made known that Mott and Langue two prominent performers were definitely out of the event
The winner of last year's intercollegiate is also figured as possible winner of the classic Penn State, has received little consideration in the advance doping but it is possible that the team might garner enough points to place them well up in the scoring column
